PRESENT CHRISTIANITY TO SUIT ALTERED STATE

"Otherwise Church Will Lose Grip on Society," Says Rev. Dr. James Henderson.

Rev. James Henderson was not anxious to say much regarding his views on a material hell, that he first have been wounded.

Church. He said that in the main he had been correctly reported, and while it was the first time he had given voice to such opinions, they had been his for considerable time.

He was urged to take up the subject because the war had so modified and altered theology all along the line. It had, he said, made vast changes in the way things were looked upos.

"We have now to present a Christianity that will suit altered conditions," said Dr. Henderson, "otherwise the church will lose its grip on the sinking elements of society."

Other ministers of the Methodist Church did much real thinking yesterday in the remarks of Dr. Henderson, but while some said they would deal with the matter in future sermons, none would voice an opinion for publication.

To the Scottish from Montreal and Toronto, too, were sent special messages of praise from general head-quarters.

"In again, out again," the Canadian brigades have been still putting up the fight of their lives. It is to their credit that lies the capture of Mouquet farm and a strong redoubt the enemy had constructed and thought impregnable, called in Haig's despatch "Danube redoubt." A small share goes to them also for the carrying of Courcellette

While at the front he had been given the opportunity of observing what a very vital part Ontario nickel played in the issues of this war. He brought back from the trenches a message of confidence in the ultimate result of the war, and brought back, too, a profound impression of the efficiency of the British officers and the consecration of British soldlers whether of home or of colonial stock.
