

NO COMPENSATION FOR FORMER KAISER

Socialists in Prussian Parliament Declare He Deserves Nothing.

Berlin, Dec. 9.—Goaded by the prospect that hundreds of millions of marks must be handed over to the former Kaiser in final settlement of the claims of the House of Hohenzollern to so-called Crown domains and perquisites, the Socialists have introduced a resolution into the Prussian parliament the enactment of all the Hohenzollern property without compensation. The bill, however, would allow the former Kaiser a sum adequate for his support, "so that he will not starve or become a burden on a foreign community," as it naively explains.

In support of the resolution Socialists' representative Heilmann dissipated the Prussian Junkers and Monarchists' trotting out Blumensack as a pattern to be followed in this case.

"We Socialists stand firm on Blumensack's ground," when the matter of compensating the King of Hanover and the Kurfürst and Hesse came up and he said with characteristic decision "we don't owe the King anything at all," Herr Heilmann argued.

"The matter of compensation for the former Kaiser has far-reaching complications. For every million we pay to the Hohenzollerns we shall have to pay a billion in reparations to the Entente. Under the rule of strict justice, Wilhelm II ought not to get a single mark. Let us remember the many Germans who lost far more than the former Princes and to whom we cannot give adequate support—the war invalids, for instance, Wilhelm II. to be sure, relinquished the Crown, but again he signs himself 'Wilhelm'."

"The Hohenzollerns are playing the role of pretenders to the throne. We cannot give them state funds to sustain such a role. They need not be left to starve, but the safety of the Republic is more important and should be assured. Legally, the Kaiser has a care on which to demand a settlement. He left the service of the State because of the existence of a Republic."

Herr Heilmann twisted the anti-Semitic monarchical with the fact that the attorney for the former Kaiser in the matter of settlements is a Jew, the case for the former Kaiser being conducted by Counselor of Justice Lowenfeld.

THREE SHELL GAME

Jeweller Has Three Safes and Keeps Burglars Guessing.

New York, Dec. 9.—It is a clever sort of three shell game that O. O. Stillman plays against burglars in his jewellery store at New Brunswick, N. J.

He keeps three safes there and the burglars have to guess which one of the three is worth cracking. The chances are two to one against them.

Some burglars backed the game and lost their time. They cracked an empty safe, and the one with the valuables is still intact.

WOMAN GETS OXFORD DEGREE

British Weekly: Dr. Ivy Williams, the first lady to receive the degree of B. C. L. from Oxford University.

A well-known Congregationalist, the daughter of a banker who died a few years ago. She is an active worker at the Congregational church, Cowley, just outside the city, where she lives with her mother. A brother, Mr. W. Williams, a brilliant student of Corpus Christi College, died shortly after leaving college. He took an active part in the religious life of the city, and his death was a great loss to George Street Congregational church.

EILEEN TERRY'S JEWEL SOLD

Paris, France, Dec. 8.—A pendant in enamel and gold, which was presented by Henry Irving to Ellen Terry, has been purchased from a Paris jeweller for $2,600 by an English actress.

Keep it on hand at home. Have it with you while away.

Painkiller

(PERRY DAVIS)

A reliable family medicine used for 80 years by people all over the world.

To relieve acute painful attacks of Cramps in the Stomach and Bowels (summer complaint).

To counteract the evil after-effects of Chill and Exposure, and thus avert Colds, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Pneumonia.

As a Liniment to relieve Bruises, Sprains, Insect Bites and Stings, Rheumatic Aches and Pains.

50c. per Bottle Extra Large Family Size $1.00

Prepared only by DAVIS & LAWRENCE CO.

New York and Montreal.

ONLY ONE Painkiller

(PERRY DAVIS)

CUTICURA HEALED PIMPLES ON FACE

Also Itchy Scalp, Hair Fell Out, Face Disfigured.

"My head began to itch and there were scales on my scalp. My hair came out badly with combed and became very dry and thin. I also had pimples and blackheads all over my face. The pimples were hard, large, and red, and caused me to scratch and irritate them, and my face was disfigured."

"This trouble lasted about two months and I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After I had used two cases of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Zona Jackson, R. 3, Goldendale, Wash.

Improve your skin by daily use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Tablets. They are ideal.

See 21c. Ointment 25c. and 50c. Tablets 25c. Sold throughout the world by Dr. J. C. Williams, 140 N. 3rd St., St. Paul, Minn.

Cuticura Soap shaves without using.

ILLICIT SALE OF DRUGS WIDESPREAD

Federal Department of Health Are Successfully Prosecuting Offenders.

Ottawa, Dec. 9.—The war against illicit dealers in habit-forming drugs is being prosecuted vigorously by officials of the Federal Department of Health, working in co-operation with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, but it is stated that there is hardly a section of the Dominion which is not in some measure enmeshed by these drugs. Every possible means is being taken to unearth offenders and during a period of eight months in 1920 prosecutions have been obtained in forty different sections of the country, and fines in these cases amounting to approximately $20,000.

In Montreal two women were found guilty of attempting to transport narcotics from Montreal to Cornwall. The shipment involved had a value of anywhere from ten to twenty thousand dollars. After a prolonged fight in the Montreal courts the women were found guilty and fined $300 and costs, the drugs being confiscated.

In Saskatoon recently twenty-one persons were arrested and convicted, fined in many cases of $1,000, together with terms of imprisonment, being imposed. In many cases drugs were found in their work to stomp out the "underground" traffic in narcotics.

"Peddlers," dealers and even doctors' names are included among those convicted. In one case the name of the doctor found guilty has been erased from the register of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the province in which he practiced. Many doctors have been obtained in many cases and in other cases persons convicted have been sent to prison for terms of two years at hard labor.

Many ingenious devices for getting the drugs into Canada have been discovered by the health department officials in their work to stomp out the "underground" traffic in narcotics.

BOUND TO OUTSIDE OF EXPRESS CAR

Man Who Was Robbed and Gagged Traveled for Three Hours Tied to Handle.

Buffalo, N. Y., December 8.—Robert J. Kasemer, of Cleveland, was rescued shortly before midnight last Thursday when the train arrived at Ashtabula, Ohio. Kasemer, who returned to Buffalo tonight with a railroad police officer, told detectives that he had been tied to the car by highwaymen who had robbed him of $112 in the Buffalo railroad yards. Kasemer, whose cut and bruised wrists and head gave evidence in support of his story said that he met two men, one of whom was acquaintance of his, as he was about to buy a ticket for Cleveland on Thursday evening. They suggested that he accompany them on the train, he said, and led him to a dark corner of the yards where he told the police, they took his money at the point of revolver.

After the robbery, Kasemer said, the two men bound him to the express car, using handkerchiefs and his own necktie for the purpose. They gagged him with his own muffler and left him. In a few minutes the train pulled out. Kasemer said that throughout the three-hour ride he kicked at the door of the express car, but it was not until the train reached Ashtabula that he attracted the attention of an express messenger inside.

AMBITIOUS IDEA

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—Conveyance of the oil products of the Mackenzie River basin to Behring Sea by pipe line from whence it would be carried by tankers to the markets of the world is an ambitious project for which sanction will be sought by a bill to be considered by parliament at the approaching session. The proposed pipe line would be laid from the Mackenzie River to the Yukon River systems by way of Rat River and Bell River, thence by the Porcupine and Yukon rivers to Saltwater.

CANADIAN WEDS QUEEN'S MAID

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Dec. 8.—The marriage was solemnized yesterday of Major-General Thacker, formerly adjutant-general of the Canadian expeditionary forces, and Hon. Mabel Louise Gye, maid of honor to the queen.

Their majesties sent the bride a diamond brooch.

Labor and Capital Agree on One Thing

While strikes are going on all over the world, it is a relief to find one point on which Labor and Capital agree. This is a matter which may not have much to do with the wealth of nations, but it has a material influence on their health—and that is the efficacy of Buckley's Bronchitis Mixture for coughs, colds, bronchitis, hoarseness and other throat and chest affections.

Just as there is "no royal road to health," so this wonderful remedy, which has brought relief to thousands, is easily within the reach of the laboring man as well as the millionaire. Rich or poor, old or young, once you have tried it, you realize that nothing else can equal it. Don't go on suffering. Get a bottle to-day. You buy it on the understanding, your money refunded if it does not give you quick relief. Take no substitute. 75c. a bottle. For sale at all Drug Stores or by mail from W. K. BUCKLEY, Limited, 145 MUTUAL ST., TORONTO.

FOUND JEWELS DEBRIS OF FIRE

Valuable Belongings of Late Mrs. Harold Boswell Reid Were Recovered.

New York, Dec. 9.—The police have refused to clear up the mystery of the disappearance of the late Mrs. Harold Boswell Reid's jewels until the missing jewels had been found. This letter was received by Mrs. Reid, who is understood to be a singer, who lived in the city.

It was said the day of the fire that a daughter of Mrs. Reid had claimed a long jewel box as the property of her mother. This box, it is said, had been opened as if with an axe.

Someone whose name is withheld by the authorities complained about the missing jewelry and an investigation by the police and fire officials started.

The firemen sifted all the debris through sieves, and in that way the gems were discovered. The missing jewels had been scattered in various rooms on the attic floor. According to the police several small silver jewel cases were found containing pieces of the missing valuables. Among the discovered jewelry were two diamond rings, a pearl necklace, a large diamond brooch and a diamond earring. Two or three of the pearls were scorched, but the rest of the jewelry was not damaged.

CONFLICTING STORY OF OHIO TRAGEDY

Woman Says She Was Shot by Negro Who Then Set Fire to House.

Youngstown, O., Dec. 9.—One white woman and a negro were charged with the shooting of Mrs. Thomas Koehler, who was shot in the chest and killed, and the setting of fire to her house, which resulted in the death of her two children, near Hubbard, six miles from here, last Sunday.

Mrs. Koehler said that a negro robber, whom she resisted, shot her and then set the house afire, burning the children. She is in an apartment here with bullet wounds in the forehead, arm and spine, but will recover.

Warren authorities announced that they were investigating Mrs. Koehler's story, and said they were inclined to the belief that a quarrel with a white man preceded the tragedy.

Mrs. Koehler, who ran a neighborhood home where she was wounded, said that a negro had entered her home and demanded money. She refused and he opened fire with a revolver, she said, but she managed to reach the door and escaped. The neighbors, after rendering first aid to Mrs. Koehler, discovered that the Koehler house was afire. A bucket brigade was formed and attempts made to rescue the children, but to no avail.

Search of the ruins of Mrs. Koehler's house disclosed upon the charred bodies of the children, a revolver, which police said they had established was Mrs. Koehler's.

At the same time Harry Cole, a neighbor, now in custody at Warren, Ohio, disclosed upon the charred bodies of the children, a revolver, which police said they had established was Mrs. Koehler's.

Hospital authorities decided that marks on the woman's forehead and spine were bruises, and that the only bullet wound was a fatal one. Ringed cartridges were found in the revolver.

MARLBOROUGH LODGE ELECTS OFFICERS

The meeting of Marlborough Lodge, No. 207, Sons of England, held last evening, was largely attended and the officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, E. J. Puddy; vice-president, E. A. Darys; chaplain, Rev. E. B. Hooper; secretary, C. Ledford; assistant secretary, F. H. Searcy; treasurer, G. H. Lewis; first guide, H. W. Bird; second guide, W. J. Blackwell; third guide, E. J. Douglas; fourth guide, J. A. Clark; fifth guide, W. J. Sargison; inner guard, H. G. Neaves; outer guard, A. G. Howler; auditors, E. C. Tremaine, W. J. Blackwell, W. C. Parker; advisory board, E. J. Puddy, E. A. Darys, C. Ledford, G. H. Lewis, E. J. Puddy, trustees, T. H. Carter, B. W. Thorne, T. W. Plet, scrutineers, S. S. Sellen, H. Crabbe, F. Thomas, of sister lodges; district deputy, H. C. Vanwart; pianist, O. J. F. Halsall.

FLU IN SWITZERLAND

Paris, France, Dec. 8.—Influenza, which seemed to have completely disappeared, has again broken out in Switzerland, according to advices from Geneva. Sixty-nine deaths occurred in one week.

Albion's SALT

Purifies the Blood

South-eastern eyes and strengthen eyesight quickly, relieves inflammation in eyes and lids; sharpens vision and makes glasses unnecessary in many instances, says Doctor. Drugists refund your money if it fails.

CANADIAN MAPLE ON HERO'S GRAVE

Emblem Picked by Adam Brown of Hamilton, Sent Overseas.

Hamilton, Dec. 9.—The Herald says: An incident in connection with that memorable event, the burial in Westminster Abbey of the "unknown warrior," has been revealed, which, while it will stir Hamiltonians in particular, should, and undoubtedly will, touch all Canadian hearts.

It was laid on that cenotaph in England's Valhalla where the unknown hero, representative of all that glorious host, was laid to rest. That final tribute was Canada's emblem, a maple leaf, red and gold, as it had fallen from the tree, and that it was gathered on the road from Burlington to Wabasso park during the recent fall by Adam Brown, a young man who is now in the army, was the destiny of this leaf, a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

During the lifetime of that gallant gentleman and officer, the late Sir Anthony Brown, V. C., the last survivor of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Who was that unknown warrior? He was the last of the Lucknow V. C.'s, Mr. Brown, who was his close friend, kept up a correspondence with him which was only broken when Sir Anthony died in the first year of the war. Since that time, however, Mr. Brown has been in correspondence with one of his late friend's daughters, Miss Alice Home, who occupies an important position on the staff of the London Daily Mirror. As is his yearly custom, Mr. Brown in his letters abroad placed on the unknown warrior's grave a maple leaf which he had gathered, and into a letter to Miss Home he enclosed the very beautiful specimen gathered by him during a drive to Wabasso park.

This letter was received by Miss Home on the morning of November 11 and immediately the beautiful thought struck her that this emblem of Canada might serve a great purpose. She hurried into a taxi and drove to the deanery of the abbey. There she presented the maple leaf, with the brief explanation that it had been sent by a Canadian friend of Sir Anthony's, and that it was a particularly beautiful specimen among this year's collection of the aged postmaster of Hamilton.

Lessening the Life Toll

THE value of the lighthouse is especially appreciated by seafaring folks. Many fascinating stories of averted disasters originate from these structures the world over. Their first purpose, however, is preventing the loss of human life. In this they are closely connected with the purpose of Milburn's Heart & Nerve Pills, around which there are also interesting facts of averted disasters.

People to-day are using Milburn's Heart & Nerve Pills as their "lighthouse" on which to steer a course for good health. There are very few to-day taking an active part in any walk of life who do not require, at some time or another, an additional food for the Heart & Nerve system, for without these properly carrying out their duties every other organ in the body must suffer. The effects of weakened Heart & Nerve centres vary. With some, the heart thumps harshly and irregularly. They feel irritable and are easily excited. Others are afflicted with sleeplessness at night, and drowsy sensations during the