AN ENGINE'S VAGARIES.

Yard Locomotive Went on a Tear on Wednesday Afternoon,

Probably the most remarkable freak in local history can be attributed to a 14ton yard engine which literally "went on a tear" at the E. & N. depot Wednesday afternoon. It appears that shortly after 4 o'clock the passenger train was standing on the main line awaiting the loconotive which was at Russell's station. when the little yard engine started out, its crew not expecting the other one back for some time. They had just reached the rock cut when the large engine's latter spied the yard engine at the same time, and the reverse levers of both were applied at once. It was too late, however, and they came together with a bang, the engineer and brakeman of the hittle one either jumping or being thrown. At any rate they lauded on the track with uncomfortable abruptuess. The collision sent the yard engine back towards the depot at a tremendous rate. Strangely enough the mix-up started its whistle blowing, and along it went like a little demon screaming a warning all the time. Had it not been for this the chances are that somebody would have been killed, for there were quite a number on the bridge at the time. On, on, the engine sped, hurling with a frightful crash into the passenger train, throwing the whole line back on the buffer. The baggage car, the immediate victim of the shrieking little fiend's vagaries, was considerably damaged. Its course thus interrupted, the yard engine then started up the track again, its destination apparently being Hardy Bay. Fortunately, lowever, the crew of the larger engine saw it coming and switched it to a siding, where it exhausted itself on some wood cars. Nobody was seriously hurt, but the engine was badly damaged, if not irreparably so.

WEEKLY WEATHER SYNOPSIS.

Victoria Meteorological Office. Victoria Meteorological Office,

13th to 19th May, 1903.

The weather during this week has been chiefly cloudy and cool on the Mainland, partly cloudy and cool in this vicinity, and showers have been general upon several occasions throughout the province. On the Coast considerable rain has failen, accompanied by high winds and gales upon several days. These conditions were caused by the eastward passage of a number of sterm areas across the northern portion of the province. The winds therefore in this vicinity were chiefly from off the cold waters of the Pacific.

Upon Sunday, 17th, one of these storm areas upon reaching the Rockies developed considerably, and as the barometer was high off the Coast a westerly gale prevalled throughout the greater portion of the province. A few light falls of snow and some rain has occurred in Cariboo, and light rains were reported in Kootenay upon three days.

The Dassage of these storms eactives.
