JOHN ALDEN'S FARM.

"You may laugh if you will, Susie, but there is something in 'luck,' and luck has always been against the Aldens, said John Alden, despondingly, to his sister.

'How, John?' Susy turned her round bright face attentively toward him.

'Look at grandfather George Alden and his sons? Why, their estate was the richest on the Ohio shore. They lived like Irish kings, I've heard people say, and excepting father, they all died penniless.'

'Grandfather Alden, I am sorry to say, was too fond of horse racing and cards to keep money long, and his sons, excepting father, all drank,' said Susy, dryly. 'Living like Irish kings, too, is not the most secure way of keeping a fortune.'

'Well, now; look at me,' continued John, with the scowl on his face unaltered. 'I neither drink nor gamble, nor care for the turf, I'm nineteen, and I've tried honestly to do my duty in every way.'

'Well, John?'

'Well'—snappishly—'see the difference between me and George Harvey. At school, study as hard as I could, he carried off all the prizes. I was the dull plodder, he the brilliant scholar, the genius. When visitors came, I heard him pointed out invariably as 'Harvey, sir. A most promising fellow. He'll make mark in the world.' I was passed by without a word.

'When we go into society it is the same thing. I take the utmost pains to be polite and attentive to the girls, and Harvey laughs and quizzes and is positively rude to them. Yet he is 'splendid' and 'fascinating;' and the nicest girls are proud to have him for a partner, while I am endured on sufferance. There is precisely the same difference in business. In every way he is favored by fortune and I am slighted.'

'I do not see that, John,' said Susy, gravely; 'George has a showy, dashy manner, which commands attention to whatever he knows. But people soon find out how little that is. Even girls in the long run.'

'I hate the 'long run!' cried John, impatiently.

Susy was silent. She knew very well that this outbreak was all owing to the fact that Laura Falke had shown some attention to George Harvey the night before. He always did care too much for Laura Falke's opinion since they went to the primary school together, thought Susie, indignantly. 'And as for business,' she said aloud, 'I do not see that George has any advantage over you in his position. You both have been left farms, both are independent, both have the means of making a sure, though not a large income.'

Now that shows how little you know about it. Harvey's farm numbers just the same amount of acres that mine does, it is true. But he is on the south side of the creek, in rich, alluvial soil, mine on the hillside, where nothing will grow but pine trees and Jimson weeds.

Haloo! What's the matter, Jack, said Squire Hall, riding up to the porch on his grey mare.

I was grumbling about my patch here, to tell the truth. It will yield nothing, absolutely nothing.

Don't be too sure about that, my boy. Come out here a bit, beckoning him mysteriously aside.

They whispered for some time together and then John came in, his face flushed and his eyes glowing.

There's great news, Susy! Oil has been discovered in the bottom, and a company from New York has sent on inspectors to test the property on either side of the creek, among the rest Harvey's and mine. If there are any indications of oil being there, we can ask our own price for the land.

Oh, John, I knew all would go well with you.

The little girl's face was bright and sparkling, and her brother stooped and kissed it heartily.

The inspection is to be made to-morrow, and then I'm made or lost for life. If only luck is not against me!

God will be for you in any case, John, said Susy gently.

Bad luck to John Alden which came in good fortune of dollars and cents, or even praise, was a much more real thing than the unseen power, which his sister worshipped so faithfully.

He rose the next morning with a haggard face, which showed he slept but little. To-day, he said to Susy, it will be all settled. The inspector from New York will be here by 10 o'clock. In an hour he can tell if there is any oil on the land. He is an expert, you understand. If there is any, I will sell and build a house like Squire Peter's only larger. And then Susy—who knows—I might marry. I am as old as Ben Scott.

Yes that is true.

She could not bear to discourage him by a hint of defeat. He watched nervously by the door for the men to appear and when he saw them coming—the New York expert, one or two of the proposed stockholders in the new company, and Squire Peters himself—he snatched up his hat and hurried down the road to meet them.

Even Susy's heart throbbed fast. She told herself in vain that it was not a matter of life and death; it seemed to her that her own fate as well as John's depended on a few words to be spoken in the coming half hour.

The hour passed. She had seen the groups of men passing from point to point of the farm, until they turned to the right of a big red barn, and disappeared in the corn patch. After that they were lost to sight.

Noon came. One o'clock. The dinner was ready, but she dare not sound the horn. The inspection was not successful, and they were now bargaining for the sale of the farm. Would they give the money in cash? Hundreds—thousands—a million? Susy's ideas on the subject of the price of oil or oil lands was very unsettled.

Two o'clock came at last, and the dinner, do what she would, was dried to a crisp. Just as the clock struck, Squire Peters and the strangers from New York rode past the door. Susy could not help listening intently for any chance words she might hear.

'The land for the purpose of cultivation,' said the squire, 'is worthless' perfectly worthless.'

'Think so, eh? Now near New York a man would make it pay gold to the foot,' looking with half shut eyes down to the ground.

'How?'

'Berries. Finest varieties of berries;' and with that they passed out of sight.

She found him, after a long search, among the hay mows, lying on his face, his head covered with his arms.

'Oh John, what is it!'

He would not answer for a while. Then he raised his head. 'Its my luck,' he said savagely with an oath such as never crossed his lips before. 'There will be a full yield on George Harvey's farm and none on mine.'

'On yours?' breathless.

'Not a drop. Now let me alone! I want no pity;' and he stalked away into the woods.

But every cup, no matter how bitter, is drained at last. Months passed by, George Harvey received from the company a sum for his land which to his neighbors appeared a princely fortune. Derricks and mills were built. The oil poured out like water. A branch railroad was built from the city to the Harvey mills.

Harvey himself bade the village good-bye, and went to one of the Eastern cities to live. Report soon came of his lavish extravagance of Parisian clothes, of diamonds, blooded horses.

'Harvey lives like a prince,' people said to John Allen. 'He does credit to his native town.'

If there was no sarcastic emphasis on the pronoun meant, John fancied it as for himself, he was in a morbid, sullen despair for about a year. Nobody would buy his land except for oil. It was an elephant on his hands.

At least, being young and hopeful, and with Susie to urge him on, he determined to make use of his elephant.

'What are you going to do, Jack?' queried Squire Peters. 'Digging up your sheep walk?'

'Yes; berries,' was Jack's crusty answer.

The squire smiled compassionately and passed on.

Four years later Squire Peters was escorting a Mr. Hudson, from the west, about the neighborhood.

'Here is the famous 'Harvey Mill,'' he said, 'which ran out in three years, or a little more. Company broke up—terrible smash. The young fellow to whom the land belonged, too—that was a worse wreck than one of mere capital. Very promising young lad; a little frothy, superficial to be sure. But he shared the fate of many to whom the oil fever brought sudden fortune. Unexpected succeed seemed to go to his brain and made him heady. He took too extravagant dressing at first, then card playing, and at last the bottle. You may see him hanging round the tavern door now, a poor, penniless sot.'

They passed down the road, still talking of the lamentable effects of the oil speculation on the slow going, steady, steady, farmers, when the stranger stopped suddenly.

'Aha! This looks like enterprise! Whose work is this?

'Now, that,' said the squire, stroking his chin complacently, 'that is a specimen of what a different stamp of a young man from poor George Harvey can do. A miserable stone patch of a hillside, which had the luck to belong to a young fellow called Alden. He had the idea of raising fine fruit; bought the finest varieties of berries, spared no expense in manuring his ground or advertising his crops. Now, Sir, he has doubled his land, and commands the markets in the western cities. Some men are born to an inheritance of luck.'

'Or of common sense. Married?'

'No. Lives with his sister, as nice a little girl as the country side would yield. But should not wonder if the young fellow would marry some of these days. There's a certain young lady in the next town that any man might be proud to marry; but no matter about that. This piece of work before you is not the result of luck—as you see—but downright labor and skill. And the whole town is benefitted by the young man's enterprise and success.'

A Safe Investment.

Investing twenty-five cents for a bottle of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, the best throat and lung healer known. Cures coughs, bronchitis, asthma and all pulmonary complaints.

It is stated now that the Egyptian army will be reduced to 4000 men who will be provided with 18 English officers. The police force, however, will be increased by 3,000 men.

A Decided Hit.

Hagyard's Yellow Oil touches the right spot every time when applied for rheumatism, neuralgia, pain, soreness or lameness, and internally for colds, sore throat, etc., it is equally infallible.

A Wady-Halfa despatch of 24th says,—Seventy tons of stores are forwarded daily by the Sarass railway and by camels for the Nile expedition. The weather is cooler. A large force of men is massed at Assouan, including a majority of the camel corps.

An Agreeabe Surprise.

Those who try Burdock Blood Bitters as a regulator of the bowels, or to purify the blood, aid digestion, regulate the liver and kidneys, or strengthen tired nature, are agreeably surprised at the prompt benefit derived.

The British cabinet has not yet sanctioned the advance of the Nile expedition to Khartoum. They will not decide the question before the return of Lord Northbrook, the British high commissioner, who is now in Egypt. General Wolseley will be ready on November 1st to advance from Wady-Halfa to Larass.

A Successful Result.

Mr. Bloomer, of Hamilton, Ont., suffered for many years with a painful running sore upon one of his legs, which baffled all attempts to heal until he used Burdock Blood Bitters, which speedily worked a perfect cure.

The British man-of-war Rambler has received orders to proceed to Chinese water in November.

Prompt Measues.

Prompt means should be used to break up sudden colds and cure coughs in their early stages. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam does this most speedily and effectually.

Saved Him 1,800 Dollars!

Adams, N. Y., Jan. 30, 1882.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents: Having used a good deal of your Kendall's Spavin Cure with great success, I thought I would let you know what it has done for me. Two years ago I had as speedy a colt as was ever raised in Jefferson County. When I was breaking him, he kicked over the cross bar and got fast and tore one of his hind legs all to pieces. I employed the best farriers, but they all said he was spoiled. He had a very large thorough-pin, and I used two bottles of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, and it took the bunch entirely of, and he sold afterwards for $1800 (dollars.) I have used it for bone spavins and wind galls, and it has always cured completely and left the leg smooth.

It is a splendid medicine for rheumatism. I have recommended it to a good many, and they all say it does the work. I was in Witherington & Kneeland's drug store, in Adams, the other day and saw a very fine picture you sent them. I tried to buy it, but could not; they said if I would write to you that you would send me one. I wish you would, and I will do you all the good I can.

Very respectfully, E. S Lyman.

From the Akron Commercial, Ohio, of Nov. 25th, 1882.

Readers of the Commercial can not well forge that a large space has for years been taken up by Kendall's advertisements—especially of a certain Spavin Cure. We have had dealings with Dr. Kendall for many years, and we know of some large business houses in cities near by who have also dealt with him for many years, and the truth is fully and faithfully proven, not only that he is a good honest man, and that his celebrated Spavin Cure is not only all that it is recommended to be, but that the English Language is not capable of recommending it too highly.

Kendall's Spavin Cure will cure spavins There are hundreds of cases in which that has been proven to our certain knowledge, but, after all, if any person confines the usefulness of this celebrated medicine to curing spavins alone, they make a big mistake. It is the best medicine known as an outward application for rheumatism in the human family. It is good for pains and aches, swellings, lameness, and is just as safely applied to men, women and children as it is to horses. We know that there are other good liniments, but we do believe this spavin cure to be far better than any ever invented.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Hutchinson's Ranch, 12 miles north of Denver, Col. Mar. 5th, 1883.

Dr. B. J. Kendall, & Co., Gents:—For the past three years I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure. In every case of spavin, of which I have treated five, it has killed them all, and entirely removed three. In case of splint I find it has no equal, one case I had was of three years standing and the Spavin Cure removed it entirely. I had a cow get spavined and it entirely cured her. One year ago a two hundred pound block of ice fell out of a wagon striking my foot on instep and toes, it would be impossible to mash a foot worse without breaking any bones. I was taken home and carried into the house. I do not think amputation of the leg would cause any more pain. I sent for Kendall's Spavin Cure, it was all I used, and in six days I could walk around. About three weeks ago my team ran away and threw me out of the wagon, the hind wheel struck my knee. After applying several highly recommended liniments without obtaining any relief, I went for Kendall's Spavin Cure. My leg was drawn up and my knee swollen badly. In three days I was able to walk to the barn. I could go into details more fully and make this a very long letter, but will not weary you.

I am very respectfully yours, Oscar F. Hutchinson.

P. O. Lock Box, 2362, Denver City, Col.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

Santa Rosa, Cal., Feb. 9th, 1883.

B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—I feel it a duty to others suffering with the piles and falling of the rectum to write you. I have had the piles and prolapsus of the rectum for five years; for the past three years I have suffered the most agonizing pain. Tried everything without relief, but after ten days use of Kendall's Spavin Cure I have not seen nor heard of the piles since. One who has not suffered as I have cannot comprehend the great joy that I feel at being cured of a disease almost worse than death. I had a valuable young horse that had a large bunch gather on his breast bone. I tried all kinds of liniments and had it cut open without any benefit. Saw your advertisement and bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and ordered my teamster to use as directed. In less than one week the lump had disappeared.—Thinking that a liniment that would do what Kendall's Spavin Cure has done for my horse might benefit more. I tried it as a last resort.

With gratitude and best wishes for your success, I am faithfully yours, J. H. Glenn.
