THE VIRTUES OF OLD ENGLAND.

BY CHARLES MACKAY.

The virtues of old England!
We'll count them if we can
And prove to all who doubt us
What makes the Englishman;
What makey us stand the foremost
Among the brave and free!
What did our sires in days of old,
And what in ours will we.

From Agincourt and Cressy,
To Nile and Inkerman,
We've shown the wondering nations
What English valour can.
Our foes have felt our courage
In every clime and sea;
Our fathers stood like solid oak,
And so, to death, will we.

In times when evil fortune
Assail'd our country's cause,
Around the throne we rallied,
Defenders of our laws;
Around the throne and altar,
And home, the sheltering tree;
Thus did of old our loyal sires,
And so, true hearts, will we.

Our ships in ev'ry ocean
Are messengers of peace;
They carry happy tidings,
And bid the world increase.
Our traders thrive by honour,
Their words and bonds agree!
Our fathers wrote for honest gold,
And won it—so will we.

And in all times and places,
We cherish woman's worth;
Through all our isles we own her
The love—light of the earth;
To youth and age we offer
Respect and bended knee,
Thus did our sires, and taught their sons,
And so, true hearts, will we.

And if we're rich and thriving,
We'll keep an open door;
If poor ourselves the poorer
Shall taste our little store.
The hospitable wine-cup
Shall circle in our glee;
Our fathers spread the welcome board,
And so, true hearts, will we.

The virtues of old England!
We'll prove them if we can!
And show to all who doubt us
What makes the Englishman;
What makes us stand the foremost
Among the brave and free!
Thus did our sires, in days of old,
And so, true hearts, will we.

VARIETY.

SOUND SLEEP.—Any man who can bound out of bed as soon as he wakes of a cold winter morning, is worth something; no fear of his not making his way through the world creditably, because he has the elements of a promptitude, decision and energy, which guarantee success. To invalids we make a comfortable suggestion worth knowing.—If you have force of will enough to keep you from taking a second nap—and it is the "second nap" which makes its baneful influence felt on multitudes—it is better for you to lie awhile and think about it, until that feeling of weariness passes out of the limbs which you so commonly feel. But to sleep soundly, and to feel rested and refreshed when you wake up of a morning, four things are essential:—

1. Go to bed with feet thoroughly dry and warm.

2. Take nothing for supper but some cold bread and butter, and a single cup of weak, warm tea, of any kind.

3. Avoid over fatigue of body.

4. For the hour preceding bed-time, dismiss every engrossing subject from the mind, and let it be employed about something soothing and enlivening in cheerfulness.

FARM WORK.—It is a matter of great importance to the farmer, that he should lay out the work of the season before hand; and now is the time to do it. We need much more thorough system in our farming operations. Determine upon the fields you will cultivate, and what shall be alloted on oats, corn, rye, wheat, buckwheat, potatoes, and other root crops; what ditches shall be dug; and how much labor will be needed to accomplish the work. Leave nothing to be decided upon in haste. A great deal of time and mental labor will be saved by making your plans deliberately at the beginning of the year. If there are doubtful matters, consult the best farmer in your neighbourhood, and give his opinion due weight in your decision. A neighbor's experience will often save a useless expenditure of money and labor. When your plans are laid carry them out month by month, and week by week, until the year is completed. If you need capital for your legitimate business hire it. You can as well afford to pay interest for this purpose as any other business man. Turn not aside to speculation in anything you do not understand. Glory in the farm and live by it.—American Agriculturalist.

CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.—The following from the Medical World, may be very beneficial to many persons who are suffering, and subject to such a painful complaint as rheumatism:

Where one third of the male population complain, to some extent, rheumatic pains, in the fickle climate of New England, but more especially along the sea shore, physicians have it in their power to mitigate an immense amount of severe suffering by prescribing the volatile oil of mustard. It is employed as a rubefacient, being first diluted in its own weight of alcohol at forty degrees. Some patients may object to its pungent odor, but that is temporary, while the remedy may in some cases, prove a permanent cure. Make the application at least twice a day, and protect the part with soft flannel. Mustard mills are in operation in the cities generally, at which the oil may be procured, it being an article not much in demand in the arts. Were it not for detecting it by a pungent odor, this oil would have become a secret remedy for rheumatic pains years ago. A nostrum loses miraculous efficiency and curative properties on becoming known.

A forcible example of the necessity of observing accent and punctuation in reading, was afforded by the careless reader who gave the passage from the Bible, with the following pauses:—"And the old man said unto his sons, "Saddle me, the ass;" and they saddled him!"

Dr. Adams says, that one reason why the world is not reformed is because every man is bent on reforming others, and never thinks of his own ways as in need of mending.

Be not diverted from your duty by any idle reflections the silly world may make upon you—for their censures are not in your power, and consequently should not be any part of our concern.

FIRE BRANCH.

Persons Assured by this Company are not subject to any covenants or calls to make good losses which may happen to themselves or other, nor do they depend on any uncertain fund or contribution, the Capital Stock of this Company being an unquestionable security to the Assured in case of Loss or Damage by Fire.

LIFE BRANCH.

In addition to the more customary methods of Insurance, the Company likewise Assures Lives on any of the following contingencies:—

For the terms of One Year, Seven Years, or any other definite period.

For the whole continuance of Life—The Premiums to cease, after a limited number of Annual Payments.

For Two Joint Lives.—The sum assured to be paid on the death of either.

On the longest of Two or Three Lives.—The sum assured to be payable at the death of the last survivor; or,

The Survivorships.—To secure the payment of the sum assured, if a life A die before another life B.

For a sum to be payable at age 60, or at death.

Premiums on Credit.—A portion of the Premiums on Credit. Assurances may be effected in various ways, not enumerated, to meet the convenience of parties.

The important advantages afforded by the Company in the Life Branch will include the following viz:—

The Guarantee of an ample Capital, and Exemption of the Assured from liability of Partnership.

Moderate Premiums.

Large Participation of Profits by the Assured amounting to Two-thirds of its net amount, which may be applied at the option of the party effecting the Assurance:—1st. By the immediate payment of the sum so apportioned.—2nd. By an equivalent increase of the sum assured.

Small Charge for Management.—The expenses of the Office being borne in due proportion by the two Branches.

Prompt Settlement of Claims.

Policies lapsed by non-payment of the Premium may be renewed within three months, by paying the premium, with a fine of 10s. per cent., on the production of evidence to the satisfaction of the Directors of the good health of the life assured.

The Company will always be prepared to Purchase the Policies of this Office at their equitable value or will grant a New Policy in lieu thereof without any further payment of Premium, for a sum to be agreed on.

Extra Premiums, suitable to special circumstances, will be accepted to enable a party possessing a Policy on the life of another to guard against the possibility of its being vitiated by the Life departing beyond limits, or by any other cause.

Thirty Days are allowed for the Payment of Premiums after the day on which they respectively fall due.

Additional Advantages offered to Lives Assured with this Company at St. John, N. B.
