HOW THE "INITIAL OUTRAGE OF THE WAR," BELGIUM'S VIOLATION, "AWAKENED THE WORLD!"

When the Prophet Slumbered.

Woodrow Wilson to the Jacksonian Democrats, Jan. 8, 1915.
"And what a future it is, my friends! Look abroad upon the troubled world! Only America at peace! Among all the great powers of the world only America saving her power for her own people! Only America using her great character and her great strength in the interests of peace and of prosperity! Do you not think it likely that the world will some time turn to America and say, 'You were right and we were wrong. You kept your head and we lost ours. You tried to keep the scale from tipping and we threw the whole weight of arms on one side of the scale. Now, in your self-possession, in your coolness, in your strength, may be not turn to you for counsel and assistance?'"

When the Prophet Awoke.

Woodrow Wilson to the Belgians, June 19, 1915.
"The enemy committed many outrages in this war, gentlemen, but the initial outrage was the fundamental outrage of all. They, with that insolent indifference, violated the sacredness of treaties. They showed that they did not care for the honor of any pledge. They showed that they did not care for the independence of any nation whether it had raised its hand against them or not; that they were ruthless in their determination to have their will in their pleasure. Therefore, it was the violation of Belgium that awakened the world to the realization of the character of the struggle."

GOV'T RECEIVES INSURANCE ON DAIRY BUILDINGS

Part of Insurance on Buildings Burned at Sussex,
While Used as Barracks,
Had Been Held up.

Fredericton, June 25.—Hon. J. F. Tweeddale, minister of agriculture, announced this morning that the department had received upwards of $11,000 as insurance on the dairy school building at Sussex, which was destroyed by fire while occupied by troops as barracks. Of that amount $6,000 was paid some time ago but the insurance companies demurred at paying the balance, claiming that notice of occupation of the building by troops had not been given. It was proven, Hon. Mr. Tweeddale had given the required notice. This made it necessary to pay the balance of the insurance.

Stranger's Idea of St. John Streets

Says Loyalist City is Beginning to Look Down at the Heels—Streets Appear as if in the War Zone.

"What street is this?"
"King street—our principal street."
"What's this matter with it?" asked the stranger. "Has it been in the war zone?"
"Oh, no," said the native. "They've merely been digging up to have a look at the water pipes."
"Is the city that dry they have to dig up the water pipes to have a look at them? Haven't they water enough to wash some of the dirt off the sidewalks, anyway?"

"They are going to dig up the other side of the street to lay a six-inch main," said the native. "Maybe then they will have enough water to wash the sidewalks and the street too."
"St. John is beginning to look down at the heels," said the stranger. "Why don't you import a few new streets, and some paint. I have travelled about a bit recently, but I haven't seen any city that looks more like it needed some paint. Don't you know the war is over? Or do you think threadbare houses are the best camouflage against submarine attack?"

"I thought St. John had Commission form of governments and all modern improvements," added the stranger. "But I guess the city you used to call dingy old Halifax could show you something. If you had clean streets probably people would patronize their houses and that would make a big improvement in the appearance of the city. Or if the people started to paint their houses, they would make the city look better." "The paint manufacturers hereabouts can't know their business, or nothing about the art of advertising. They used to say that St. John was a 'dead city' to advertise itself, but I reckon it has something to learn. About all it ever did in that line was to advertise what nearly everybody knew, to wit, that it was a winter port of sorts. And then one time it advertised a real estate boom. So did Halifax. We spent a lot of money telling speculators in Montreal and Toronto that real estate was going up. And so it did, and now we are paying through the nose for that kind of an advertising campaign. I dare say St. John is too."

"But I don't notice much of the advertising that counts. Looking over the advertisements in St. John papers I don't notice many that have anything of a punch. The Halifax Herald can show you something in that line. New Brunswick has a number of industries turning out good products, but they are not advertised properly at home. Your stores are full of paper shoes from Upper Canada and the States, but there is no real effort to convince the people that good shoes are made in New Brunswick."

"As for export trade to England or France, how many firms in New Brunswick are going after it? The lumber operators are perhaps doing something, though mostly their efforts are confined to filling orders that come to them without effort. Other manufacturers may take orders that come to them through the Canadian Trade Commission, but how many are going out after business for themselves?"

HALF-HOLIDAY FOR POSTAL EMPLOYEES

Postmaster Sears has issued the following notice:

The government having agreed to the request of the organized postal employees for a Saturday half holiday all the year round, or at least a weekly half holiday, carrying the principle of a forty-four hour week, the half holiday is to be given on Saturday as far as possible. Hereafter, on Saturday afternoon the Post Office will be closed at 1:00 p. m. with this exception: that postage stamps will be sold at the stamp wicket as usual, the general delivery and registration wickets will remain open for business. The money order branch will be closed. There will be no letter carrier delivery on Saturday afternoon. There will be no delivery of mails on Saturday afternoons to persons who ordinarily receive their correspondence by letter carrier. No orders for letter carriers' mail for delivery at the general delivery window will hereafter be accepted, so that all the carriers may enjoy the holiday, and the outgoing mails will be despatched on Saturday the same as usual.

It is the Postmaster General's desire to see that the minimum number of clerks, messengers and postmen necessary to keep the wickets open as stated and to handle incoming and outgoing mails only remain on duty, so that as many as possible of the employees enjoy the holiday.

The public will please take notice and govern themselves accordingly.
