GERMAN HOSPICE

On the Summit of Mount of Olives, Near Jerusalem.

(London Graphic.)

To what extent the Germans had secured a hold on the sacred land of Palestine is evidenced by the numerous palatial buildings they erected, not only in and around Jerusalem, but in other parts of the country as well. As one traveller, who had ascended the Mount of Olives in pre-war days, to view the landscape over somewhat wittily remarked, all he could see was the spires of German edifices.

It was only a short time before the war that the Germans completed their great hospice, the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria Stiftung, on the summit of the Mount of Olives. Ostensibly it was a hospice and sanatorium, though in design and strength the building was nothing less than a fortress. The walls are very massive, several feet thick in places, while the various buildings contain over eighty large rooms. The site dominates the Holy City itself, and the Jordan beyond. It looked, at the time when these buildings were reared as if the Germans, under the cloak of philanthropy, had deliberately intended on some future occasion, when the partition of Turkey might be on the tapis, to make use of them for the purpose of effectually pegging out German "claims." But before that time came the Germans had, metaphorically speaking, taken Turkey to their bosom, and as happened, having erected at the hospice a powerful, wireless installation, they made the place during the war their headquarters. Our airmen bombed it several times, but examination has shown that as the result of these attacks comparatively damage has been done to the actual buildings.

When we took Jerusalem the hospice became the headquarters of General Allenby and his staff, and Tommy nicknamed the edifice the Kaiser's Palace, by which name it is now known throughout Palestine. The buildings certainly bear the German mark. At the entrance there are great stone eagles, while on the exterior walls of the church are statues of the ex-kaiser and the Empress. Then in the ceiling of the church there is a remarkable painting, an imitation of tapestry, depicting the ex-kaiser as a Crusader king with the Kaiserin as his queen. The famous Crusaders of history are shown, but such is the colossal vanity of the man, the Kaiser has the place of honor in the centre. He and the Empress are shown holding a model of the hospice, and dominating the whole picture. Adjoining the church is a high tower, where British Tommies joyfully rang the great bells on armistice day. What would the feelings of the man in buckram who some years ago posed as a Crusader have been had he witnessed the sight!

There is much talk in Jerusalem as to what should be done with the building. The Germans are said to have spent £250,000 upon it, a ridiculous sum if the building were purely intended to serve as a hospice and sanatorium. It will be recalled that the edifice was dedicated by Prince Eitel Friedrich, second son of the Kaiser, with great pomp and ceremony a few years ago. It is the opinion of many people in the Holy City that the structure should be converted into a museum housing the sacred relics and curios of the Holy Land, for which purpose it is admirably suited.

Speed of New Telegraph.

Within the past few weeks a seven-league stride has been made in high-speed telegraphy, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine. An apparatus which in actual tests has proved its ability to transmit over a single grounded wire 6,000 words a minute has been evolved.

The real significance of this escapes one until it is realized that 6,000 words set in type will fill seven and one-half standard magazine pages.

Details of what appears to be an epoch-making achievement must be withheld for military reasons. It is a war invention and has for its chief purpose the liberation of hundreds of expert operators for the signal corps without disorganizing our much-needed commercial lines. No secret is divulged, however, when the apparatus is described as a printing telegraph system depending upon a universally used recording instrument that has never before been associated with telegraphy. The system is applicable to wireless, but so far has not been actually used in connection with it.

MATCH BOX IS TRICKY.

Do this trick before a mirror: and you will actually surprise yourself. Although exceedingly simple, it is very perplexing to the onlooker. Take an ordinary match box and lay it flat on the back of your hand. At your command it will "sit up" or "lie down." Moreover, it will accomplish the task slowly or rapidly at your own will. No threads, wires, wax or weights are used. Nothing but your hand and the match box. Try it as you read this:

When placing the box on the back of your hand have the drawer open just the slightest bit. Push it together with the fingers of the hand that is placing the box. This will cause a bit of the loose skin to catch in. The box will lie perfectly flat until you push your closed-up fingers into your palm. The slightest strain will tighten the skin and the little box full of matches will gradually rise up in the most amusing manner.

To have it lie down merely relax the pressure. As you do this not a muscle or vein will move. Only the slight "pinch feeling" of the skin will keep you from fooling yourself.

Garbage Utilization.

Hogs can be made to utilize much eatable material which would otherwise be wasted, according to a statement issued by the Connecticut Agricultural College. The report calls attention to the saving accomplished in Minneapolis, where between $50,000 and $60,000 is saved annually by using swine to consume the garbage of the city instead of burning it. Whereas Minneapolis formerly operated its garbage disposal at a loss, the city now receives $1.26 per ton for its garbage as hog feed.

SPANKING DOESN'T CURE!

Don't think children can be cured of bed-wetting by spanking them. The trouble is constitutional, the child cannot help it. I will send FREE to any mother my successful home treatment, with full instructions. If your children trouble you in this way, send no money, but write me to-day. My treatment is highly recommended to adults troubled with urine difficulties by day or night. Address.

THE MARCH BLUEBIRD

The coming and going of the birds is more or less a mystery and a surprise. We go out in the morning, and no thrush of finch is to be heard; we go out again, and every tree and grove is musical; yet again, and all is silent. Who saw them come? Who saw them depart?

This pert little winter-wren, for instance, darting in and out the fence, diving under the rubbish here and there, coming up yards away—how does he manage with those little circular wings to compass degrees and zones, and arrive always in the nick of time? Last August I saw him in the remotest wilds of the Adirondacks, impatient and inquisitive as usual; a few weeks later, on the Potomac, I was greeted by the same hardy little busy-body. Does he travel by easy stages from bush to bush and from wood to wood? or has that compact little body force and courage to brave the night and the upper air, and so achieve leagues at one pull?

And yonder bluebird with the earth tinge on his breast and the sky tinge on his back—did he come down out of heaven or he told us so softly and plaintively that, if we pleased, spring had come? Indeed, there is nothing in the return of the birds more curious and suggestive than in the first appearance, or rumors of the appearance, of this little blue-coat.

The bird at first seems a mere wandering voice in the air; one hears its call or carol on some bright March morning, but is uncertain of its source or direction; it falls like a drop of rain when no cloud is visible; one looks, and listens, but to no purpose. The weather changes, perhaps a cold snap with snow comes on, and it may be a week before I hear the note again, and this time, or the next, the chance see the bird sitting on a stake in the fence lifting his wing as he calls cheerily to his mate. Its notes now become daily more frequent; the birds multiply, and, flitting from point to point, call and warble more confidently and gleefully.—John Burroughs.

SAVE TIME.

Card System in Housework Aids Greatly.

To do your various housewifely tasks—whether that includes working your own vacuum cleaner, making your own bread and tending your own baby, or simply the more complicated task of directing ten servants—in any way but on a schedule is a luxury and an extravagance, declares a student of home economics. You may like to do it without putting the work on a systematic basis. You may be too temperamental or too indolent to feel inclined to follow a schedule; but not to do so means to waste time, your own and other people's and that is just what neither you nor anyone else has any right to do during these war days. The housewife has her task of conserving food supervised and directed by the foot administration, and she entrusts the task of providing her with enough coal to the fuel administration. The department of labor takes it upon itself to conserve infant life and through widespread educational work to cut down infant and child mortality. Trees are conserved, and wheat is conserved and this is conserved. Doesn't it seem as if there ought to be a time conservator? Time this summer is as precious as these other things we have been conserving. Without making the best use of our time we shall not have time to roll surgical dressings of which the Red Cross is in such dire need. You could not tend your war garden or do any of the dozen other extra duties you have taken upon yourself to do. Really every woman must be a time conservation department unto herself. The best way to make the best of your time is to work on a schedule and to make a wise schedule for all the people who work under your direction.

Such a schedule is easily kept if you write down each day's required tasks on a plain card. The seven cards can be fastened together and hung up in a convenient place, the cards to be turned back to the right place as the days go by as a constant reminder.

process reversed." When the bey finally backed away and out, all rancor against the Turks on the score had left my soul. But I think I would not have done it if this particular bey had not been such a shrimp. In the old days "mutessarifs" were loud mouthed, carried a cudgel, frothed and stormed, but they gave you a chance to stand up to them and they commanded your respect at least, for their positiveness. This particular individual was a fair sample of the many who followed in the train of Mon Ever. He looked as if he might have poisoned a far worthier Turk than himself, or done some despicable pussyfoot rascality for the Constantinople clique, for which he had been rewarded with his present office in which he rattled around like a dried nut.

Larks in Flanders.

In Flanders where the earth was red a few short months ago, The crosses of the Allies stand like regiments a-row. There splendid in their scarlet silk The poppies soon will spring, And in the boundless blue above The larks will soar and spring. Straight up while glowing sapphire waves A world that has no end. The joyous larks on trellis wings Will carolling ascend, The peary gates of Paradise Will be their shining goal. For every bird will bear aloft A soldier's risen soul. —Minna Irving, in N. Y. Sun.

Clogged Nostrils Open Breathing Made Easy, Catarrh Cured!

New Method Very Successful

It is a new method of treatment, that of medicated air, and cannot fail to be beneficial. It goes wherever air can go, thus reaching all the affected parts. It purifies as by fire, simply burning up the disease germs. Catarrh is a non-poisonous and healing agent; it therefore acts upon the mucous tissues of the throat, nasal passages, and bronchial tubes, destroying all microbe life, and at the same time heals up all the inflamed parts. As a cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, La Grippe, as a strengthener for the throat, Catarrh is not to be equaled. It is a guaranteed cure, and is highly endorsed by prominent physicians who use Catarrh in their practice. Sufficient Catarrh for two months' use, price $1.00; smaller size 50c; at all dealers.

TURN'D THE TABLES

How the Turk Acted When Defeated.

Among the prisoners captured at Amara was the "mutessarif," the sub-governor. The British intelligence department was anxious to find out what were the prospects for an exchange of these prisoners for the nine British women who had been detained in Bagdad after their husbands had been deported, and I was asked to sound this particular "mutessarif" on the subject, writes John Van Ess in Asia. So the smoking saloon of the prison ship was placed at my disposal; I was given fancy cigarettes and a tea-service with which to play host, and His Excellency was ushered in. In the past years I have spent many weary hours on the edge of a chair in the presence of Turkish officials with hands meekly folded across my stomach, coat buttoned, knees and feet together, and head respectfully inclined forward as etiquette demanded. But now that the tables were turned I honestly did not intend to take advantage of the situation. When he entered I arose and held out my hand and asked him kindly to be seated, gave him a cigarette and poured him some tea. But despite my assurance that I was a neutral and meant only kindness he refused to be put at ease. The perspiration rolled from his forehead, his knees quaked, in his abject terror he could scarcely talk. Finally I confess I obeyed an untried impulse, "I said in my heart, 'For twenty years I have sat with bowed head before your breed. I will call it square for thirty minutes of the
