The pupils at the entrance exams in London can all pass if they want to.

Yes, Infant, they call it Si-beria because the people who live there have reason to sigh so often.

Ethel has a tall thin beau and her friends say that if she were an artist she could draw a long bow.

One scarcely dare venture out on the street these days without an umbrella, water-proof and rubbers.

For five dollars or less, I will tell the London pupils how they can all pass the entrance in all subjects except those given on the first day of the exam.

I wonder what Mayor Sulman will do with his council when he gets them to church. On second thought, I wonder how Mayor Sulman will get his council to church.

President Wm. Ball, of the Chatham Navigation Company, has the satisfaction of knowing that he guides the destiny of one of the most comfortable passenger steamers in Ontario.

Mary (whose beau is a soldier)—What Reg. do you like best? Agnes—Oh, I like Reg. Wilson pretty well.

Mary—it was the 24th Reg. I meant.

Shorty Hackett remarked Sunday that it was warm. You might think that the remark had something to do with the weather. It was only, however, another instance of where "mite was right."

Head street isn't the only place where burdocks are raised. There is a vacant lot on Raleigh street near Wellington where the careless owner is raising the finest crop of burdocks I have seen this spring.

There may be some places hotter than the Council Chamber, but I have never discovered them yet. Oh yes! I may be some day, but I am not on a hunt for a warmer place. The Council Chamber is quite bad enough, thank.

On a warm hot close day, there is nothing more cool or pleasant than a trip to Detroit on the City of Chatham. The whole journey is refreshing and Captain Cornett and his staff will see that you have a good time. I know because I took the trip.

Here's a man who worked 25 years and spent all his money in perfecting an invention that killed him when completed. It strikes me that the man who 25 years ago went to the drug store and invested 25 cents in carbolic acid probably solved the question of exit from this world a great deal easier.

A Story of Browning.

Browning himself couldn't always explain his meaning at first reading. Dr. Charnvall, founder of the English Browning society, frequently consulted the poet as to the meaning of some passage in his works. "Bless me," Browning would say, "I really have forgotten what I did mean, and as I haven't got a copy of my works by me I really can't enlighten you. Just lend me the book, there's a good fellow. I'll look it over at my leisure and try to find out what was in my mind at the time."

Realization.

"We never realize the full value of a thing until we lose it," remarked the moralist.

"That's right," remarked the practical man, "especially if the thing lost was insured."

Timely.

Laugh, and the world laughs with you; weep, and the world laughs at you.—St. Louis Star.

RUN DOWN.

When a phrase is coined out of world wide human experience it is apt to be brief and expressive. We are "run-down" we say in the endeavor to describe a relaxed physical condition, and all the terminology of medicine could not more expressively describe the actual condition than that every day phrase suggests the clock, perfect mechanism, but failing to record the passage of time because it is run-down.

People who have that tired out, run-down feeling will find new life in the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This great medicine is far more than a tonic. It cures diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food of which alone all physical strength is made.

"The reason I delayed writing was because I wanted to wait one year after I had taken the medicine before giving my statement, and now I can send a good, conscientious testimonial," writes Mr. Chas. H. Sergeant, of Plain City, Ohio. "During the summer and fall of 1931 I became 'run-down,' nerves were full of order and stomach out of order. I wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. He said I had general debility, and advised Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and thanks to you for your advice I used six bottles, and since I stopped taking it about one year ago, I have not taken any medicine of any kind, and I do not feel that three quarters as tired as I did when I began. My blood and nerves are in good shape, and, well—in fact, I think I am in pretty good running order."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets keep the bowels active and healthy.

FASHION HINTS.

Foulard General Utility Gowns.

Belize and Ecru Laces.

Some smart Paris gowns are made of silk linen ornamented with huge chevron spots or woven linen spots. Scarlet or green with spots in white is most effective.

Foulards in dark shades spotted in white make charming shirt waist costumes with unlined waists and skirts. They are trim and most useful for ordinary occasions. The only trimming consists in a few clusters of tucks.

Belize and ecru laces are now so much the fashion that white laces hardly have any sale at all except for underwear. Belize net ornamented with big spots is considered ultra smart this year.

The new velvets are of very fine make and artistic coloring. They closely resemble silk velvets and are much nicer than the wavy fabrics of old.

The carriage wrap shown is of pale gray peau de sole lined with gray silk. The wide sleeves have frilled under-sleeves of net, and the wide collar is trimmed with bands of black velvet. There is a soft jabot with long ends of ecru lace.

A small girl told a falsehood. Her mother, with great dignity, led the youthful offender to the library and, sitting down beside her, said: "You know, Katharine, grandma has gone to heaven and papa has gone to heaven, but if you and I both go to heaven, we will be together again."

The little maiden looked very grave for a moment and said, "Say a swear word, mamma, and come to the other place too."

The Better Choice.

"Ze Miss Millyons, it is said, spent thousands of dollars on ze bouquets alone, my dear count," observed the baron. "She is ze one for you."

"No, my dear baron," was the reply. "I will make ze proposal to her milliner."

Exclusiveness.

"Pauline is very exclusive, isn't she?" "Oh, yes; quite. She never introduces an eligible man to any other girl."

THE MEADOW ORCHID

WHY THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE CALL IT "THE CUCKOO'S TEARS."

A Legend of the Land of the Czars That Deals With Magic, Love and Happiness and One Result of the Fatal Feminine Tongue.

One warm Sunday afternoon the village maidens assembled to bathe in the river. They took off their kerchiefs and their coronet headresses, seated themselves on the bank to cool off and began to gossip. One maiden alone sat silent, Froysa, with fair skin and eyes as blue as the gentian, which the Russians call "the flight of the falcon." So the other girls began to tease her: "Have you no dearly beloved friend, Froysa? Who is he, where is he? Is he handsome, is he rich?"

"Where should a poor girl get a rich and handsome young lover? Yonder adorer is my husband."

No sooner had she said this than all the maidens cried, with one accord. "The adorer!" and took to their heels. And upon her kerchief, which Froysa had thrown upon the grass, beheld a huge black adder lay coiled. She cried out in fear. But the adder beat its tail upon the ground and was transformed into a wonderfully handsome young man. There he stood before her, with a golden cap upon his flowing curls, his eyes flashing fire, and honeyed words fell from his lips. And he said to her: "Did you mean it when you declared that you were ready to marry the adorer?"

She knew not what reply to make, but gazed at him and thought to herself, "Whence came such a wise and handsome youth?" And he, divining her thoughts, replied to them, "I am no common man, but the czar of the waters, and my empire is close at hand in a deep pool on golden sands."

And he read in her eyes that she consented to go with him. Then he grasped her with his powerful hand, and together they sank down into the deep realm of the waters.

Great was Froysa's happiness. She could not believe it. He was so good, so wise, she had never seen such people, and there is none such anywhere as the czar of the waters. But Froysa was foolish. Seven days did she dwell with him in the deep pool in his palace of crystal, and the seven years passed as one day, and there need not have been any end to her bliss. A girl at all at once, without any cause, she became sad, longed for the earth, to behold her native hamlet and her friends once more. So he let her go, with the children, for three days after having exacted a promise that neither she nor the children, either by word or by deed, should reveal the name of her husband or where she lived. And all this she promised, with fearful oaths. Then her husband escorted her to the dam. At the end of three days she was to come to the same spot and cry "Cuckoo!" three, whereupon he would swim at once to meet her.

She kept her oath, but her friends teased and questioned the children. The boy to all queries replied simply, "I don't know." But the girl told everything. This was all the envious gossips wanted. They ran and told all to their husbands and brothers, who immediately ran to the dam and uttered the magic words. And when the czar appeared they bent him to death. But before he died he contrived to say to Froysa: "I have to thank thee, my dear wife, that I am now come to my death through thee and my daughter. Henceforth fly thou ever as a gray cuckoo and repeat thou every my call, 'Cuckoo!' in the heart from early spring until St. Peter's day (St. Peter's day, June 29 (July 12, O. S.)), and from that day forth may every bird, both great and small, beat thee and pursue thee. And mayest thou, my daughter, my betrayer, be turned into a little bush, and may that weevil, the derry, forever burn thee eyes whereover thou mayest see, that thou mayest weep forever, remembering thy father's oath. But to my loyal son, who kept his father's command, I make this bequest: That he shall be the bird beloved which dwells and sings in gardens and amid shady groves for the joy of happy people, for the consolation of those who weep, the nightingale."

And from that day forth the Russian people have called the meadow orchid "the cuckoo's tears." (It is also known as "the cuckoo's slippers.")—Isabel F. Haggood in New York Post.

"No, my dear baron," was the reply. "I will make ze proposal to her milliner."

Pure Blood is the Secret of Health.

Nothing in the human body is so precious and needs more care than the Blood, it is the source of Life, the Key of Health.

It is through the blood that all diseases are taken. Persons having impoverished blood are always the first victims of contagious diseases.

When a doctor wants to enrich the blood he prescribes wine, and the most prominent physicians especially recommend the use of

Vin & Michel
