Charming Summer Resort

Two interesting little books of the illustrated folder type have been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway System, one being entitled "Songs of the Nipissing," and the other "The Eastern Coast of Lake Huron." The illustrations are very numerous, and of all sizes, and are scattered through the pages to elucidate the text and appear to the eye just as the story told in the letter press does to the mind. The prevailing note in these little works, upon which a profitable half hour may be spent by the reader, is the craving for change, and there can be no doubt that men and women who live in the stress and strain of to-day, and feel the throbs of advanced and advancing civilization, do require change—complete change for mind and body. The haunts described here minister to the intellectual as well as the physical health of jaded dwellers in cities. The physical exercises that can be obtained among the woods and waters create and promote a perfectly sound bodily condition, while the multifarious life that is to be found, stimulates the intellectual faculties and prompt inquiry and investigation into nature's ways are revealed in her flora and fauna. The maps which are in these pamphlets enable the visitor to the wilds, to realize his bearings at whatever part he may be, and the general information given enables him to economize his time and spend it to the best advantage.

Copies may be had on application to W. E. Rispen, 115 King Street, Chatham.

PREHISTORIC EGYPT.

Prof. Flinders Petrie and Staff Have Had a Successful Season.

Professors Petrie and his companions have had a successful winter's work, as was seen from the exhibition at University College, London, just opened to the public. Dr. Grenfell and Dr. Hunt had been in the Fayum; the Professor, also on behalf of the Egypt Exploration Fund, continued work in Abydos, and Messrs. Caulfield and Christie investigated the Temple of Sety, at the same place, on behalf of the Egyptian Research account. Built by a Pharaoh who flourished about 13 centuries before the Christian era this temple was intended as a funerary chapel for the Kings of the First Dynasty, whose burial places are near at hand, for at Abydos. We came in touch with the earliest age of Egyptian history. For the last two years Professor Petrie had been at work exploring the almost primeval site, and some of the results were in view. On the table are specimens of the sandstone grinders used by the workmen of that bygone age to hollow out their skillfully-wrought bowls and vases of ornamental stones, on the table are pieces of shells, green glazed pottery, carnelian, and garnet.

Not the least interesting objects reproductions of two tombs belonging to the earlier half of the First Dynasty. They were cut in the made ground about the town, and lined with brickwork; the corpse was laid in the middle, possibly beneath an inner shelter of wood. Round this were placed jars of alabaster, vases of other stone, and earthenware vessels of various shapes, some of them blackish in color, but more usually of shapes of red. A common shape was that of the Roman amphora without its handle, and were well executed. The graves fortunately had escaped rifling, and remained, allowing for natural decay, as they had been left by the mourners some 50 centuries ago—for the date of Menes, the founder of the dynasty, may be fixed, according to Professor Petrie, not many years later than 4800 B. C. Indeed, not a few of the relics which have been obtained from Abydos during the last three winters are anterior to the time fixed by Lusher for the creation of the world.

Tombs of the Thirteenth Dynasty—some 2300 B.C.—proved especially fruitful. In one of these, a unique silver pilgrim bottle, with a hinged stopper, and a well-made little ivory tray, and many other relics were found. A large granite head of a king in the preceding dynasty was remarkable for its bold execution. Belonging to a much later date—about the Thirtieth Dynasty, or not long before the days of Alexander the Great, was a collection of Ushabti, little figures of glazed pottery which were placed in tombs, to be the soul of the deceased in the next world. Two sets are exhibited, the older inferior in execution and with a dull greenish-blue glaze, the newer, though belonging only to the next generation, of much better workmanship, and with a brilliant blue and purple glaze.

Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt obtained a large collection of curious objects from the animal mummies, especially those of the sacred crocodile—belonging to the Ptolemaic and earlier Roman period. Among these were rods giving the measurements of the deceased reptile—doubtless directions to the workmen who made the mummy case, and the wooden models of the creature, one of which had a moveable lower jaw. That, however, was not all. The mummy, whether animal or human, was wrapped in and padded with papyrus. "Just as newspaper would be used," before it was enclosed in the outer cloth. But papyrus, probably, was not cheap so that which had been written on was employed for the corpse. Like perfumes and pepper in the days of Horace. Old documents served as a breast cloth or stuffed the feet-covering of the dead.

Controlling Chrysanthemum Rust.

This disease has been very prevalent in some parts of the middle west, and Prof. J. C. Arthur in Bulletin 85, Indiana experiment station, discusses methods of controlling it. He calls attention to the fact that it is a fungous disease and has been known in this country for a number of years. It appears only upon a true chrysanthemum and not upon daisies, costmary or any of the Grand Trunk Railway System. It is a native of Japan and was introduced through commercial agencies. In this country it does not spread rapidly and consequently ought to be easily controlled when first detected. The fungus attacks the leaves, and is carried by a small insect, the chrysanthemum thrips, which is found on the underside of the leaves. Hand-picking with a dust of kerosene or sulphur, or spraying with a mixture of kerosene and sulphur, will assist in checking the fungus.

How to Encourage Weeds.

Any cultivation which merely breaks up the root stock and leaves them in the ground, especially during wet weather, aids in their distribution and multiplication and is worse than useless unless the cultivation is continued so as to prevent any growth above ground. Plowing and fitting corn ground in April and May and cultivating at intervals until the last of June, then leaving the land uncultivated during the remainder of the season, is one of the best methods that could be pursued to encourage the growth of couch grass, Johnson grass and many other perennial weeds.

Employment for Wet Days.

Wet days can be utilized to good purpose by disinfecting and whitewashing the stables, pigpens and poultry houses, etc. Sulphur is a cheap and effective disinfectant; burn the sulphur in an iron vessel and keep doors and windows closed for some hours. A good coat of lime whitewash disinfects, purifies and makes the building lighter and more healthy.

WORLD OF SPORT

BASEBALL

The McKough & Trotter baseball team defeated the Drader mills team Saturday evening by a score of 25-11. When McKough & Trotter's went to bat for their second innings the score stood 3-0 against them, but they soon got on to Pritchard's curves and hit him unmercifully, making 12 runs in their third and 10 in their fourth. The game by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	Total
Draders	3	1	0	4	3	11
McKough & Trotter	0	3	13	10	7	25

Pritchard and Papst; Braden and Trotter.

The Briscos say that the game between the Briscos and Brooklins the other night made it a tie between the clubs and that they will play the decisive game next Friday evening at 6.30. For the game tickets will likely be sold. The Brisco supporters say they will surely win this time, as a few changes will be made in the team.

The Aberdeens, a new club made up principally of C. C. I. boys, under the management of Austin and the captaincy of Jack McGuire, will play the Bickers on Wednesday of next week. The Aberdeen battery will be J. Robert and Campbell.

The Tecumseh Park diamond for civic holiday, Monday the 11th, will be taken by the Aberdeens. They will play the Draders in the morning, and some outside team with whom manager Austin is communicating with, in the afternoon.

There is no doubt but what a city league of the many different and good teams of the city can be formed. It would undoubtedly be a great success, as everyone would like to see a series of games during the remainder of this month and would lend hearty and financial support. Deputations from the different clubs and all interested in the league are requested to meet on Thursday evening in the store next to Brosco's at eight o'clock and arrangements will likely be made.

THE GUN

HAMILTON TOURNEY. The Planet is in receipt of the program of the second annual tournament of the Dominion Trap Shooting and Game Protective Association to open at Hamilton on the 14th inst. Among the affiliating clubs is the Maple City Gun Club, which will probably be represented at the three-day tourney.

The Cause of Nervous Headache

This most distressing and common malady doubtless has its origin in some unbalanced condition of the nervous system. Probably the simplest, safest and most efficient remedy is Poisson's Nervine. Twenty drops in sweetened water gives immediate relief, and this treatment should be supplemented by bathing the region of pain with Nervine. To say it acts quickly fails to express the result. Sold everywhere in large 25c. bottles.

BY THE WINDOW

Husband Effectuated Entrance to His Chatham Home and Removed Belongings.

NOTICE.

My wife, Silena, has left my bed and board, and I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by her.
GEO. A. BAIRD.
Chatham, July 31st, 1902.

Quite a romantic little story hovers around the above notice, which appeared in the columns of The Planet on Friday. The husband, Geo. A. Baird, is a South African "hero," having gone with the Kingston Gunners when the first call was made for Canadian soldiers. The wife is an ex-music teacher and comes from one of the best families of Ridgeway.

The marriage occurred shortly after the former returned from South Africa. They moved to Chatham a short time ago and have been living here ever since, residing on Lansdowne avenue.

One morning last week Mrs. Baird "locked up," and went up town to do some shopping. Shortly after her departure her partner in life and a companion made their appearance at the rear of the house. They both approached the back door, but, alas! it was locked. The husband, however, was quite undaunted. He quietly lifted one of the chair windows, which had been left unlocked, and crawled in. Pretty soon a trunk made its appearance through the window and the foxy "hubby" followed it out. The trunk was placed up on the driver's seat of the cab. Mr. "Hubby" took his position inside, and that is the last that has been seen of either Mr. Baird or the trunk.

Mrs. Baird returned home at noon, only to find that the man had departed, taking all of his belongings with him. Then, to cap the climax, the foregoing notice came out in the paper. Mrs. Baird, however, wishes it understood that the notice conveys a very wrong impression.

"I did not leave him," she said. "No wife could have been more attentive to him than I was. He left of his own free will, and I will not attempt to follow him."

Mrs. Baird has learned since that her husband went to Detroit. The unfortunate wife returned to-day to her home in Ridgeway.

A SONG FOR THE TWENTIETH CENTURY.

We tread a better earth 'o-day
Than that the fathers knew,
A broader sky line rounds away
To realms of deeper blue.
More ample is the human right,
More true the human ken;
The law of God has been a light
To lead the lives of men.
He led our generation on
In mist of smoldering fire;
To more than all the centuries gone
The marching years aspire.
Across the onward sweep of time
We strain our vision dim,
And all the ages roll and climb
To lose themselves in him.
We gaze upon the ancient past—
A blind and tumbling surge,
And slowly, from the weltering vast
Behold a law emerge.
The water seemed to heave and sway
In chaos undimmed;
Yet not a foam flake drove astray,
For He was wind and tide.
O purpose of the stumbling years,
O wiseful Need and Hope,
Whereby in all the woven spheres
The atoms yearn and grope;
Flow through the wandering will of man
And merge our strivings in the plan
That draws the world to thee.
—Frederick Langbridge.
