During the autumn a party of farmers had been muliet fishing on Therry Grove Beach, a few miles from here. On Monday, November, 15, John Stephens, fifteen years old, the son of one of the farmers, left the party for his home on the Waccamaw River,

He took with him an ox and cart, and carted a package of money which his father had entrusted to him. The father reached home on the following Friday night, and found that nothing had been seen or heard of his son. He returned
