

MRS. NACK IN THIELS.

Did Martin Thorn Help to Butcher Guldensupe?

HER BODY COVERED WITH QUISSES

The Cloth in which the Re. Were Found Like Some She-Bed Thorn and the Vaile-Thorn Skinned Talks About Him-The Comes Clever.

New York, July 1.—Info now comes to the belief that lead of William Guldensupe was from the house of Mrs. Augustus at least at 1 o'clock last. The afternoon, and that it was done in a leather valise by two led given to a man named Martin who stood on the corner of Street and 110th avenue. The man asked the boys to deliver a no. Mrs. Nack. They did so. She the note hasty, scribbled a few in reply and handed them a long valise along with her note.

The boys, Joseph Rile and John Hinchee, handed the valise to Thom.

Thom paid them a dollar doing the errand.

Martin Thorn wanted to rid of William Guldensupe, going to Constantine Keene. For months Keene and Thorn worked together in Conrad Vogel's barber on 6th avenue.

Keene still works the according to Keene, Thorn said he desperate struggle with Guldensupe about Mrs. Nack. Thom had revolver out. Guldensupe took off his hands. "If he hadn't, I'd have killed him."

Thorn bought a silvered a revolver. Thom hunted all the city for cartridges, said he also wanted to rid of Guldensupe, but he didn't know how. He boasted every day that Mrs. Nack gave him all the money he wanted. Thorn said Monk didn't care for Guldensupe, was only afraid of him.

Keene talked freely in a straightforward manner, Thorn.

Thorn came here about months ago, and has been working.

Both of his eyes were black.

"What's the matter?" asked.
