

THE TEMPTATION.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

A WILD BEWILDERING HOPE BURSTS ON PHILIP WESTON—HE AND JIM TAKE A JOURNEY AND MAKE DISCOVERIES.

Smoothing out the folds, he handed the envelope to the postmaster, that he might read the address, hastily hoping, however, that either the name or the handwriting would produce on the latter any noticeable effect. In this he was wonderfully mistaken, for no sooner had the man read the superscription than a light of recognition beamed in his eye, immediately exclaiming—

"I remember this quite well. I have reason to do so, for the circumstances connected with the posting of it were such as to impress it on my recollection."

"Ha!" cried Philip, "and what were these?"

"Why, one, and the most important to me, was that after it was posted it was demanded back again, and I refused to give it, which of course, gentlemen, you know I was bound to do, for the moment a letter is dropped into the slip outside it is the property of the Postmaster-General, and can be delivered only to the person to whom it is addressed."

"True, true; but why was it demanded back, and by whom?"

"Not by the party who posted it, though, indeed, that would have made no difference—but by the man who had her in charge. It was quite natural for him to wish it back. I could easily understand that, though I could not see why he should have become so furious because I would not give it, seeing that it could do no harm to the party to whom it was addressed. Have I not been right, and does your coming here point to anything important?"

"Tell me first," exclaimed Philip, breathlessly—"tell me why you thought it could do no harm?"

"Because it was written by a poor, insane girl, whose ravings need have been heeded by no one."

"How know you?"

"Because I saw her."

"Saw her—where?"

"On the street close to my window. It was a sad thing, gentlemen, to see such a young and beautiful girl die of reason, and under such a pitiful delusion. My heart bled for her, and all who saw her were filled with compassion. But, alas, we could do nothing."

"For God's sake, tell me all about this," said Philip, in a tone of agony, and with an excitement which he vainly sought to suppress. "If you only knew the cause I have to seek to know the truth you would not keep me a moment in suspense. Quick, as you are a man—quick, and tell me all."

"Bless you, sir, I know very little, but what little I do know you are welcome to have. On the morning of the 13th October—I would not have known the date so exact if I had not seen it on this envelope—neighbor Brooks, the grocer, and I were standing talking outside just after opening our shops, when we saw a young girl flying along the road towards the village, in a wild and frantic state. She was bare-headed and thinly clad, and seemed to have been wandering all night in the rain, for her clothes were wet and stained with mire. A little way behind her was a cart rattling on at full speed, with a man and a woman in it. They seemed to be in pursuit of the girl, and made up to her just as she was entering the Square. She rushed towards us, and besought us to save her from the man who was after her, and who just at that moment leaped from the van and seized her. She struggled with him, and as he was rough with her we were going to interfere when he told us that was insane, and had made her escape from his keeping the night before."

The body of an unfortunate man named N. Loveland, living on Caroline-st. south, formerly employed as a moulder in Copp's foundry, has been found in the Hamilton bay. The feet and hands were tied together tightly with a piece of ordinary rope, such as is used for clothes-lines; but the knot in the rope upon the wrists was a slip one, and might have been done by himself. The occurrence has caused a sensation. Is it suicide or murder?

REMOVAL.

W. D. Hepburn & Comp'y

Have removed their Boot and Shoe Store to the very extensive premises on the Corner of Wyndham-st. and St. George's Square.

Their old store being too small on account of the continual increase in the Wholesale Manufacturing, as well as in the Retail Departments, they have now fitted up the new and much larger place in first-class style, and would intimate to their very numerous customers and the public generally that, having increased the facilities for manufacturing they are now able to offer to the public first-rate goods in all branches, at lower prices than ever before.

Custom Work in all its Branches made

TO ORDER.

Repairing done neatly and cheap as heretofore.

The public are cordially invited to visit the new store, and examine our Goods.

Iron in the Blood

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protocitrate of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damage, and warding off disease, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhoea, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.
