Danesbury House.

"I can not understand you," emphatically said Mr. St. George, as he noticed the signs. "You are evidently deeply attached to Miss Danesbury, yet you will not let me put my opinion in, that you and Miss Danesbury should not meet, unless things change, you can go on more satisfactorily."

"Perhaps you wish to prohibit my calling at your house to see her?" he said.

"I don't mind," said Mr. St. George, "but I would not want you to go there."

Lord Temple nodded. "I thought you had left off play?" "You may depend I will leave it off," he said. "They do not catch me losing £3,000 again. And I have nothing about losing this. I should not have done it, had I been in my senses."

"I do not understand you," said Mr. St. George. "It was that cursed drink," returned Lord Temple. "Still I do not understand."

"Why, it was in St. James' street," explained Lord Temple, "kicking the toe of the foot against the fence. I went in with Anketel, the night before last, three paces, for I had been drinking wine freely, and I threw myself on a sofa, and to sleep went. I declare that is all I remember of it."

"I am sure I gave it. For I would believe Anketel, and Swallowtail, who told me, brought it to show me. It was my own writing, plain enough; rather shaky, but still mine."

"Swallowtail—Swallowtail!" said Mr. St. George. "Ah, he is much about gambling saloons, and I have seen him. The less you have to do with him the better."

UGANDA MUST BE HELD.

The following satirical jingle from Truth has been republished in the Empire: Goosy, goosy, gander, whither will you wander? All over Africa and in and out of Uganda: The British goose is coming with sounding roll of drum.

Goosy, goosy, gander, choose a brave commander. Goosy, goosy, gander, award, pray, cheerfully will pay your way, send you to Uganda.
