"No matter how you look, you ought, not to go. You are just making fun of it, as you always do of everything. No matter, you can have all the fun you like, but the whole thing is settled; you are not going away at all—you are going, to stay here," she concluded, with most decided but winning emphasis.
"Oh, I am not going? Well, that is

"Is it something dangerous?" asked the girl apprehensively.

"Oh, well, enough to make it interesting."
But Edith did not respond to his wellimulated humor. She drew her hand way, and Thorne fancied with a leap of heart that she did it with reluctance

"Don't be angry with me if I ask you again about your orders. I must know."
"But why?" asked Thorne curiously.
"No matter, tell me."

"I can't do that. I wish I could," he aswered with a slight sigh.
"You needn't," said the girl triumph-

Miss Mittord's intervention.
The Captain stared after her departing figure; he listened to her footfalls on the stairs, and then came to an instant resolution. He would take advantage of her opportune withdrawal. He turned back to the table, seized his hat, and started for the door, only to come face to face with another charming young woman, who stood breathless before him, to his great and ill-concealed annoyance. Yet the newcomer was pretty enough and young enough and sweet enough to give any man pause for the sheer pleasure of looking at her, to say nothing of speak

Noted Stage Beauty Says She Was Away on Automobile Trip.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 11.-May 1, 1912. "Where—to Petersburg—to the front?"
"We can't always tell where orders will take us," he said evasively, again sitting down beside her on the iounge.

He could scarcely tear himself away from her, from the delicious yet painful emotion aroused by her presence. He ought to have gone long since, yet he was with her, as he supposed, for the last time. Surely he might induge himself a little. He loved her so desperately, so hopelessly.

"But listen," said the girl; "supposing there were other orders—orders from a higher authority, appointing you to duty here?"

"But world art always tell where orders will take us," he said expectant, looking at nim. She had gone as far as a modest woman might. Now the initiative was his. She could only wait.

"No," said the man at last, by the exercise of the most iron self-control and repression, "you shall not have this against me, too."

New York had enlisted the attention of the police of several cities, stepped in the world have said. And love gave her courage. The frankness of war was in the air. If this man left her now, she might never see him again. She was a woman, but she could not let him go without an effort.
