Movement to Raise a Fund of $2,000,000,-

London Cable to Philadelphia Press.

Somewhat over a month ago there was published here a cabled synopsis of a proposition that has been submitted to leading Roman Catholics in Europe to take advantage of the serious financial difficulties in Italy and raise a fund for purchasing Rome with the idea of re-establishing the temporal power of the Pope.

To-day The London Daily Telegraph printed a copy of the circular. The Telegraph says it has received the document "through a source amply guaranteeing its serious inspiration and practical purpose." After giving a historical review of later anti-Catholic demonstrations in Italy, it asserts that the country is bankupt already; the national debt has been increased since last December by nearly £3,000,000 and yet a deficit for the next year is already certain by nearly £3,000,000 while the triple alliance continues there can be no possible decrease in taxation, but a constant increase.

no possible decrease in taxation, but a constant increase.

Nothing less is proposed than that the Catholic countries and peoples of the world should combine to ransom Rome to those familiar with the working of the Roman Ontholic communion, and with the intensity of desire which animates the Catholic Church to secure the perfect independence of its spiritual head.

"It would not be difficult to believe that if the scheme is once set on foot a large sum of money may be collected and placed in the hands of Leo XIII. The Portiff, with £200,000,000 at his disposal, would have it in his power to deal with the distracted and bankrupt Government of the Italian King. It would rest with the Pope to meet the Government with proposals-faat might restore peace, unity and prosperity to Italy.

"The claim which the Roman Catholic Church would make upon Italy in return for the benefits referred—to would be the independence of Rome and of a Roman port guaranteed by Italy and by the powers of Europe to the Roman Pontiff: that the Italian postoffice, telegraphs, railways and certain other services might run through
