Our new Cultural Centre in Paris will assist Canadians in France, especially students, and bring to the French people information about Canada, reflecting our bilingual and bicultural character and the many cultural strands that make up the Canadian fabric. The director of the Centre is Mr. Guy Viau, who was Assistant Director of the National Gallery here before taking up his new responsibilities. Mr. Viau is particularly well qualified for the job, and I am sure that the Centre, under his direction, will forge new ties between Canada and France. discussed with several members of the German Federal Government ways

The interest of the French Government and the people in the new Centre and in Canada as a meeting-place of two great cultures was well expressed by the French Government's representative at the inaugural ceremonies, Mr. Léo "Hamon, who said: bi olivaw allamana a na becorned bagras aw . "What makes your country unique is the imbrication and the juxtaposition of its two cultures. This Centre will fully reflect the originality and the wealth of resources of a country intent on retaining its own personality in the New World notwithstanding the size and power of its southern neighbour, which can be achieved only by preserving its Community, particularly in relation to gradu product withir and out of trans-

In Paris I met with the French Foreign Minister, Mr. Maurice Schumann. The principal subject we discussed was our bilateral relations, and the most important part for me was Mr. Schumann's categorical statement that the French Government has absolutely no intention of intervening in the internal affairs of Canada. If there is no misunderstanding between us about this, and I hope there is not, our problems will be easier to deal with in the future.
