

CHAPTER IV.

We begin our preparations for sowing.—Gadflies.—Mosquitoes.—Harrowing experiences.—A huge fly.—Sandflies.—The poison of insects and serpents.—Winter wheat.—The wonders of plant-life.—Our first "sport."—Wood-peckers.—"Chitmunks."—The blue jay.—The blue bird.—The flight of birds	57
---	----

CHAPTER V.

Some family changes.—Amusements.—Cow-hunting.—Our "side-line."—The bush.—Adventures with rattlesnakes.—Garter-snakes.—A frog's flight for life.—Black squirrels	74
---	----

CHAPTER VI.

Spearing fish.—Ancient British canoes.—Indian ones.—A bargain with an Indian.—Henry's cold bath.—Canadian thunderstorms.—Poor Yorick's death.—Our glorious autumns.—The change of the leaf.—Sunsets,—Indian summer.—The fall rains and the roads.—The first snow.—Canadian cold.—A winter landscape.—"Ice-storms."—Snow crystals.—The minute perfection of God's works.—Deer-shooting.—David's misfortune.—Useless cruelty.—Shedding of the stag's horns	89
--	----

CHAPTER VII.

Wolves.—My adventure with a bear.—Courtenay's cow and the wolves.—A fright in the woods by night.—The river freezes.—Our winter fires.—Cold, cold, cold!—A winter's journey.—Sleighing.—Winter muggings.—Accidents through intense cold	127
---	-----

CHAPTER VIII.

The aurora borealis.—"Jumpers."—Squaring timber.—Rafts.—Camping out.—A public meeting.—Winter fashions.—My toe frozen.—A long winter's walk.—Hospitality.—Nearly lost in the woods	142
--	-----