Pte. Robert Mole Describes His Experience in Langemarck Action.

Pte. Robert Mole, a former resident of West Toronto, has written an account of his escape from Langemarck. While fighting northeast of Ypres he was on sentry duty and saw a German was on sentry duty and saw a German observation balloon drop four lights. He immediately scanned the German line and could see a greenish gas arising in front of their trenches. The wind soon blew it over and caused the men to cough and made their eyes smart. They opened out with a heavy smart. They opened out with a heavy rifle fire, however and the Germans could not follow up their green smoke with bayonets. He was wounded in the shoulder by a bullet from a shrapnel shell. He took refuge in a dugout, but when the orders came to result with a settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of the three years, cultivate fifty acres, and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to result the results of the strength of the str nel shell. He took refuge in a dug-out but when the orders came to re-tire he had to walk thru open country in the midst of a heavy rifle and mahine gun fire, with men dropping all around him. He reached the dressing station in safety, where his wound was attended to.
