WOMAN'S WORLD.

A Word to Mothers.

How little many mothers seem to realize the dangers of allowing their daughters to parade the public streets in the evenings! It is very sad to see bright young girls having all the fresh bloom of their young womanhood torn aside by the rough and tumble manners of the street. If their mothers knew the type of men and boys that their daughters scrape acquaintance with they would be horrified. But the mothers, it is presumed, know nothing of the situation. They think their little girls are so sweet and pure that nothing can harm them. The truth is, however, that these children are made of the same clay as the rest of us, and are just as liable to temptation and sin as older people, while a thousand times less experienced. And their mothers let them run the streets after school and at night, and flirt with all kinds of men, and then they wonder and are surprised—these mothers—when they see the evil effect upon the girls, life and character, and think how sad it is that girls always seem to take after their fathers.

There are just two things that will keep girls straight at "that age," and they are plain clothes and home duties. A little girl with too many and too costly clothes on her back gets self-conscious and vain and loves admiration—and we women know the sequel. A simple, pure-hearted girl who has a place in the home and home duties has her heart there and no boy can steal it. Only when maturity comes and a real affair of the heart will such a girl leave home and then only after heartaches and heart-breaking. But not so with the girl whose heart is not in her home.

Work makes things sacred. The child whose home memories are not hallowed by work, who is not needed and does not feel the need, will not love home, and if she does not love her childhood's home, the little likelihood of her loving any other. She will go anywhere, for anything. And the woman to whom home means nothing is on very dangerous ground. She may be respectable, for lack of opportunity to be otherwise, or thru force of circumstances, or the necessity of an ugly face, but of this be sure, she will be a curse to the man she marries.

The mothers who are responsible, whether thru ignorance, indolence or carelessness, for the girls who run the streets, should stop and think what they are doing. These girls are no longer children. They are at the impressionable age. Where will these impressions come from—the riff-raff of the street, or from their homes? It is for the mothers to settle this question, and if they give it the attention it deserves they will have the blessings of the girls themselves in future years.

Farmers' Daughters as Money-Makers.

Here are some of the ways in which girls now established in cities, worked their way from the farm:

One girl raised herbs of all kinds, thyme, savory, sage and lavender, which she marketed thru a commission merchant in the nearest city. Another gathered seeds (flowers, vegetables and shrubs) for a seedsmen with whom she made new arrangements each spring. A third, who has the real mercantile instinct, bought up old furniture and dishes, family heirlooms, from her neighbors, and sold them to a dealer in antiques with whom she had made an arrangement while visiting friends in a nearby city. And thru these allies she found work in the city.

A New England girl living on a barren farm is saving money to go to college by serving lunches to picnickers who come out from town almost every day, to enjoy the pleasures of a nearby lake. Her brother sells bait and has two rowboats for rent.

The girl who lives near summer-resorts, of course, has the best of it. Summer boarders will always buy souvenirs made from birch-bark, pine-cones, and sweet grasses; also photographs of the scenery. If she has a younger brother, she can sell him the most popular of all—the "woman's rights" book. One of the rights of woman is to look after her own health. No woman has a right to work so hard with her hands that she is too tired to use her mind, and is therefore no companion for her husband and family.

A Woman's Right.

When a woman finds she has no time for anything but work it is high time for her to take stock as it were and cut something out.

Fifty years ago the whiteness of a woman's kitchen floor and cellar steps was the gauge by which her house-keeping was judged. Now a woman would be thought quite foolish who had a white kitchen floor. For her who cannot have a hardwood floor and cannot afford oil cloth, there is always the pot of paint. There is much talk of "woman's rights." One of the rights of woman is to look after her own health. No woman has a right to work so hard with her hands that she is too tired to use her mind, and is therefore no companion for her husband and family.

Pale? Thin?

How is it with the children these days? Have they plenty of grit, courage, strength? Or are they thin, pale, delicate? This reminds you of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It does great things for children. It gives them a good appetite, improves their digestion, builds up their general health. Ask your doctor if he endorses this.

MAY HOLD FOR PROVINCE
RIGHT OF WAY OVER BEACH

Government Proposes to Reserve Land for Power Transmission Line.

The provincial government may reserve a right of way for a provincial power transmission line over Burlington Beach. This was the announcement of a member of the government yesterday.

The Burlington dispute has been under consideration for some months. The City of Hamilton secured a lease of the beach from the old government at a nominal rental, and made an agreement with the Toronto-Niagara Railway for a 66-foot right of way over the beach on payment of a lump sum of $10,000. This agreement was submitted to the government for ratification. The government refused, suggesting an annual rental to be devoted exclusively to park purposes. Then the Township of Saltfleet in which the beach is situated, stepped in and questioned the right of the City of Hamilton to the property.

The beach shortens the distance between Toronto and Niagara Falls 14 miles. It is a narrow strip of the right given to the Toronto-Niagara Company would exclude any other line. It is said the government will exclude private companies if it reserves the right to build a provincial line.

Toronto Needs Roads.
Said A. W. Campbell, provincial good roads commissioner, on Tuesday: "The good roads movement, it is to be hoped, will soon reach Toronto. It is time this city inaugurated some systematic system of pavement regulation, and the good roads department are preparing to do missionary work in this city."

ITINERARY OF COMMISSION.

To Visit Guelph, Berlin, London, Hamilton and Kingston.

W. N. Tilley will call the Excelsior Life Insurance Company when the royal commission sits this morning at 10.30.

This will leave three other companies in Toronto—the Continental, the Crown Bank of Commerce and the Life. It is expected that the commission will adjourn about the middle of next week, to meet in Toronto early in September.

It is announced that during the next few weeks the commission will sit at Guelph, where the Central Life will be examined; at London, for the Northern Life; at Hamilton, for the Dominion Life; and at Kingston, for the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association. The commission will spend some time in Winnipeg.

Penalty for Littering.
Ray, Coyle and Dineen have been refused a writ of habeas corpus by Chief Justice Meredith. They were arrested after having been seen getting on and off street cars and jostling passengers as if in an attempt to pick pockets. The charge was laid under a section alleging "littering."

Mr. Robinson objected that they were not littering. The cars were moving.

The chief justice read a definition: "To litter is to consume time idly."

"They were consuming time very idly," he said.

It assumed that they were honest, suggested Mr. Robinson, "playing pranks—having a lark; if you will."

"There was nothing," objected Sir William, "to prevent these men proving that they were highly respectable people. This must be reasonably construed—this statute. It is just this class of people it was intended to strike."

Took Census Excursion Day.
Niagara Falls, Ont., June 19.—To-day is the semi-centennial anniversary of the incorporation of the Town of Clifton, now the City of Niagara Falls. History states that the people of the old village, being desirous of incorporation as a town, took a special census on an excursion day, and were able to supply a population sufficient for incorporation.

Steel Works Dividend.
Montreal, June 19.—The Montreal Steel Works to-day declared a half-yearly dividend on common stock of 2 1/2 per cent. The company has not declared a dividend for four years on the common stock owing to trade conditions. For the six months, owing chiefly to great demand for cars and locomotive equipment, the earnings justify a dividend.
