With the Government. With the Government.

Rev. B. Clements was sorry the political aspect had come up. It was this that had cursed the cause in the past. There had not been a sufficient majority to warrant the Government in acting.

This speech met with violent dissent.

F. W. Daly knew of no question that would bring out a larger vote. He demanded prohibitory legislation on the strength of the vote.

He said, "My grandfather and my father were Liberals. I was a Liberal, but I will a never mark another ballot for a party that will play fast and loose with a majority."
Rev. Mr. Deacon of Waterford claimed that at the plebiscite dead voters were impersonated. In his opinion the Government did not know the difference between the living and the dead, and it should be punished.

After the Government.

A colored delegate, who did not give his name, wanted prohibition demanded. "We did not get prohibition, because we didn't expect it. Let us expect and (make them give it to us. Let us put our own man in the field." He was cheered.

Rev. William Kettlewell wanted a Dominion law with exceptions for Quebec. He wished to put the Government in a position so that the public would say that the alliance was reasonable.

Mrs. Patton at this juncture arose and, amid the smiles of the audience, declared too mych falking was being done. She called upon the chairman to do his duty. The chairman smiled.

Cut His Thront.

Late last night Joseph Robbins, a printer, employed at The Times office, cut his thront with a razor in the hope of ending his life. He was found with two gashes in his neck by some of the members of his family and removed to the hospital, where he fell in with Fred Jamleson and James Gibbons. Harrison had et visualises in his packet, and the trio spent the afternoon in Janisse's Hotel. About the Jamleson suddenly caught him by the throat and threw him down. Then he says Jamleson went through his pockets, taking all the money remaining, $2.45, and answering his cries for help by snowering blows on his head. Harrison's coat was staken, and only desperate resistance, he says, prevented Jamleson from stripping of all his clothes. Gibbons stood quietly by while young Harrison was being assaulted and robbed. Jamleson made off with the coat and money, and Harrison and Gibbons walked down the street. Gibbons was arrested by Sergaant Nash near the C.P.R. depot, and shortly after Patroiman Jackson nabled Jamleson as he was running toward the ferry. The pair appeared before the magistrate this morning, and were remanded until to-morrow.
