It was decided to close to the general publication bear of the park near the plants. Strong barbed wire entanglements will be laid about the border of the restricted area. More armed guards will patrol the fence and all employes will be given a numbered pass. The Glippewa street cars, which run along the enclosed territory, will be escorted also by armed guard. east of Kut-el-Amara and 6000 yards from Felahie. This last position was carefully reconnoitred yesterday and measures were taken to move up the artillery for an assault, which may be carried out today or tomorrow. It appears from this that the British Mesopotamian army has batteries of heavy guns and a supply of high explosive shells. The position carried at Felahie consisted of several lines of deep trenches, and it had its northern flank resting on the Haweekieh swamps and its southern flank resting on the Tigris River. The third division, which advanced on the right bank of the niver, occupied positions from which an enfilading fire was poured on the as positions held are concerned, very much as they were, for altho the Germans did get a grip the night before last on about 300 yards of trenches on the road between Bethincourt and Hill 265, on the western bank of the Meuse, their grip was too feeble to enable them either to hold the freshly success, and French grenadiers in counter-attacks made progress in ejecting them from these lines, and even pressed forward into the communication trenches of the enemy. The experience of this war has taught the world that, in order to make an advance of any value, positions wider than 300 yards have to be taken and of great depth in the assault. Their tack on the French positions back of Haucourt also turned out to be a

The first semi-official estimate of the total German losses suffered in the 45 days' fighting before Verdun that has so far been issued, previous estimates having been apparently more in the nature of guesswork, places the minimum at 200,000 men. Of these 150,000 fell in the first line of action and the rest were disposed of by artillery bombardments at long range and by other methods. The Germans threw into the assault on Feb. 21 no fewer than 295,000 rifles, and their reinforcements and fresh units thrown into the encounter since have brought their total contribution to the struggle up to 450,000 rifles. Eighty of their battalions suffered so severely that they had to be taken to the rear to be reconstructed. Others had their gaps filled on the field of action. The fighting for Verdun has resulted, the French say, in one of the greatest battle losses in the whole history of warfare. On the contrary side, writing of the French losses in cleared up by investigators. It was not owing to the difficulty of dragging forward heavy guns, for the Germans, by a mechanical device, can move the Austrian 12-inch Skodas forward as fast as their infantry. They are also employing a long 15-inch gun, while they have discarded the Krupp 16 1/2-inch gun as being too clumsy altogether. This disposes of the legend of the firing of 17-inch shells. The lulls, it appears, are owing to the difficulties encountered in bringing up munitions. The expenditure was so unprecedented that the entire accumulation for the attack on Verdun was shot away in the first week of their offensive. The Germans are probably continuing their attacks for the purpose of forcing the French to use up their reserve of shell, so as to delay the expected offensive of the allies in the west. They probably estimate that their production is superior to the French production. No person among the allies, it is said, has been able up the Tigris to join hands with General Townshend, who is invested by the Turks at Kut-el-Amara. The river has again risen, and is sure to hamper active operations, just at a time when the British were preparing to attack and force the third Turkish defensive lines, 6000 yards west of Felahie, which was carried yesterday. The first British expeditionary force, which landed in lower Mesopotamia the second day after Turkey joined Germany in the war, has been confronted with climatic and other difficulthe of the first order, and it has only been by extreme skill that these have been, one by one, overcome, As for General Townshend, it is said, no anxiety need be felt, for the only need that he has reported is a searcity of gramophone needles. It is probable that the British relief, or rather, sup-

By a Staff Reporter.
OTTAWA, Ont., April 7.—The question of bilingualism will be brought up in the Dominion Parliament by the opposition before the end of the ses sion. The World has been informed from what appears to be a reliable source, that one of the Liberal mem-bers will introduce a resolution asking parliament to suggest ways and means to reach an amicable agreement be-tween the Ontario Government and the French-Canadian minority, Will Get Support. It is understood tha tthe resolutions will be moved by one of the Ontario English-speaking Protestant Liberals and that in all likelihood it will receive the solid support of the opposi-tion and of the French-Canadians who are government supporters.

The question of the French language agitation in Ontario has been the subect of discussion by Quebec French-Canadian Liberals at several confernces of late, and it is said that they have used their influence in the party councils to have a bilingual resolution Conference Proposed.

It is known that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has given the bilingual controvery considerable thought and it is said that one or more conferences on the subject have been held in his office with leading Liberals. Some time ago Senator Dandurand, in the course of an address in Montreal, suggested an inter-provincial conference of leading inter-provincial conference of leading politicians of both sides of politics and ducationalists to suggest a compro-It is reported that this suggestion was the idea of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and it is noteworthy in this connection that Hon. George P. Graham, his first lieutenant, made an almost sinkar suggestion before the Reform Club of Iontrea Ithe other day.

If a bilingual resolution embodying such a proposal is introduced in the house it will produce one of the most interesting and possibly far-reaching situations in recent years.

Lord Cecil Discusses Taking of Men From American Steamer.

A TICKLISH QUESTION

However, Germans and Austrians Seized Undoubtedly Merited Their Fate.

LONDÓN, April 7.—(6.44 p.m.).—The controversy between the American Government and Great Britain over the seizure of Germans and Austrians on board the American steamer China apparently is no nearer settlement than when Secretary of War Lansing made his first request for an explanation of the action of the commander of the British cruiser which removed the men from the steamer. Discussing the case with The Associated Press today Lord Hobert Cecil, minister of war trade, said:

"All the nations maintain the right to take men from vessels on the high seas, as men are the most dangerous and explosive kind of contraband. The Germans and Austrians seized on the China were undoubtedly engaged in warlike operations against the entente allies, They were conspiring against us in

It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast, While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and get. ting ready for a thorough flushing of
