Had Speed, But Was Absolutely Without Any of the Fine

Lee Fohl of the Cleveland Indians is quoted as saying that Guy Morton will pitch his team to a pennant next year. Lee ought to know, for he has judged Morton correctly in the past. He saved Morton from oblivion when Joe Birmingham was for canning him and deserves the credit for making the Alabama boy the wonder he was until his arm went lame. When Morton first reported to Cleveland Birmingham, then managing the team, gave him a workout and then remarked to one of the men on his team:

"That guy says he is a pitcher. Well, if he is, I am a better better than Try Cobb and a better catcher than Jimmy Archer. He doesn't know how to stand on the rubber even. He doesn't know how to hold a ball. He doesn't know how to hold a ball. He doesn't know how to keep the base runners from running wild, but say, there is only one pitcher in the country who has any more speed and that is one Walter Jchnson."

"Give him to me," remarked Lee Fohl, now managing the Indians, then manager of Charley Somers' Waterbury farm and adding Birmingham in coaching the young pitchers at New Orleans. "I think I can make a pitcher out of that boy."

"You are welcome to him, Lee," replied Birmingham. "With his sneed he ought to get by in the Eastern Association if you can teach him a lew tricks."

"Before the season is over you will be begging to have him, Joe, was Fohl's rejoinder.

June I arrived. The Alabama boy had won nine cut of his ten games for Waterbury and was striking out anywhere from eight to fifteen batsmen to a contest, two runs being the most any opposing team could gather off him. The Feds got after him. Fohl wired Somers: "Better take this boy right away or he will jump. He is not a finished pitcher yet, but he ought to be right next season."

A hurry-up call was sent to Fohl to shio the Alahama boy at once. Birmingham gaye him the once over in practice

A harry-up call was sent to Fohl to ship the Abahama boy at once. Birmingham gave him the once over in practice and remarked:

"He is a greatly improved pitcher and is going to make a wonder when he learns how to pitch."

The voungster proceeded to pitch 13 games for the tall-end Naps, losing 12 hefore he came thru with a victory. But as the defeats were by scores of 1 to 0. 2 to 1 and similar low scores Birmingham put in the claim that the boy would be one of the best pitchers in the American League in 1915. And so he was, winning half of his games for a team that finished a noor seventh.

Morton started 1916 like a world-heater, winning his first eight games straight. Then he hurt his aim and was out the letter part of the season. Fohl worked him easy in the last month of the cammaranend said he looked better them ever. He expects him to start burning them up right off the reel next spring and give Cleveland such a lead it never will be headed.

JOY FOR THE ANGELS.

A tiny miss who frequently accompanies her parents to ball games is greatly interested in the pastime. She knows the game from A to Z, and is well versed on the rules. A few evenings ago she surprised her father by asking him if baseball is played in heaven. He was inclined to think the game had not yet reached that altitude; at any rate, he informed daughter that, so far as he had been able to learn, the popular American sport had never been introduced among the angels.

"Well, pape." she replied, "when I get to heaven, I'll tell you what I intend to do—I'm going to do everything possible to get them to organize a league up there."

JOHN'S ALIBI.

John B. Foster, secretary of the Giants, was a bit put out when the Cubs started Mordecal Brown against the New York-Mordecai Brown against the New Yorkers in a game last spring.

Brownle's curve was breaking fast that day and the Giants kept missing it a foot, but Foster insisted they were trying to show his team up.

"Why, he hasn't anything but a round-house curve," he said.

This story was told to Johnstone, who used to umpire in the National League. "If there's one thing Brown never had, it's a roundhouse curve," he said. "The ball broke sharp and fast. No matter how old Brownie got, he never would deliver a roundhouse."

CHARLEY AND OTTO ARE NOW THEIR OWN BOSSES

Two men who were very much in the limelight as members of the Phillies are now free agents, according to Wm. G. Weart of The Evening Telegraph. Philadelphia. These men are Charley Dooin and Otto Knabe.

At one time Charlie and Otto were great friends. Then there was a misunderstanding between them. Otto got the wrong angle to the situation when he was prevented from being traded to Gincinnati, where he expected to be made manager. Knabe blamed Dooin for holding up the deal. This caused Knabe to be dissatisfied with Dooin, and the latter was too proud to go to his former pal and explain that, instead of preventing ofte from going to Cincinnati, he had tried to bring it about. Knabe found out the true facts before leaving the Phillies for the Federal League, and he was man enough to admit his mistake. In consequence, Charley and Otto resumed their friendship.

Dooin, who was sent to the Rochester Club of the International League by the Glants last season, was declared a free agent at the close of the season. Charley has not announced his plans for the future.

Knabe has just been given his unconhas not announced his plans for the future.

Knabe has just been given his unconditional release by the Chicago Nationals. Otto got in "soft" when he joined the Federals. He had an offer to manage the Baltimore Club. Before signing. Knabe gave the Phillies an opportunity to meet the Baltimore figures. When he jumped the Quakers. Otto took with him the best wishes of the Phillies' officials. Last season Knabe filled in at second base for a time with the Ptitsburg Pirates. Later, he landed with the Chicago Cubs, after his former side-partner on the Phillies, Mike Doolan, had been moved from Chicago to the New York Giants.

AN OLD PAIR OF BOOTS.

It is reported that a millionaire shoe manufacturer will purchase the Athletics. Well, we'll say they were a good "last." Not to mention the fact that they were about on their "uppers."

However, if they have been "sold" to a millionaire shoemaker, they will be well "heeled."
Guess that'll be about all for that kind of stuff. Unless we might be permitted to suggest that they are in for a good "lacing."
Still, with a couple of good "peggers," they might manage to "kick" in.

A REAL SHOT.

Rollo Zeider, Cub third sacker, tells of a hunting trip he had with Jay F, Pitts, the physician of the Chicago Nationals. Down near Auburn, Ind., Zeider does his shooting. He is considered quite a shot. This point must be borne in mind as you read.

This point must be berne in limit as yet read.

Dr. Pitts took Zeider to a celebrated hunting grounds in Illinols last fall. Three ducks rose and Pitts got all three before Rollo could rut his gun to his shoulder.

Not once during the afternoon did Zeider kill a bird, while the doctor accumulated a big bag.

"Talk about shooting," said Rollo later, "I'm a mere novice. The doc shoots from the hip just like the cowboys used to with their revolvers. And he gets them, too."

If all the ball clubs that win pennants in the winter ordered material for the same, the bunting manufacturers would have to work overtime.

AUSTRALIA'S DESIGNS ON SOUTH SEA ISLES

German Propaganda Charges! That Country With Intent to Dominate Pacific.

JAPAN THREATENS

She is Supposed to Have Her Eye on the Australasian Continent.

Clearly a strong propagandist attempts an article in The Frankfurter Zeitung ealing with "The Partition of the South

The purpose of the crticle is to show that one of the war aims of the Australian Commonwealth is the regulation of the possession of the South Sea.

Australia believes that at the peace her voice will be heard, and it is pretty certain that Hughes will go to London to take part in peace negotiations. The Australians would be untrue to their British descent, says the article, if they did not regard it as a matter of course that the entire island world of the South Sea should be incorporated in their Dominion. Australia and New Zealand have always opposed colonization in the Pacific by other powers than England. Well known is their opposition to Germany's efforts in this direction. The acquisition of New Guinea and the annexation of the Samoan Islands by Germany were regarded in both dominions as an unauthorized interference with the divine rights of England.

quisition of New Guinea and the annexation of the Samoan Islands by Germany were regarded in both dominions as an unauthorized interference with the divine rights of England.

So strong was the agitation against Germany that those voices were not heard which urged that it is much better to have a civilized power in the South Sea than cannibals, or that it would be an enormous advantage to Australia to have interposed between her and Japan a sort of buffer state in the form of colonies belonging to a European state.

Australia and Japan.

The Frankfurter article proceeds with a sketch of Australia's and New Zealand's historical ambitions, special notice being taken of designs on New Guinea. We are told that this Australian hunger for fresh territory has not a shred of justice to support it, "for Australia is so thinly populated" that even British writers deny the right of Australians to a monopoly of their continent. This, however, makes no difference, and they will insist on demanding the foundation of a great colonial empire at the conclusion of the war. The Frankfurter incidentally remarks that the war will greatly reduce their male population. In this way, England, the motherland of Australia's colonies. One of the first of these grand-daughter colonies will be the Fiji Islands.

The latter part of the article is occuthis way, England, the motherland of Australia, will become the grandmother of Australia's colonies. One of the first of these grand-daughter colonies will be the Fli Islands.

The latter part of the article is occupled with an ingenious attempt to breed trouble between the commonwealth and Japan. It speaks of the competition for the possession of the German islands, in which New Zealand gained the Samoan Islands, Australia New Guinea, and Japan, "to her disgust," only the Caroline and Marianne groups. We are told that the ambition of the dominions to master the Pacific will not be so easy as Australians seem to imagine. What about the French, Dutch and American groups of islands? And how is Australia to fix up matters with New Zealand?
