FALLS IN STREET, LEG IS BROKEN

J. Harold Wilson, son of Hon. John E. Wilson, assistant receiver-general and manager of the Government Savings Bank, while on his way home to Seeley street after leaving his stove and hardware business at 17 Sydney street Thursday evening, slipped on the icy Garden street sidewalk and suffered a severe fracture of his right leg between the ankle and knee. He was removed to the St. John Infirmary where he is being treated.

The city sidewalks were in a dangerous condition on Thursday and, while the city sand men were strewing sand over many sidewalks, all were not covered, it is said. A citizen suggested last evening that if the sand were screened and put on ice warm it would stick to and not slip off or blow away as cold sand did.

The report from the hospital last night was that Mr. Wilson was resting as comfortably as could be expected and that it would probably be some time before he would be able to be about again.

AN OLD SPORTSMAN

The oldest man to go hunting moose and deer as well as birds, in the woods of northern New England and the Maritime Provinces was Jeremiah McLeod, who killed a big bull moose when 101 years old. Mr. McLeod is now 102, and will apparently live some years yet, although his mental and physical faculties have deteriorated somewhat during the past year.

Mr. McLeod lives on the international border in the Maine-New Brunswick section. He has been a consistent hunter for 65 years. In that period he has killed 65 bull moose, and the same number of buck deer. He has also killed hundreds of bears and estimates the number of his wildcat victims at a thousand. Birds by the thousands have fallen before his prowess with the shotgun.
