One of the best speeches Brewster, member for the best speeches Brewster, member for Alberni, and puts on the general province of the province of fusal and she should be in a position to repel them if they persisted in coming. A solution of the problem lay in the organization of a universal militia service fashioned after the boy scouts, among men of the west, he said. The renowned newspaperman dwelt on the value of preparedness. As an instance of Canada's laxity in this respect, Mr. Villiers declared that when in Vancouver a year ago it was plain to see that a dinky Japanese gunboat could have dictated terms to the mayor and the banks of that city, and to back up such a move the Japanese could land 100,000 trained troops in a month. Alluding to the treatment of this subject in the United States, the speaker said it was felt on the southern slopes of the Pacific that war with Japan was ultimately unavoidable and the United States could not mobilize or maintain 30,000 or 40,000 troops on the Pacific the Provincial Grand Orange Lodge a coast.
