

Provincial Legislature

Extraordinary Proceedings in the House—Mr. Jos. Martin Announces His Call.

Mr. Prentice Moves a Resolution for Dismissal of Lieut-Governor, but Withdraws.

Victoria, Feb. 28th, 1900.

Mr. Speaker took the chair at 2:15 p.m. Prayers by the Rev. Percival Jenks.

Motion to Adjourn.

Hon. Mr. Scullin—I beg to move, Mr. Speaker, that this House at its rising do stand adjourned till tomorrow at 2 o'clock.

Yesterday the House met assuming that some information would be forthcoming as to the course which the Lieut-Governor intended to follow, but the House had not been so informed, and up to the present time that information has not been admitted.

The House knows nothing of what is being done, the ministers have no information of any kind to offer the House.

Perhaps, however, some other member of the House might be in a position to give the House this information.

It so be would ask that hon. member to give the House that information now.

The motion to adjourn was put and duly carried.

Mr. Turner—I should like to know, under the existing position of things who is in charge of the departments of the government.

I presume the ministry, if it actually exists, has charge of and is carrying on what is necessary.

It is exceedingly queer to ask this House and the province at large to sit still and not know who is sworn in, who is at the head of affairs, or who is in charge of those important departments.

The ministry is dismissed, and there is really no one now responsible for those departments.

It is absurd that there should be no leader of any kind in British Columbia at the present time, and no one attending to the business of the country.

Hon. Mr. Scullin—The executive of the late government is in control of the departments, and is doing the necessary business of those departments; this is nothing more than is required to meet the necessities as they arise.

Mr. Joseph Martin—I am not in a position to throw any light on this matter, Mr. Speaker, but I hope the House will adjourn till tomorrow, and no doubt the country will by that time be in possession of the information now sought.

Mr. Heimeken—As the hon. gentleman had been good enough to let a little light in on this subject, it would be quite in keeping with what was rumored outside the House for the hon. gentleman to throw a little more light on it.

If he were in possession of any knowledge that would enlighten this House he ought to let the light of his countenance shine upon the House a little more.

Mr. McKelloe—I think it is insulting to this House that we have not yet received any communication from the Lieut-Governor.

Unless we have some communication from him I will move a resolution, I will ask the House to endorse a resolution that the Governor be recalled from this province.

Mr. Green—I wish to ask you, sir, if it would not be possible, while we are here, to deal with the country's business.

We have no information from the Lieut-Governor as to whom he has chosen to succeed the present government, who is in charge of the House, or who his advisers are now.

Would it not be in place to go on with the business before us? (Hear, hear.) If we could, there is still I would like to see read a second time, I mean the Sandon City Relief Bill.

(Applause.) In order, sir, I now move that this report be received.

Mr. Prentice—If we want to begin the work of the day, why not take up the orders? (Applause.) If there is a government here why not carry on the business in the regular way, take up the second or third readings? As I say, why not proceed with the orders of the day? It seems to me an extraordinary thing if there is an hon. gentleman sitting in this House who has been called upon by the Lieut-Governor and yet cannot declare himself. I consider it an insult to this House, and I will repeat what I said the other day that it is the bounden duty of that gentleman, whoever he is, to make himself known and inform this House of the facts.

Let him come out and say so if he be so. Why this scheming, why so much mystery? But why not now proceed with the orders of the day?

Mr. Green—I would like to press this motion, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker—If there is any reason why you cannot do it I am not aware of it.

Mr. Jos. Martin—Of course, Mr. Speaker, there's no reason at all why the House cannot go on with any business it sees fit.

If the House thinks proper to go on with the business now, I will simply retire and leave it to do as it sees fit.

Hon. Mr. Henderson—Great condescension, that. (Laughter.)

Mr. Jos. Martin—But it is very foolish of the House to go on doing business which when it is done will have no force or effect at all.

I don't think anything will be accomplished by attempting to do what has been suggested.

Mr. Booth—In the present state of the House, if any legislation passed through the House nobody would be responsible for it.

The Attorney-General is responsible for all measures passing the House, but there was now no Attorney-General, and besides the Governor has to assent to the measure so passed; therefore anything the House might do now would not be worth the paper it is written on.

Mr. Macpherson—I don't think it would be dignified, Mr. Speaker, to proceed with the business of the House now; the Lieut-Governor has taken the matter entirely into his own hands.

This House as a body of men ought at all times to act in a dignified manner—(hear, hear)— and I don't think it would be dignified on our part to take any action or pass any measure at the present time.

Mr. Speaker—I was about to mention that while the House could do certain things even at a time like the present time, there is no proper means of placing their acts before the Lieut-Governor.

Mr. Green—I do not wish to press for anything that cannot be accomplished. Therefore I beg leave to withdraw any motion, but I must say, sir, with other hon. gentlemen who have spoken, that I believe His Honor should have given us some indication as to what his intentions are to-day, and not let us in the position he has. (Applause.) It is so fair, right or courteous on his part, so this House. (Hear, hear.)

Col. Baker—If there is one thing I am proud of about the British constitution, it is the deep respect which the sovereign invariably shows to the representatives of the people in the British House of Commons. (Cheers.) We, as representatives of the people of British Columbia, are present here to-day, and find ourselves placed in a most undignified position. I for one cannot help feeling indignant at the action of the Lieut-Governor toward this House. (Applause.) The very idea of the thing was extraordinary. Here we are called upon to meet here together with no government in office, and with no power to proceed with the business of the House, and no knowledge as to what the Lieut-Governor's intentions are. We are left in utter ignorance of the intentions of His Honor.

Mr. McKelloe—I should like to ask the hon. third member for Vancouver city (Mr. Martin) if the facts are as stated in the local morning paper regarding him, whether he has been asked to resign with the task of forming a ministry. I would not have asked this question but for certain things which were uttered by the hon. gentleman on two occasions this afternoon and which gave out indirectly, to my mind, that he was the man of the hour. (Laughter.) I do not wish to put the question to embarrass that gentleman at all, because we all know how easily he is embarrassed—(great merriment, in which Mr. Martin heartily joined)—but to know what we have to expect at the present time. It seems to me almost an insult to the representatives of the people sitting here this afternoon. It is the duty of the House to find out this afternoon just exactly how the land lies in this matter.

Mr. Kelle—The hon. member for Vancouver City has made the statement that whatever was done here to-day, would have no effect. What authority has he for making such a statement on the floor of this House? Governor or not, has he any authority to give out such a statement as that?

Mr. Heimeken—Now's the day, and now's the hour. (Laughter.)

Mr. McPhillips—His Honor in taking a step as important as the one he has taken now, ought to have immediately announced his decision and named the gentleman who had assumed the responsibility of answering for his acts. That is the constitutional position. He considered it an astonishing spectacle to see this House should have asked to come to the Legislature to-day with no government to lead the business and no information to guide them. The Lieut-Governor had now been 24 hours without advisers. This it seemed to him, was establishing a state of things he never thought would be possible in this province, or could obtain under the British form of government. The people, notwithstanding the high authority of the representative of the Crown, were the masters, after all. Although there was a sacredness about the monarchical system under which we lived, the monarch after all took the authority which he or she wielded, from the people. They on this side of the House had endeavored to discharge their duty to the people, to deal with the late government, and they were always willing to accredit with any desire it had displayed to proceed with the business of the House. This House had waited 24 hours, and was still undecided of the fact as to who is the responsible adviser of His Honor, and the House now found itself in this spectacular position. He had no hesitation in saying that this legislative assembly had been treated with disrespect. The representatives of the people ought at all times to stand up for their rights. With all due deference to His Honor, that gentleman should have seen to it that the House was in a position to carry on the business of the country.

Mr. Heimeken—Before doing so I would like to say what the explanation they had had from the hon. member for Vancouver the Lieut-Governor was no longer to be held responsible for the present situation of affairs, but the hon. member would not forget the day he had read the government's order to the government of the day, and the other day. Only on Friday the hon. member had held up the government to renunciation because they had been attempting to form a government to carry on the business of the country.

He hoped the hon. gentleman would take to himself the lesson he had attempted to teach the government of the day, and succeed in forming the kind of ministry he has been talking so much about. He hoped he would deal on a high plane with this matter, and do all things for the good of the country, and for purity of politics and purity of parliament. He hoped the hon. gentleman would not forget his own excellent maxims of conduct.

A Sensational Resolution.

Mr. Prentice moved the following resolution:

Whereas the Lieut-Governor has dismissed a ministry possessing the support of a majority of the members of this House; and whereas his reasons for doing so are insufficient; and whereas His Honor has failed to surround himself by constitutional advisers up to this time; be it resolved that in the opinion of this House the Governor-General dismit the Lieut-Governor as incompetent.

Mr. Speaker—Two days' notice of this is required.

Mr. Heimeken—I move that the House adjourn.

Mr. Speaker—You cannot do that, there is a motion to dissent already.

Mr. Heimeken—Negotiated. The House do now adjourn. (Motion to dissent.)

Mr. Prentice—If my motion is out of order, requiring two days' notice, I will withdraw it.

Mr. Heimeken—And I'll withdraw my motion, too.

Mr. Henderson—I don't see any particular reason why we should adjourn. We seem to be having a pretty good time. (Laughter.) Time is not so valuable as to warrant any member withdrawing; let us make the most of our opportunities. Mr. Speaker. (Laughter.) We have had some very interesting and instructive information given here, without any business being before the House. During the whole of my experience, extending over two years in this House, I have never seen such latitude granted as has been the case to-day. Every member had talked to the fullest extent, and had taken full advantage of the liberty that was going. None of us have been checked, none of us called down. This being the case I beg to suggest that the hon. member for Vancouver city (Mr. Martin) sing us a song. (Roars of laughter.)

A Question of Privilege.

Mr. Prentice said that if his motion was out of order, he would like to see the House adjourn.

Mr. Speaker declared this to be out of order.

Mr. Booth hoped the House would not act in any manner that would bring disrespect upon it. So far there was no sufficient reason before the House for the dismissal of the government; the information given for had not been given yet.

The late Premier had a right to know what those reasons were. He hoped the House would not pass any resolution derogatory to the dignity of the assembly.

Mr. McKelloe thought there was no use in saying that a considerable amount of feeling had been aroused in the legislature by the line of action chosen by His Honor, aggravated by the further fact that the House had been brought there that day on what was practically a fool's errand. (Hear, hear.) In all instances it must be admitted that a ministry could not very well make its arrangements in the space of twelve hours; but he had heard it said on the floor of the House this afternoon that the crisis now existing had been brought on during a period extending over some weeks, if not months.

Mr. Jos. Martin—I did not consider the suggestion worthy of notice, but as it has been mentioned I will say there is absolutely no truth in it whatever.

Mr. McKelloe was very glad to hear this from the hon. gentleman, because the contrary was upon the statements made by the hon. gentleman here as very serious and as spoken in earnest. Otherwise this rumor would have put His Honor in a very awkward predicament indeed. He thought the members would do well to be very careful in dealing with such suggestions as appeared in the resolutions. The hon. member for Lilloet had got his work in, and he should now withdraw the resolution.

A Generous Offer.

Capt. Irving there entered and said he was sorry he had been absent during the interesting address by Hon. Mr. Henderson. But he understood that hon. gentleman had called upon the hon. member for Vancouver for a song. Now, if the hon. member would oblige, and take for his song "The New Year's Greeting" (Capt. Irving) would promise to sing a song about "Little Willie." (Long continued merriment.)

Charge of Discourtesy.

Mr. Deane would he thought Mr. Prentice in his resolution went too far, still was of opinion that the House should place itself on record in a protest against the discourtesy of His Honor in acting as he had done. As for what had been taking place in this House this afternoon he could not say that this was supposed to be a deliberative assembly, but it seemed to him it had been turned into a bear garden. (Applause.) He would not support the resolution introduced by Mr. Prentice, but he would like to see a resolution introduced by the leaders of both sides of the House, disapproving of the manner in which His Honor had seen fit to treat this House. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. McPhillips said the point was well taken that this was not a proper resolution. The House had no advice as to the reasons which actuated His Honor in dismissing the ministry. Those reasons may be grave and cogent. The ministry could certainly be accused of having pursued a wrong policy, not in the best interests of the country.

Mr. Wells thought this resolution went too far, and he would like to see it withdrawn.

Mr. Macpherson said it would have been the more dignified course to have adjourned without taking any notice of the Lieut-Governor's action.

Mr. Prentice—It is not because I think the resolution undignified, but I now wish to ask leave to withdraw this resolution. Granted.

A Belated Message.

Mr. Heimeken asked Hon. Mr. Scullin whether the resolution passed the previous day, regarding the success of the British army in South Africa had been forwarded to the persons named in it.

Hon. Mr. Scullin said he was afraid there had been an omission. So far as he knew the resolution had not been sent.

The House adjourned shortly after 3 o'clock.

Mr. Heimeken—And I'll withdraw my motion, too.

Mr. Henderson—I don't see any particular reason why we should adjourn. We seem to be having a pretty good time. (Laughter.) Time is not so valuable as to warrant any member withdrawing; let us make the most of our opportunities. Mr. Speaker. (Laughter.)
