NO PINS IN CHINA.

A member of the Chinese Legation, died in splendid pale husk silk, stood before the Casino at Newport. "Pins," he said, "cause untidy habits. We have no pins in China. The right way to fasten things is with buttons and buttonholes or with loops and frogs. To fasten things with pins is to make use of an untidy makeshift. To employ pins is to become lazy and slovenly."

"We have no pins in China. Certain foreign manufacturers shipped millions of them to us in the past, but we sent them back. We had no use for them. We were too neat."

CHURCH UNION.

Tomorrow the General Conference of the Methodist Church will open in Montreal. There are many important matters relating to the business of the church to be brought up, and while the work which has been accomplished during the past four years, and that which is planned for the future will be heard of with interest, Canada is chiefly concerned about the question of union, the one matter of supreme importance which is to be considered by conference.

From all that has already been said and since the last meeting, and judging from expressions of opinion on the part of leaders of the church in every section of the country, it will be surprising if the vote in favor of union is not almost unanimous. The Presbyterians who are popularly supposed to be harder to move than almost any other Protestant body, have thrashed out the question year after year, with the result that while at first only a comparatively small number of delegates to the assembly favored union with the Methodist and Congregational churches, by far the greater majority of the leaders of the church are now among its enthusiastic supporters.

The Methodist conference delegates realize that the proposal has advanced to such a stage that it requires the most serious consideration, it is not an ideal but a practical proposition, a matter of business in which sentiment plays a large part, but which must be properly looked upon as a means of advancing the work of the Christian church, and doing away with the possibilities which now exist for waste of energy, men and money. It is true that the conference cannot finally settle the question of union. The individual congregations made up of individual members constitute the final court of appeal, but conference has the power of sending the case to this court, and the judgment passed in assembly will have much weight in forming the opinions of congregations. When the governing body of the church decides in favor of union, it need not be feared that the movement will be blocked by the opposition of any congregations.

INSURING BANK DEPOSITS.

Scarcely a day passes without the publication of despatches telling of the suicide of some bank cashier or director who has stolen the money entrusted to his care. The past few years have been especially productive of this sort of thief and it is no wonder that many people in the United States are going back to the old stocking form of banking. Nothing could throw more ridicule on the financial system of the United States than the prospect of a company which has just been organized in Baltimore. The American Bonding Company guarantees to insure bank deposits against embezzlement or failure. The rate charged is one quarter of one per cent, and in case of disaster it will guarantee to the depositor the full amount insured. The interesting feature is that this company seems to be doing considerable business, a striking criticism on the banking methods in the United States. The cashiers, directors and others will feel more than ever at liberty to steal. At the present time and under existing methods of inspection those whose duty it is to protect the public, stand quietly by until the suicide of an official gives them the hint that an investigation is in order.

Provincial premiers will meet in Ottawa on October 8th to discuss matters of general interest with members of the cabinet. The principal request will be for increased subsidies to the older provinces. Too much must not be expected, but even if the requests are refused, it will not do any harm for the leaders of the different governments to get together and have a talk.

The result of the elections in Maine does not show that the feeling against temperance or prohibition is increasing, so much as that the liquor party having more money than usual bought up a larger share of the purchasable vote.

The action of the school trustees in freeing Dr. Bridges from routine work in high school is commendable. In the past he has not had sufficient time to give to the other schools that attention which he believes they should receive.

Sussex people turned out well to help along the St. John exhibition. Now is the time to pay back the debt.

POEMS WORTH READING.

Itown Folks.
The folks who live in Itown would all be millionaires
If Sam had only hung on to those Grizzly Mountain shares;
If Jim had known his buckwheat fields were on Petroleum Heights;
If Bill had financed Scudder's play that ran ten thousand nights.
In Mayfair mansions would they live, and drive coach and six;
If father's lawyer had not cribbed his patent frying pan.

With doleful stories such as these our patience they beset;
The gloomy nights of Itown, by the River of Regret.

The folks who live in Itown put little faith in luck;
When other people hit the mark they call it fairly luck;
They view the strenuous victor's bays with dubious eyes and glance
And tell us what they would have done if they had had the chance.

Before the embers of the past they warm their bloodless clay
Where Courage stoops to light his torch, and dares the darkling way;
But opportunity is dead; no fields are left to till;
So wait the folks of Itown in the province of Stand Still.

Oh! citizens of Itown, the morning dawn is only just begun to try its infant feet,
The earth is panting in its thirst for foods of honest sweat.
The harvest on the Hustling Hills have not been garnered yet,
The only peaks we cannot scale and inaccessible cliffs

Are those we build day after day with its surmounting lies.
Wake up! Vamoose your moidy shacks, and snuff the inspiring air,
And bid farewell to Itown, in the Valley of Despair!

—John Ludlow.

WHY?
"My friend, you're an ass
"Tell me one thing!"
"Well!"
"Do you call me your friend because I'm an ass, or an ass because I'm your friend?"

GOOD EVIDENCE.
"What reason have you for thinking that the thief who entered your house was a locksmith by trade?" asked the detective.
"Why, I saw him make a bolt for the door," said the victim of the robbery.

WHAT BAIT?
The summer man—Anything worth catching in that lake?
Hotel Proprietor—Well rather! There four headdresses in bathing right now!

PRACTICAL HELP.
"John," said the wife gently, "you are interested in temperance movements, are you not?"
"Of course, I am," he answered.
"Well, suppose you go and make a few of them at the pump handle. I want a pall of water at once."

THE BRIDGE HABIT.
A family passionately devoted to bridge whist was plunged into mourning by the loss of the father. A discussion arose as to whether the deceased would have been a bridge player or a bridge maker. The decision was left to the eldest son, who, looking at his mother, said, "I would have liked to be a bridge maker, but I did not know that I would want my constituents to know it."

A STATESMAN'S CAUTION.
"Why don't you make a speech that will tell your constituents exactly what you think about this question?" "Because," answered Senator Sorghum, "I don't know exactly what I think, and if I did know I don't know that I would want my constituents to know it."

ADVICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
In promulgating your superficial sentiments let your printed correspondents possess consistent consistency, avoiding all conglomerations of flimsy sentiment, juvenile babblement, and platitudinous ponderosity—in other words, say what you mean and mean what you say.

LIMITATION OF RELIGION.
Senator Clay of Georgia was telling Senator Stanford of California, and the latter, brow-beating, and insolent Federal Judge in the South, "He is—, he is—, he is—," said Senator Stanford, "I understand you perfectly, Senator, Senator Pettus said, 'You are a Baptist and your religion does not furnish the words necessary to describe such a man.'"

A DEAD CIRCUIT.
It had been a strenuous afternoon for the devoted teacher who took six of her pupils through the Museum of Natural History, but her charges had enjoyed every minute of the time.
"Where have you been, boys?" asked the father of two of the party that night, and the answer came back with joyful promptness.
"We've been to a dead circuit."

HIS REVENGE.
A New York clergyman preached a rather exhaustive sermon about the text, "Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting." After the hour some began to get weary and went out; others followed, greatly to annoyance of the minister. Soon as other person started, whereupon the preacher stopped his sermon and said: "That's right, gentlemen; as fast as you are weighed pass out."

COMMERCIAL HONESTY.
At least one boy in the City of New York has not learned the meaning and practice of graft. Last week a man over in Brooklyn sent a small boy in his neighborhood to deliver a note to a young woman, who lived a couple of blocks away. He gave the boy a quarter to make him hurry. In due time the messenger came back, and returning the money, said, "Miss B— says she will be glad to see you tonight, but she didn't want the quarter."

YOUTH SAYS HE'S SOLVED A TYPEWRITER PROBLEM

Has Invented an Automatic Carriage That Spaces as Well—Studied Device for Three Years.

NORFOLK, Sept. 10.—Robert Eugene Turner, an 18-year-old youth of this city, has invented an automatic carriage for a typewriter which, those who have seen it declare, will solve a problem that has puzzled the manufacturers of typewriters for years.

It was recognized long ago, experts assert, that an automatic carriage return for a typewriter would add from 25 to 30 per cent. to the speed of the operators. The manufacturers put experts on the problem of the transfer, redirection and control of power, but none was able to solve it.

Mr. Turner had his attention drawn to the matter. He began to experiment with drawings and for three years studied the problem at spare times, day and night. He finally solved the problem of regulating the power at all times, controlling and reversing it at will by means of the space bar.

"My device is very simple," Mr. Turner said Saturday, "and can be added to machines at a nominal cost. It will not affect the durability of the machine or add to the cost of repairs. Its speed is sufficient for all practicable purposes. It increases the mechanical control of the carriage, making it unnecessary for the operator to remove his hands from the keyboard as he writes.

"The mechanism causes the carriage to return to the initial writing point automatically when the end of a written line is reached and also to return non-automatically from any point in the line by pressing a special key. Provision for cushioning the impact of the carriage to prevent a destructive jar to the machine is amply provided for, as well as an improvement in the runways and rollers bearing the carriage to reduce the friction to a minimum.

"The momentum attained by the carriage in its return stroke is utilized for the line spacing. A simple device is introduced, so that the setting of either the automatic or manual line spacer will adjust the other to conform in the uniform spacing of the lines.

"The prevention can be used as a manner against each other that shifting of the carriage results in a change of the relative power of the two springs, enabling each to alternate between the other and bearing the carriage back and forth, and mechanism for automatically or manually effecting the shifting.

GARNETT READY FOR ROSS.

To the Editor of the Star:
In reply to the morning Telegraph, Mr. Ross is looking for an easy mark before he retires from aquatics. I might say, owing to my being a new man and only having been about fifteen times in a single shell, I am willing to give Mr. Ross a race to be rowed on the same day of the race between W. J. Coates and H. Bolyes, and at the same place if Mr. Ross agrees. As regards talking on street corners, Mr. Ross is entirely mistaken as my intentions and ambitions as a sculler run a lot higher than Mr. Ross's. If Mr. Ross beats me, he has nothing to gain by it. If I win I have the same, as I have never heard any great account of Mr. Ross's rowing qualities, and I consider he is retiring with very little honor as a single sculler.

LOVE UNREQUESTED SEVENTEEN YEAR OLD BOY ENDS HIS LIFE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Because of a difference in religious beliefs that prevented a marriage, a seventeen-year-old boy, Jesse Weinstein, of No. 417 East Nineteenth street, committed suicide yesterday morning by shooting himself in the head at the apartment house at No. 417 East Nineteenth street, where he resided with his parents. He died soon after at the Presbyterian Hospital.

Max and Lena Weinstein, the boy's parents, are proscribed by their son's act, and bitter against the girl, who they say led the boy on to love her and then spurned him because of the difference of religious beliefs. The mother said that her son had brooded over it until, without warning, he shot himself.

Jesse left some boy friends at half-past eleven o'clock Saturday night at the corner of First Avenue and Nineteenth street, where he had been laughing and talking with them.

"Goodbye, goodbye, friends, I am going for a journey," he said. Something in the strained way with which he bade them goodbye, and the peculiar look in his young face, gave them all to ask:

"Where are you going, Jesse?" "You will learn tomorrow," replied Jesse sadly, and hurried toward his home.

His father, carried him to their rooms. Neighbors notified the police, and Dr. Jamieson, of the Presbyterian Hospital, was called. The boy was taken to the hospital and the parents were told that there was no hope of his living. At one o'clock he died without regaining consciousness.

"My son died for love," said the heart-broken mother yesterday. "His heart was broken by a fourteen-year-old girl—seventeen years old—with her skirts at her heels. He had asked her mother not to let him associate with my son. I felt that she would do as she said—spurn his honest, manly affection because he was a Hebrew."

Miss Weinstein's father denied that the girl was in any way responsible for the boy's death, and said that the bereaved parents were making a ridiculous statement. He said the mother and her mother had been in the country for two months, but that they would soon be home.
