FOURTH OF JULY SLAUGHTER GREATEST IN TWENTY YEARS

Seventy One Persons Killed
and Two Thousand, Two Hundred and Seventy Six
Wounded in the Endeavour to Display Their Patriotism

NEW YORK, July 6.—A Chicago special to the Tribune says: Seventy-one dead, and 2,276 injured, are the figures in the Chicago Tribune's Fourth of July casualty list up to 11 p. m. last night. An analysis of the figures shows the following details:
Of the deaths, there were by fireworks and resulting fires 27; by cannon 8; by firearms 16; by gunpowder 6; by pistols 2; by runaways 4; by heart failure due to explosions of cannon crackers 2.
Those injured were:
By fireworks 1,109; by cannon 112; by firearms 196; by gunpowder 551; by torpedoes 40; by toy pistols 211; by bomb cases 17; by runaways 10.
The fire loss was $255,935.
This breaks all records for deaths since 1883. The number of deaths this year reported up to midnight last night is thirteen more than that at the same time last year. 1905 fifty-nine were dead at the same hour. The number of injured, however, is 1,183 less than in 1907, and is the smallest number since 1901, when 1813 persons were hurt. This is regarded as an indication that the agitation for a "safe Fourth" is having its effect.

LURED TO HOTEL AND HACKED WITH RAZOR

Well-Known Acrobat and Illusionist Guilty of Most Brutal Crime—Robbery
His Object.

PARIS, July 6.—A man named Nicholas Tchernadoff was arrested yesterday morning for the attempted murder of Amelie Talavigne on Thursday night.
Tchernadoff was fairly well known as an acrobat and illusionist. He introduced to the public the magic kettle, and has appeared in London. The story of his crime is like a Grand Guignol play. In fact there is a play called "The Pearls" not running which exactly resembles it.
Tchernadoff met his victim's acquaintance some day ago and invited her to the Moulin Rouge and then on the way he suddenly remembered that he was not in evening dress, and asked her to accompany him to his hotel and wait in his sitting room while he changed.

When they arrived there Tchernadoff rushed at Mrs. Talavigne, knocked her down, and began tearing off her jewels which are numerous and valuable.
She screamed for help, when the man slashed her throat with a razor inflicting a terrible wound. He then walked quickly out of the hotel, while the woman her white dress covered with blood, gave one last despairing shriek of "Murder" and fell senseless.
A policeman in the street asked him what the noise was. "I think there is a mad woman in that house," said Tchernadoff quietly and disappeared.
He went to St. Germain and yesterday morning was arrested in a cafe by two gendarmes, who had seen his portrait in the morning papers and recognized him.
By one of those examples of forgetfulness for which criminals are responsible, Tchernadoff had given Mrs. Talavigne his photograph and the reproduction of this picture in yesterday's papers led to his immediate arrest.
He had intended leaving for Havre in the morning and escaping by boat.
The jewels which were found on him were worth nearly $10,000.

SOCIALISTS NOMINATE THEIR CANDIDATES

Marlin Preston for President and Donald Munro for Vice President.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Candidates for president and vice-president of the United States were nominated and a platform adopted by the National Convention of the Socialist Labor Party here yesterday. The ticket is as follows:
For President—Marlin E. Preston, of Nevada.
For Vice-President—Donald Munro, of Virginia.

The nomination of Preston for president was unanimous and was received by delegates and audience with wild applause.
The platform is identical with the one adopted by the party four years ago and declares for the substitution of the co-operative commonwealth for the present state of plutocracy, industrial war and social disorder.

ILLICIT LOVE LEADS TO BRUTAL MURDER

Man Elopes With Another's Wife and Returning Kills Husband

MILAN, July 6.—Northern Italy has been the scene of two sensational love tragedies.
One of the leading figures in the beautiful young Countess Giovanna Benivoglio, of Bologna. The countess, who belongs to a very old and once powerful Bologna family, is barely 21 years of age. She was taken straight from a convent three years ago and married to a Marquis, who agent, named Lapaglia. The couple lived in a small flat at Bologna quite happily, but, as often happens in Italian society, they kept no servant, taking their meals at a popular restaurant. Their only child she had been put out to nurse with peasants in the mountains.
A young Venetian magistrate, named Paternoster, came to Bologna, was struck by the countess' beauty and laid siege to her heart with such success that he finally persuaded her to elope with him. The countess, making the pretence of a trip to Sicily for a prolonged stay with a relative, joined Paternoster in Rome, whence, after devising the dispatch of letters bearing the Naples and Palermo post-marks, in order to put Lapaglia off the scent, the runaway couple took train to Paris.
There they stayed a fortnight, and then, as their funds were giving out, they moved gradually down to Lugano.
Her penniless condition awakened penitence in the countess, and she telegraphed that she was ready to return home. She also appealed to a local lawyer friend to help her to return. The distracted husband, who meanwhile had been journeying day and night, spurring slowly towards Paris, was informed of her return, and hurried to meet her. He was so overcome by her beauty and the promises she had made, that he agreed to let her go, and she returned to her husband to meet them the same evening.
Paternoster followed them and lay in wait. No sooner had he caught sight of the unfortunate and unoffending husband than he rushed forward, seized him by the neck, and then mortally wounded him with two shots from a revolver at the entrance to the station. Paternoster, who is 28 years of age, and had a promising career before him, has been arrested.

HUSBAND'S REVENGE.

The other case is that of the Marquis Corradi, who has been shot dead by the husband of a beautiful society woman named Fanny Zaccaria.

On rising one morning the husband caught his wife in an adjoining room in the act of writing a passionate love letter to the marquis. The wife threw the unfinished missive out of the window to prevent her husband from seeing it, but he rushed downstairs into the street and secured it. After reading it he went off with a loaded revolver to a neighboring hotel round the corner and killed the marquis in the hall. He then fled to the woods, but was caught early the next morning while creeping down to his home.
Yesterday there was a startling development of the case. Signora Fanny Zaccaria was held out to prison under a special warrant, charging her with being an accomplice in the murder of her husband. It is stated that there is further mystery underlying the affair which they cannot yet divulge.
A curious feature of the case is the fact that Mrs. Zaccaria was due to appear at the law courts at Lecce next week in connection with proceedings she had taken against a woman in whose company she had surprised her husband some time ago.
It is stated that when Signora Zaccaria confessed her infidelity to her husband, he presented her with a high revolver, decorated with mother of pearl, and told her to shoot herself. Muttering her resolution, she kissed her husband, closed her eyes, and, ejaculating "All is over," fired a shot through the ceiling.

GOULD CHALLENGES THE ENGLISH CHAMFION

LONDON, July 6.—At the close of the contests between Cecil Fairies and E. Johnson, on Saturday, for the court tennis championship, Fairies was challenged by Jay Gould, the amateur champion. He expressed his willingness to a match and it is expected the details of the contest will soon be arranged. The conditions proposed by Gould were a series of home matches in New York and London next season for the open championship of the world.

DISASTROUS FIRE AT PORT AU PRINCE

Fort Hundred Buildings Burned
Yesterday

Court House and Prison Destroyed—
French Marines Aided in Fighting the Flames.

PORT AU PRINCE, July 6.—A serious fire broke out here about two o'clock yesterday in the vicinity of the Palace and Senate Building. The flames spread quickly there being a high wind, and soon reached alarming proportions. Four hundred buildings were burned, including the court house and the prison. Sparks were carried to other quarters before the building took fire. Sparks were carried to the arsenal which also was destroyed with stores of powder and ammunition. The burning of the buildings was accompanied by many explosions. The firemen were aided by fighting the flames and a force from the French cruiser Chasseloup-Laubat.

POSED AS PRINCE IN MAN'S ATTIRE

Austrian Woman Lunatic Had Strange Fancy.

Borrowed Money on Notes With Royal Signature—Man Dressed as Woman for Years.

VIENNA, July 3.—The Austrian lunacy commissioners have recently had to deal with two remarkable cases, one being that of Karl Giffinger, a man who believed himself to be a woman, and the other of Margareta Erb, who posed as a man. Giffinger was a harmless fellow who wore women's clothes and had been married on a farm as a dairymaid.
The story of Margareta Erb is much more romantic. She certainly showed much method in her madness, firmly impressed with the idea that she was Prince Egon Louis, an illegitimate son of King Louis of Bavaria, she went about in male clothing, with close cropped hair and incessantly smoking cigars.
Her features were pronouncedly masculine and she found no difficulty in twice becoming engaged to be married. Her second fiancée, a goldsmith's daughter, still believes that she is a man of high birth. That her story impressed a great many people is shown by the fact that she was able to borrow various large sums of money on promissory notes signed "Egon Ludwig of Bavaria" from persons whom she promised to repay tenfold as soon as she would receive a fortune of $3,000,000 which, she said, was being illegally withheld from her for reasons of State.
Her last feat was to draw up a will in which she left large amounts of money to her fiancée and others who had befriended her. But now the lunacy commissioners have cut short her adventurous career as well as the infamous masquerade of Karl Giffinger. Both are to be sent to the same asylum.

SEVERAL CASES HEARD IN THE POLICE COURT

Dominion Day Not a Proper Time for Hugging—Insane Woman in the Court.

In the police court this morning Edward York was fined eight dollars and two months with hard labor for being drunk. York is an old man who ran away from the Municipal Home. Phoebe Dukeshire was charged with escaping from the Municipal Home. The magistrate said she should be sent back and should not be allowed to escape. Phoebe said if she went to the Home again she would have to be put in a grave. The woman is supposed to be insane and her actions at the Home are such that those in charge say she is not a fit subject, and will not take her back.
Two drunks were fined the usual amount.
Sadie Nairn, who was arrested last night on a warrant for abusive language, was remanded to jail because of the absence of the complainant. The warrant for the arrest was issued in May.
In the case against Beckman for assaulting George Gillespie, Arthur Hoyt gave evidence that Beckman assaulted Gillespie. Beckman was fined $20. On imposing the fine the magistrate said that the assault happened on Dominion Day and from what he learned the King Square was a disgrace to the city on account of the large number of drunks. Persons were supposed to have a holiday and enjoy themselves but not get drunk, and one man was so pleased to meet a friend that he hugged and kissed him. The proper authorities should know about fights in bar rooms and the saloon keeper can be prosecuted if he allows a drunken man in the bar.
The case of Wm. Caples selling to an interdict will be taken up tomorrow.

STEAMER LADY SYBILL ON THE GASPE ROUTE

Suitable Boat Has Been Secured to Replace the Lady Eileen—The Latter
Has Been Abandoned.

DALHOUSIE, N. B., July 6.—The steamer Lady Eileen will be replaced on the Campbellton-Dalhousie-Gaspé route by the S. S. Lady Sybill of Halifax. Complete arrangements have been made between the owners and the Dominion Government and the new boat is expected here tomorrow in charge of Captain Charles Powell of Dalhousie. The S. S. Lady Sybill is one hundred and thirty feet long. She has forty-six double staterooms, a nice ladies' cabin, saloon and two dining saloons. She is fitted with electric lights and modern improvements. She will carry about five hundred tons of freight. Altogether she will be a very suitable steamer for the route.
Latest news from Port Daniel is that the underwriters have abandoned the Lady Eileen.

WHOSE DUTY IS IT?

For two months an old crate and empty barrel have been standing on North Market street, opposite Messrs. O'Neil Bros. stall. Last week a barrel full of decomposed water or pickle has been on the sidewalk. I have spoken to the clerk of the market, but it is there yet. If there is no one whose duty it is to look after such things, the common council should appoint an officer.

TODAY'S CIRCUS PARADE MADE A FINE IMPRESSION

Thousands Gathered on the Streets During the Forenoon to Watch the Procession—Busy Hours at the Shamrock Grounds

The general verdict this morning was that Cole Bros. circus parade was a fine one. By nine o'clock crowds had gathered along the route announced to be taken and when the parade started, shortly before ten o'clock, the streets were lined with hundreds of expectant men, women and children. The circus arrived Sunday night, and at a very early hour this morning the army of workmen were busy engaged in erecting the tents on the Shamrock grounds. By nine o'clock everything was in readiness and shortly after half-past nine the procession left the show grounds. The parade was almost a mile long. It included three bands of music, a fire and drum corps, jubilee singers, bag pipes, and the inevitable steam calliope. The wagons and floats, followed along Main street, to Mill to Pond to City Road to Brunswick, to Union to Charlotte, to King to Cook, to Mill to Main and thence to the show grounds where a free exhibition of several features of the circus was given.

TRAITOR ARRESTED TO ENSURE SAFETY

Man Who Betrayed Camorra
Lodged in Prison

Fought Nine Hours—Finally He Compromised
With Captors, Who, However,
Break Their Pledge.

ROME, July 6.—Another exciting episode was added yesterday to the history of the long and still uncertain official struggle against the supremacy of the Neapolitan Camorra.
Gennaro Abbatemaggio, whose betrayal of his fellow-accomplices in the murder of the Cuscolo couple at Naples enabled the government to track down forty-two members of the supreme death council, has been since then accorded his liberty. So sure was he that his friendship with Marshal Capone, Captain Fabroni and the leaders of the Anti-Camorra, campaign would guarantee his personal safety that he had settled down in a comfortable country villa at Camigliano, near Capua.
Three sets of magistrates who were intrusted, one after the other, with the prosecution of the Camorrist assassins abandoned the ungrateful task through fear of assassination. Now a fresh magistrate, called Lopez, and a new procurator, General Lucchesipalli, have begun the whole judicial prosecution over again. Their first step was to obtain a warrant for the arrest of Abbatemaggio.
His capture was effected under dramatic circumstances. Carabinieri and detachments of mounted troops set out at dead of night from Caserta and Capua and surrounded Abbatemaggio's residence and summoned him to surrender. The famous ex-Camorrist barricaded his house and kept the troops at bay for nine hours, vowing they would never capture him alive. His only revolver was, fortunately, knocked out of his grasp by his wife and worked on the window while he was preparing to blow out his brains. Finally, on the command of the carabinieri, agreeing to dismount the mounted men and allow Abbatemaggio to drive to Capua in his own carriage, the latter was dragged from the house amid sympathetic cheers from the population.
When the prisoner, accompanied by the commander of the carabinieri, got well along the road, the cavalry lying in wait suddenly swooped down and closed around the carriage. Abbatemaggio was dragged forth, bound in chains and hurried between a horse and a cart to the nearest railway station, and thence to Naples. There he has been lodged in the Palace of Justice, the authorities sharing the traitor's own sentiment that he would be most certainly murdered from his grasp by his wife and family. He was transferred to the common prison of San Remo, where several fatal encounters with knives have recently occurred among the horde of Camorrist inmates.

WOMAN'S DEAD BODY IN SACK ON STREET

Divested of Most of Her Clothing Which Was Banded Up With Her.

LYONS, July 6.—Excitement has been created here today by the discovery of a corpse of a woman in a sack. The affair is very mysterious. A couple of workmen were sometimes as they were starting for a day in the country when they noticed a large sack lying in the street. On examination they found the dead body of a woman doubled up in it, so off they hastened to the nearest police station. Careful inspection by several officials who hurried to the spot revealed the fact that there was no trace of clothing but that the poor woman's hair had been cropped quite close. The corpse was promptly identified as that of a married woman, 29 years of age, dwelling at Lyons, and soon a visit was paid to the house. The husband was asleep in bed, and when he was told of the tragedy he cried, "My wife dead? My wife murdered? Oh, that is impossible." He then gave very clear and precise answers to the questions put to him by the judicial authorities. He stated that he was employed at a boot manufactory, and that on his return from work at noon on the previous day he had missed his wife and had been busy until bedtime in searching for her.
Friends and acquaintances on their side report that the couple were very affectionate terms, so the husband has not been molested, and, indeed, is actively assisting the officials in their investigation. All that the wife did on the fatal morning had been ascertained. At half-past eleven o'clock she returned from the market, whether she had gone to buy provisions for the day, but after that hour nothing was seen of her. If she was murdered at home this must have been during the interval preceding her husband's return from work, but it appears more likely that she went out again, unnoticed by the neighbors.
It is thought that she may have been murdered by some of the Anarches who are active in that district, and that the criminals were carrying the corpse in the sack to throw it into the Rhone when the approach of the two early workmen led them to drop in the street and to run away.
