Holyrood Palace, Edinburgh, Scotland which it is proposed to revive as a British royal residence, is the subject of a strange legend. Robert Louis Stevenson alludes to it in his little book on Edinburgh. "There is a silly story," he writes, "of a subterranean passage between the castle of Holyrood, and a hold Highland piper who volunteered to explore its windings. He made his entrance by the upper end, playing a strathspey; the curious footed in after him down the street, following the descent by the sound of the chanter from below; until all of a sudden, about the level of St. Giles', the music came abruptly to an end and the people in the street stood at fault with hands uplifted. Whether he was choked with gases or perished in a quag or was removed bodily by the evil one remains a point of doubt but the piper has never again been seen or heard of from that day to this."

EMPLOYER, LOOK PLEASANT

Show Yourself Master of Situation Instead of Slave by Wearing "Smile That Won't Come Off."

If you are an employer do not go about your place of business as though you thought life were a wretched, miserable grind, says O. S. Marden, in Success. Show yourself master of the situation, not its slave. Rise above the petty annoyances which destroy peace and harmony. Make up your mind that you are too large to be overcome by trifles. Resolve that you will be larger than your business, that you will overtop it with your manliness and cheerfulness.

To say nothing of its being your duty to make the lives of those who are helping you to carry on your business as pleasant as possible and as full of sunshine as possible, it is the best policy for you to pursue. You know very well that a horse that is prodded and fretted and urged all the time by means of whip and spur and rein, will not travel nearly so far without becoming exhausted as one that is urged forward by gentleness and kind treatment. In their susceptibility to kindness men and women are in no wise different from the lower animals. You cannot expect your employes to remain buoyant, cheerful, alert and unweary under the goad of scowls and the lash of a bitter tongue. Energy is only another name for enthusiasm, and how can you expect those who work for you to be enthusiastic or energetic in your service when surrounded by an atmosphere of despondency and gloom, when they expect a volley of curses and criticism every time you pass.

Many a man who could have been a success sleeps in a failure's grave today because of his gloomy, mean, contemptible disposition and manner. He poisoned the atmosphere about him by venting his spleen, dyspepsia and bile on everyone in his vicinity. He not only minimized the value of his own efforts, but he also paralyzed the powers, the initiative, the helpful faculties and suggestive ideas of all those who worked for him.

New Vs. Old Ways.
Mrs. Sewage—Oh, I am almost tired to death. The New Woman club has been in session all day, passing resolutions and drawing up petitions demanding a law regulating the price of bread. Only think! Three dollars' worth of four costs, when baked into bread, thirteen dollars. It's outrageous! The bakers must be made to feel the power of the law. You should have been at the meeting.

Old Lady—I was too busy.
"What doing?"
"Baking bread."—N. Y. Weekly.

At Close Range.
Phyllis—So you and Fred quarreled, did you?
Sylvia—Yes; he said something that I didn't like, and I told him we must be strangers henceforth.
Phyllis—And did he fall on his knees and ask you to forgive him?
Sylvia—Not he. You see he—er—that is, his knees were very much occupied at the time.—Cincinnati En-

Humor and Philosophy

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

DON'T laugh at a man because he is ignorant of the simplest details of your business. Maybe he knows his own.

One reason why the world laughs with you is that it was going to laugh anyway whether you did or not.

Keep your troubles in yourself and let your joys out on long time loans if you would be popular.

Some men may never have dared be as funny as they could, but others never were as funny as they thought they were.

It is usually easy to believe the most disagreeable things about one whom we dislike.

When the people marry for a joke they don't have any difficulty in deciding which the joke is on.

Ribes are a curse, we are told, but were they suddenly thrust upon us we would try to be reconciled to our doom.

They Have Their Way.

"I am going to shift bosses the first of the month."
"Getting a new stenographer?"

Need of Maste.
"Haven't you changed the lights on these egg baskets by mistake?" asked the inquisitive clerk of the intelligent grocer. "The ones marked 'superly fresh' have been in longer than the others."
"Don't worry," said the grocer; "the others will keep."

Smart Thing.
"Ethel."
"Yes."
"What do you do when you meet a fresh young man?"
"A real fresh young man?"
"Yes."
"I put him in a pickle right away."

Getting it by Proxy.
"He must be a great traveler."
"He has never been ten miles from home."
"But he seems to know the whole world."
"He never misses a moving picture show."

Without the Attachments.
"I have just been in the football game."
"Any one killed?"
"No."
"Must have been fully as exciting as a game of checkers."

Some Harmony.
"I had a load of wood stolen from my lot last night."
"Criminal thieves, evidently."
"How do you make that out?"
"Isn't it the lost cord?"

Good Reason.
"You say mamma spanked you?"
"Tish-tish."
"Why did she spank you?"
"Cause she didn't know what else to do with me."

Folly as it Flies.
The little auctioneer on the corner has many attributes to boast. The magic is mellow, and you're a good fellow.
As long as your money holds out, the tenderer is fond and attentive. As long as your pocket is full, you are a success. But when you are busted don't hope to get it back.
It's you on the stump for the floor.
You meet with a bunch of companions who are out on a bit of a lark. And spend money maybe you need for the day.
And more than you know you can spare. And when in the market of chance you pause to take stock for a bit. The jesting is grating and not elevating. A second class showing in wit.

It pays in the end to be sober. And keep the stuff out of your brain. You find that the boozier is always a loser. Examples are plenty and plain. Confine your libations to water. Just take a big swig at the pump. And nothing is clearer than that you are nearer success than some half-pickled chump. There's nothing so punk in the morning or quite so pathetic in a row. As when you awaken to find you have taken your wages, with nothing to show. Keep out of the folds of the monster. Have some small regard for your name. It's easier hitting the bullseye than quitting. When once you get caught in the game.

Is Your Loaf Like This?

If your flour is of the right quality, it ought to produce uniformly good bread. When the loaf comes out of the oven it ought to be appetizing and inviting in appearance. The crust should be crisp, tender and sweet as a nut. The pores of the bread should be regular showing uniform expansion by the yeast and every loaf should be light, plump and should expand over the top of the pan. Bread made from Ogilvie's always comes up to the highest standard of excellence when made right. It is always uniform, and good to look at as well as good to eat. Summer and winter, day after day, month after month, "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" is milled by exactly the same process from exactly the same standard uniform grade of the best Red Fife wheat. And this uniformity is guaranteed by rigid safeguarding tests at the mills before the flour is shipped. Get ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR from your grocer and stick to it.

Royal Household Flour

"Ogilvie's Book for a Cook", with 125 pages of recipes that have been tried and tested, will be sent free if you will send us your address and mention the name of your dealer.
