SEGLECTED, DESERTED, ABA DONED HAYMARKET SQUARE.

The Pelymorphian Club Spent time and Money on It, but the Authorities, After Taking Charge of It, Calmly Shut Their Eyes to Its Needs.

The St. John aldermen, or more prop-erly the public squares committee of the common council, richly deserve the censure of the people of St. John, particularly those living in the vicinity of Haymarket aquare, for the way they have treated the Polymorphian club. No organization of Polymorphian club. No organization of the kind has done more for the city. Their splendid parade of five years ago will long be remembered; but that was nothing compared with the great efforts that have been put forth by the club to beautify that part of the city known as the Haymarket square.

After three years of hard work on the part of nearly every member, and the drawing of considerable money out of their own pockets, they presented to the city a beautiful square, a drinking fountain that far surpasses anything of its kind in the city, or perhaps province, and a bandstand which should make the aldermen blush every time they look at it and think of the unsightly pile of boards that adorns King

And how did the council show their appreciation of the work of the club?

Some fine speeches were made when the fountain was presented to the city, and that was all the members of the club got for

They did not ask any favors of the aldermen, but expected that when the fountain and square passed out of the hands of the club the city would look after them. In this they were disappointed.

Beyond cutting a few walks in the square the city has done nothing, and if the present indifference on the part of the square committee continues the place bids fair to become even more unsightly than it was when piles of cordwood covered every part And a week's work of a few men is all that is needed to make it one of the pleasantest spots in St. John.

The fence has been torn down in places and the grass will soon be as long on the walks as it is in the rest of the square, and that is saying a good deal. Members of the club and others who planted trees in the square, find them broken and pulled out by roots. Should the chief of police see a little child pulling a leaf off a tree on King square he would frighten the youngster nearly to death; but no one asks who pulls nearly to death; but no one asks who puns ap the young trees on Haymarket square. They don't need protection, it appears. Only the trees on King square that have been there for 40 years need that.

The police seem to think they are not called upon to look after the trees or fences on Haymarket square. They never received any instructions, and in fact some of them do not know that the city owns it.

Street Superintendent Martin looks after the city's interests like all the rest of them. When the city bought the seats that are now to be seen on all the squares, six were set apart for Haymarket square. They were put out and would probably have red there till doomsday if some members of the Polymorphian club had not put the seats placed on the square again; and of course he said he would. They were carried to the square by members of the club and remain there still, all on one walk where they were left, but no men ever appeared to place them about the square.

it's in good order; but at night one would have to take a lantern to find it, although But there is no gas broadle that as much work was done after like three is no gas.

It is indeed a pity that this neglectfulness should go on. Anyone taking a walk through the square, as it is at present, would be surprised to find what a fine place it is, and would see at once how much prettier it would be did it receive the attention it should.

When the band plays on Haymarket square, members of the club who are not yet completely disgusted with the indifference shown by the council, have to provide lights for them. An electric light could be placed on the band stand at very small expense, and, besides being a benefit to the band, the hundreds who walk along the sidewalks and stumble over railway tracks could make use of the walks in the square, which are numerous enough and long enough to accommodate all. As it is at pyresent, one camot, walk confortably in the square without a torch.

The Polymaphian club has nearly 200 members, the majority of whom are pretty midgrant at the way they have been trated by the city council. The club has always been a great power in certain wards when the civic elections come round, and it is almay the or special comes accopy, from T. O'Brien & Co.

to see the game?

Deforest & March did a grand thing in giving the results to the excited crowds on King street.

Employers and employed seemed all alike, and the "last boy" of nearly every firm in town nearly ran his legs off going to look at the blockboard every fifteen to look at the blackboard every fifteen ninutes, and returning with the results to the men in the shops.

The Nationals two ahead. The boys bounded away like deers to give the news to their friends. Everybody who had 25 cents to spare had it up on the club he thought would win, and was anxious to ear the latest news. Then the score was 8 to 5 in favor of Boston The crowd looked glum. Another bulletin: St. Stephen, 8; Na-ionals, 7. That looked better. A ray of hope swept over the faces of the crowd. But it is the 8th inning. Can the Nationals do it? Everybody asked the question, and all hoped they could. The telephone in the store is ringing, and at every window a crowd of boys stand with their faces close against the glass, breathlessly trying to hear the latest. They rush to the front of the store, shouting, "8, 8." But the crowd can't believe it. The bulletin is put out, and the crowd sends up a cheer. "Who is pitching?"

A man coming out of the store says "They have put Robinson in the box and the visitors can't bat him." Tenth inning: 0. 0.

The crowd tried to talk, but every man had a lump in his throat and was afraid of making a fool of himself. The old and young were alike. The old man tried to explain the game to his friend, all the time keeping him informed that the St. John boys were playing Boston and that St. John was likely to win. The boys couldn't keep still. The apprentice sent out on an errand, went three blocks out of his way to see the bulletin board and "the boss" never asked what kept him. Then he explained just how it whs to the excited crowd that gathered round him in the shop and everybody

People who could not leave their stores stood in the doorways and anxiously asked for the latest, from everybody who passed. Men and boys working on second stories, made the score on their fingers to people on the street, and those passing—it did not matter who he was—stuck up 8 fingers twice and then stuck up 10 fingers, which

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Just at present the all absorbing topic with us is the water supply, and we are all mildly excited about its purity—or rather to be correct, about its impurity. I say mildly excited, advisedly, for it takes a great deal to convince a true Monctonian that Moncton water is not good. If contentment be a virtue, then we are a truly virtuous people, for our distinguishing characteristic is a cheerful satisfaction with things as they are. We really like the water; we hold it lovingly up to the light, and gloat over it, as a bon viront gloats over his old port, and we say, "the color is rather dark, but no darker than lager beer, and there's nothing insipid about it, it has some taste;" and as each man thinks his watch keeps the only correct time, so we are quite sure that the water from our own kitchen tap is just a shade better than any other in town; and, after all, to give the water supply its due, there is a strong vigorous individuality about Moncton water that can never fail to assert itself under any circumstances. I verily believe that if I were to encounter in some far off tropical clime a bottle of Moncton water, which had been preserved as a natural curiosity, I should recognize it, at the first glance, and while tears of joy coursed down my homesick face, stretching out my arms to clasp it to my heart, I would murmer, in a voice choked by emotion, "Moncton! dear Moncton! home of my youth, when shall I again behold thee!!!?"

I tried to buy a copy of Pragress, last week, but there was not one left, so, like Oliver Twist, we still ask for more.

LIFE AT THE REACUES

RICHIBUCTO, Aug. 7.—Will you kindly allow me space in the columns of your valuable paper to tell my less fortunate friends some of the ways in which the favored ones who are lucky enough to be sojourning under Mr. Phair's hospitable roof make life hanny?

who are lucky enough to be sojourning under Mr. Phair's hospitable roof make life happy?

You must be told at once (in case you are not posted) that "The Beaches" is situated in one of the most charming spots in New Brunswick. Let me draw a pen picture for the benefit of your readers. The hotel is a three-story building only, but occupies a great deal of ground room. Galleries, upper and lower, run around the sides. All the windows command delightful views of the harbor. Directly opposite the hotel and connected by a long bridge, is "The Island"—the flirtation ground of "The Beaches." The bathing houses are here, as is also a very pretty pagoda summer house, which, if it could speak, most marvelous tales would tell.

We are an awfully lazy, happy lot; sleeping, eating, bathing, flirting, are the four important duties of the 24 hours. Then there are the extras, dancing, billiards, tennis, boating, a little fishing, and on Sunday a little (a very little) religion. I am sure you will agree with me, that life at "The Beaches" is a charming summer dream. Alas! the awaking comes all too soon.

Among the guests here at present are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Troop of St. John. Their party comprises the Misses Troop, and Mr., Mrs. and Miss Parker of New York. Miss Troop and Miss Parker are considered the belies, or perhaps I should more truthfully say, they share the honor with Miss Dora Brown of Quebec.

Would you like me to tell you all about the tableau we had last week? Mrs. Brown was the leading spirit, and the energy that worthy lady displayed was perfectly wonderful. Even now I despairingly ask, How did she do it? Well, the evening arrived, and after paying my 10 cents mained there till doomsday if some members of the Polymorphian club had not put them under cover when winter came. This summer Mr. Martin was requested to have the seats placed on the square again; and of course he said he would. They were carried to the square by members of the club and remain there still, all on one walk where they were left, but no men ever appeared to place them about the drinking fountain? Well, the verybody close knew or not. Some host of the club are fine globe and gas jet is on top of it.

CELEBRITIES AT INCH-ARRAN.

RICHIBUCTO, N. B., Aug. 7.—Arrivals are still numerous, and the guests are settling down to amusements of various descriptions. The gentlemen guests chartered the steamer Adsural, and issued invitations to the lady guests for an excursion to Carleton, having lunch on board, and a very pleasant day was enjoyed. Other picnics have been held, as also numerous 5 o'clock teas. The children had a ball, last evening, which was attended by all the little ones who were able to trip the light fantastic, and all hearts were as "merrie as a marriage bell." The first ball will be held in course of a few days.

The airs bail will be need in course of a few days.
