Citizens were quite shocked on Thursday to learn that Sarah McKenna, wife of Edward Gosden, had passed away, aged 63 years. The deceased suffered a mental breakdown nearly two years ago and for a time was in the Ontario Hospital at London. For a year and a half she had been at her home here and most tenderly cared for by her husband.

About a week ago she took a weak spell while eating her breakfast. However, she quickly rallied but took another Wednesday morning and gradually failed, passing quietly away at four o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Recently the mental condition of deceased was improving and her recovery was hoped for, which makes the passing away a greater shock to the devoted husband and sisters.

The late Mrs. Gosden was a good and kind neighbor, especially so to the sick and to children. The funeral was held from her late home on Monday at 8.30 a.m. to the R. C. church at Wardsville, thence to Adelaide R. C. cemetery.

Besides her sorrowing husband she leaves two sisters, Mrs. Upton, of Adelaide, and Miss M. A. McKenna, of London. A sister in Arizona and a brother in Wisconsin died the past year. Sympathy is extended to the bereaved.

C. W. Vanduzer spent the week-end here on his way from Toronto to Florida.

Internally and Externally it is Good. The crowning property of Dr. Thomas' Eucalyptic Oil is that it can be used internally for many complaints as well as externally. For sore throat, croup, whooping cough, pains in the chest, colic and many kindred ailments it has qualities that are unsurpassed. A bottle of it costs little and there is no loss in always having it at hand.

WARDSVILLE

Harvest Home services were held in St. James' Anglican church on Sunday. Large congregations were present at both morning and evening services. Rev. MELBOURNE

Melbourne, Sept. 18.—A most interesting event took place here Saturday, from 4 to 7 p.m., when Dr. and Mrs. Howell celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding.

The home and lawn were beautifully decorated with cream and purple asters. Eight tables were prepared on the lawn, with a basket of asters on each table, from which over 30 guests were served.

Mrs. Howell wore henna georgette, richly beaded in blue, and was assisted in receiving by her two daughters, Mrs. McNichol, who wore her wedding gown of white canton crepe, beautifully beaded, and Miss Constance Howell, wearing a rich blue satin trimmed with silver lace.

Among the guests were Rev. Robert Stewart, of Dutton, who performed the marriage ceremony 25 years ago, when the pastor of the Presbyterian church here; Rev. John and Mrs. Elmer and Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Brown, of this village; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Howell, of Dutton; Mr. Traffe, of Stratford, and Mr. McNeil, of W. O. of Dunnville. Six of Melbourne's popular young ladies, Misses Agnes Campbell, Erma Wright, Florence Fletcher, Edna Petch, Lila Carruthers and Ina Carruthers, served refreshments.

Indirect Income Should Appear In Farm Accounts.

Labor income is not the limiting factor in determining how much the farmer shall have to eat, but it is the determining factor for the wage earner in the city. Food, fuel, and shelter are primary requisites of life, and the farm furnishes its proprietor a good proportion of these necessities. In width the income here derives from the sale of farm products. These things that the farm furnishes directly toward the living expenses of the farmer's family enable him to live even though his crops are poor. This income from the farm is often underestimated, often unrecognized, unless provision is made for accurately recording it in the farm accounting system.—U. S. Weekly News Letter.

Fitting the Horse Collar Is An Art

Much trouble results on the average farm each year from sore shoulders on horses caused by the improper fitting of collars, and improper adjustment of hames.

The collar should fit the shoulder so that in length there is just room for the flat of one's hand between the collar and the neck at the bottom. In width the collar should snugly against the sides of the neck from a point three inches above the shoulder point, to a point about half way up to the top of the neck. The upper one-third to one-half of the collar should be wide enough to allow the hand to pass the thick of the hand between the collar and the side of the neck. If the upper part of the neck is thick a "Quarter Sweeney" or "Half Sweeney" collar should be used, so as not to pinch the neck. A collar too wide at the top will produce a sore neck on account of side motion of the collar as the horse walks.

Sweat pads should be avoided as they hold the heat and sweat and produce a tender shoulder, often causing a galled condition.

The hames should be adjusted so as to hold the collar snugly against the sides of the neck, and so as to bring the line of draft right angles to the face of the shoulder as nearly as possible.

The collar should be kept clean by washing with a damp cloth each night when it is removed from the shoulder.

Washing the shoulder each evening with cold salt water will help to toughen the skin and prevent shoulder galls.

Bank Backs Better Bulls.

"Better bulls, bucks, and boars build bigger bank balances," says the First National Bank of Bend, Ore.; and to prove it they bought an $800 Rambouillet buck and 74 pure-bred Hampshire ewes to be kept in the sheep pen in central Oregon—the first pure-bred sheep in Deschutes County.

A Few Helpful Hints for Youthful Exhibitors.

Bear the Ancestors In Mind—Pick Typy Animals—How to Feed and Handle Colts, Calves and Lambs—Boys Are Making Good as Exhibitors.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Calves that have been fed liberally and judiciously will develop as the factors which we call heredity determine. It will be all calf, but its perfection of form is determined by its parentage. Feed cannot make a square beef calf out of a three-cornered dairy calf. So to begin with the feeder should select the young calf largely on the individuality of the parents. Get a calf that will feed out to be as good or better than its ancestors—something that is worth while spending time and money on—and then take care of it. The breed score cards give clearly what is desired in breed type. These should be studied along with the animal that is being selected for exhibition.

Calves should be half-broken when young, and handled gently that they may be quiet and docile at exhibition time. If in proper flesh to look well, ribs and back well covered, it is comparatively easy to complete the work of preparation. Prospective exhibitors should be kept in the stable for several weeks previous to the fair, where they can be washed, groomed and blanketed in order that their handling qualities may reach a degree of mellowness that is very desirable in exhibition calves. When exhibiting before the judge see that your calf is standing on level ground, quietly, and with feet well placed so as to present a good appearance. Don't let the other exhibitors crowd too closely and hide your exhibit from view.

Handling the Colt.

The colt selected for competition at the fair should meet the requirements of the class in which it is planned to exhibit. It should also be typical of the breed that it represents. As with the calf, the colt can only be what its ancestors make it. Colts may look very much alike when only a day old, but they certainly do not develop alike, even if the care and feed are the same. So get your start by selecting your exhibition prospect from good type parentage—exhibition stock if you can. Liberal feeding from the beginning on a comparatively narrow ration to develop all the bone and muscle possible should be the aim. Halter breaking and careful schooling to develop courage and tractability should be practiced from the beginning. The colt's feet should be trimmed frequently enough to keep them in proper shape. Teaching the colt to move gracefully at the walk and trot, to stand well and to permit handling of its feet is very essential in the general training of the animal. Such training is also a great aid on exhibition day. The colt that has had liberal treatment from birth and developed well, needs but little exhibition fitting. Good feeding will put a bloom on the colt that cannot be attained in any other way. Protection from the hot sun and flies, blanketing and grooming are material aids in developing a desirable coat condition, and should be practiced during the month previous to the exhibition. Ribbon and straw decorations while very attractive to the average good horseman do not carry very much weight with the high class judge, and are not likely to be of influence except in very close competition.

Shaping the Lamb for the Fair.

Lambs presented for exhibition at school or other fairs should first of all have been born early enough in the spring to be well grown by exhibition time. The lamb's fleece should be kept free of ticks and lice, burrs and dirt. During the season, a washing can be given, if necessary, at least two weeks previous to the fair. Lambs that are kept up and fed in covered pens will show a better fleece than if they had been running out on pasture up to the last minute. The fleece should be neatly trimmed one week or more after washing. If washing is practiced, and care taken to keep the fleece free of chaff and dust until the exhibition is over. In feeding for exhibition, variety in feeding stuffs should be sought in order to keep up the lamb's appetite, using oats, corn, wheat, bran, cracked peas, barley meal and oil cake meal for the grain portion of the ration and good alfalfa or red clover hay, and sweet turnips as roughage. These feeds if mixed to give a ration with a nutritive ratio of 1 to 6 or 1 to 7 will take care of the growth demands and fatten the lambs. Should it be desired to feed the lambs while running on pasture, the grain ration given can be used. The lambs should be handled sufficiently to make them tame enough to stand well when being exhibited. If more than one lamb is called for in a class, all individuals should be uniform in size, type, condition of fleece and body fleshing. Getting the Pig Ready.

Pigs presented for exhibition at school or other fairs should first of all be of the proper type and weight for the class in which it is planned to exhibit them. The exhibit should be clean. This condition is best accomplished by regular application of warm water, soap and the scrubbing brush. The crate or pen should be well bedded with straw or shavings to make it comfortable and attractive. It should also be free from nails, old wire, broken bottles or any other material likely to injure the exhibit.—L. Stevenson, Sec., Dept. of Agriculture, Toronto.

It takes no more to feed a cow that tests high in butterfat, and she may be returning you double in profit.

Get the Cream of the Trade

"What lovely styles! How do you manage to get all these delightful novelties?" said the new customer as she looked around her.

"I got tired of seeing my customers boarding the trains to buy elsewhere, just because I didn't have some novelty that was being advertised."

"Whenever a new style makes a decided hit, the wholesaler or manufacturer's salesman calls me on Long Distance, and tells me about it, and I order a few."

"I haven't seen prettier veils, smarter stockings or gloves, georgette-crêpes or gingham anywhere. And I see you have the new music, too. How perfectly splendid. They leave me no excuse at all for going up to town to buy."

That's just one of the many things Long Distance does for small-town merchants, enabling Dry Goods, Hardware, Grocery, Paint and Shoe Stores to obtain new styles immediately and cater to the progressive people in their town — the cream of the trade.
