Sir

My present indisposition precludes me the honor of personally waiting on you, having something in particular to communicate to you relative to the Indian Department which I presume you are not as yet aware of, but my present circumstances rendering me incapable of communicating the purport verbally, when opportunity will admit I will have the honor of intimating you with the same by letter.

I have further to add that if you should feel disposed to accept of an Indian Curiosity which I am willing to present you that I should feel highly honored on the occasion.

I have the honor to be
Sir

Hon^{ble} Col. Clarke

Your very obedient
Humble servant
