

INDEX TO THE FIRST LINES.

PART I.

JUVENILE DIVISION.

PAGE		PAGE
A hungry fox one day did spy . . . . .	16	Oh sny, busy bee, whither now . . . . .	20
Among the deepest shades of . . . . .	8	Once there was a little boy . . . . .	28
Children, go . . . . .	12	Pretty bee, pray tell me why . . . . .	19
Come now, my pretty little . . . . .	13	School is a pleasure . . . . .	21
For a season called to part . . . . .	6	Slemply . . . . .	25
Gather, gather, the bell doth . . . . .	23	The dew was falling fast . . . . .	15
Gentle Jesus, meek and mild . . . . .	7	The north wind doth blow . . . . .	31
Here we stand, hand in hand . . . . .	11	The sparrow builds her clever . . . . .	17
Hop, hop, hop . . . . .	14	There came to my window one . . . . .	17
Jesus, tender Shepherd, hear . . . . .	6	There is a bird of plumage rare . . . . .	18
Lord, a little band and lowly . . . . .	5	This is the way we wash our . . . . .	9
March away, and keep good . . . . .	23	To be in good time is a . . . . .	27
March away, march away . . . . .	24	To the Central School we go . . . . .	26
My merrv little fly, play here . . . . .	20	Twinkle, twinkle, little star . . . . .	39
Now is it not a pity when a . . . . .	28	Up the hills at early morn . . . . .	26
Now we, little children . . . . .	10	We delight in our school . . . . .	22
Oh dear! what can the matter . . . . .	29	Yea, fear not, fear not, little . . . . .	8

PART II.

SENIOR DIVISION.

A farmer's life's the life for me . . . . .	94	Come sound the merry tabor . . . . .	45
A oft in my smithy I'm blowing . . . . .	93	Fear no more the heat o' the . . . . .	92
Away, for once with learned . . . . .	47	Faintly as tolls the evening . . . . .	81
Away over mountain, away . . . . .	58	Father of all, we bow to thee . . . . .	38
Away with gloom and sadness . . . . .	67	Gather ye rosebuds while ye . . . . .	84
Before all lands in east or west . . . . .	80	Gloomy looks the sky to-day . . . . .	62
Before the hill of science . . . . .	71	Go, youth beloved, in distant . . . . .	92
Be kind to thy father . . . . .	83	How calm is the summer sea's . . . . .	41
Be thou, O God, exalted high . . . . .	42	How sweet the sound, when . . . . .	65
Blow, blow, thou winter wind . . . . .	53	Higher, higher will we climb . . . . .	67
Come again . . . . .	48	Home, home! name how . . . . .	82
Come, come dear schoolmates . . . . .	59	Honest fellow, sore beset . . . . .	91