FINE CHANCE TO LEAVE IT ALONE

The Moderate Drinker's Attitude Towards the vote on July 10—Many will Vote for Prohibition

Most men who have been accustomed to take a drink when opportunity of food have said that they can take it or leave it alone, and most of them are right, because they can leave it alone and because they know a dry provinces is a better province to live in; a great many of them are going to vote for prohibition and against the sale of beer and wine on July 10. The men who know anything about alcohol beverages knows that a variety of prohibition which permitted the free sale of beers and wines would be no prohibition at all, and that the only way in which the benefits of prohibition can be secured is by making it as complete as possible. When men faced squarely with the issue for men will be willing to vote for conditions which they know to be bad for the community in order that they themselves may enjoy an occasional glass that is stronger than two per cent.

There is no question about the way in which the temperance folk will vote, and it is equally certain that those financially interested in the sale of liquor will vote the opposite way.
The issue will be determined by the great class in between—the voter who may not look with favor on the use of alcoholic beverages in moderation but who know that moderation is impossible to so many that prohibition is the only sound solution of the problem which strong drink has created, and who are willing to subordinate their personal preferences for the general good.

The men who have learned that they can go without the drink they once were accustomed to will face a dry future with satisfaction because of the easier conditions it will create.
The present prohibitory act does not entirely suit them, they know that it can be changed, but that any form of prohibition is better than none.
