CURIOS TO SEE DR. CRIPPEN BUILT

London, Aug. 29.—Surprise has been expressed here because Sir Henry Pellatt, in charge of the Queen's Own Rifles, did not immediately protest against Dr. Crippen and Ethel Levey being allowed to come aboard the steamer Megantic, when he learned that it was intended to send them to England on their ship.

But Inspector Dew might as well have put a placard on Dr. Crippen's breast reading "I am Crippen," as to take him ashore in the manner he did adopt. Much curiosity has been aroused as to the size of the bill the Canadian authorities will present to the home office for costs and detention with the arrest and detention of Dr. Crippen.

As Ethel Levey was leaving the dock at Bow street police court today her father, who stood impatiently behind her, called out: "Ethel, Ethel, I'm here," and her aunt threw kisses to her. Miss Levey had hardly time enough to turn around and recognize them before she disappeared through a door leading to the corridor.

London, Aug. 28.—The dramatic features expected in the trial of Dr. H. H. Crippen will be lacking, according to Solicitor Arthur Newton, of the defence. It is probable that the fight will be almost wholly over legal technicalities and that emotional appeals to the jury will not figure at all in the case.

From Newton's standpoint the affair summed up appears substantially as follows:—Fragments of a human body were dug up in the cellar of the house Dr. Crippen occupied in Hilldrop crescent. The police found the fragments which these fragments were found had recently been disturbed, but expert evidence will be introduced to the effect that it is impossible for anyone to stir the bricks had been untouched for as much as a month.

Dr. Pepper, the government analyst, has stated that he has identified the remains as those of a woman, but Dr. Marshall, who conducted the post-mortem, testified before the coroner that he could not give an opinion as to the sex. At any rate it seems certain that the prosecution will fail to make good its claims that the fragments are those of a woman who once underwent an operation, the overwhelming weight of medical evidence being that it is a sheer impossibility to find such traces in remains in the condition of those discovered in the Hilldrop crescent residence.

The police expect to make much of the fact that Crippen is known to have pawned jewelry after his wife's disappearance which is known originally to have belonged to her.

The defence will show, however, that he was for years continually pawning and redeeming these jewels.

Aspin, was Crippen's flight, particularly significantly, has been pointed out by the doctor, in view of his wife's admitted mysterious disappearance, to feel that suspicion was likely to fall upon him and that it was by no means surprising for him to shrink from a police inquiry.

RELIGIOUS FANATICS STARVE THEMSELVES

Los Angeles, Aug. 27.—The Rev. John O'Neil Irving, who said he had been pastor of a Baptist church in Dallas, Tex., died today in a cottage on Zenier street, just beyond the city limits, as the result of a fast which he, together with J. E. Butler, Mrs. Nellie Boyle and Alice Griffin, Mrs. Boyle's 16-year-old niece, had observed for more than six weeks.

All are members of a sect of which Irving was leader and which he styled "The Disciples of the Holy Ghost With the Gift of Tongues."

When detectives entered the cottage to regard the fasters lying on pallets, too weak to move, Irving invited the nurses of heaven upon the intruders. The four, he said, had not touched food for six weeks and for the last ten days had not stirred from their couches on the floor of a room that had not been aired since the fast began.

Alice Griffin said she had been forced to fast. When food was given her she ate it ravenously. It is feared that she will die from over-eating after her long abstinence.

THE NORTHLAND

What then should be done? What are the objections, if any? You may ask, "Is it to be dry farming?" The conditions, I imagine, would be very like those under which farming is carried on in southern Alberta: "What about frost?" you will ask: "Is there any part of this country that does not occasionally suffer from frost? I do not think so. The ability to unseasonable frost will be found to be much greater there than here.

"The distribution of trade for that country must go through Edmonton. It is your business to develop that country and to see that its trade is not diverted elsewhere. Mr. Cornwall has done, and is doing much, but you must help him. The first requisite is transportation facilities. You must build wagon roads and follow them with railroads; then you will have one of the greatest countries in the world."

Mr. Miller was followed by Mr. Wheeler, of Buffalo, who, though not a member of the party, was with them during the latter part of the return journey. Dr. Wheeler has been away for eight months in the far north, hunting caribou in the northern lands. Dr. Wheeler gave a very interesting account of his trip, but was unable, of course, to speak of the Peace River country as he had passed through as rapidly as possible in order to get into the far north. He stated, however, that on the 5th of July he had eaten new potatoes grown at Fort Rae within the shadow of the Arctic circle.

The Rev. Father Fallaire, of Lesser Slave Lake, who is in the city on his way to France, was the next speaker. The reverend father expressed a preference for the Cree language as a means of communication and protested his inability to address his audience in English. Nevertheless, though followed occasionally with difficulty by his French accent, he delighted the gathering with a lively speech, in which he expressed with genuine emotion his love for the north country and his profound conviction of the greatness of its future. He also joined with other speakers in paying a warm tribute to the character of "Jim" Cornwall and the affection in which he was held by the people of the north.

Emerson Hough's Address.

S. C. A. Lea, of Portage la Prairie, and E. W. Day, of Daysland, followed. Emerson Hough, author of "The Sowing," then delivered a clever speech in which he reviewed the account of the more amusing incidents of the trip. He assured the members of the Board of Trade that the journalists of the north had done what they could to make news in the United States the wealth of the undeveloped country through which they had passed.

"It will not be necessary for you to exaggerate," said Mr. Hough, "it will be sufficiently commended if you tell the truth of what we have seen."

"Great Area of Fertile Land." We saw there a great area of fertile land. It had been reported that that of four of the States of the Union—One of those States supports a rural population of two millions. We found there an area as fertile as that of the land to the south, and in Grande Prairie, Spirit River prairie and west from Dunvegan; there are great stretches of fine country ready for the steam plow.

"The soil is deep, and has a good subsoil that will hold the moisture well, and in the main is well supplied with the necessary organic matter. The timber land when opened up will prove to be as fertile as the prairie land. We did find that the rainfall was not as great as that of the States. In the States we think we should have from 28 to 40 inches. We made a careful examination of the records kept for a number of years at various stations, and found rainfall of from nine to seventeen inches. Just what the ultimate possibilities will be under those conditions it is not possible to state at the present time. It may be that conditions there are different from those prevailing in the States. One would think that it will be necessary to practise dry farming. It is a matter beyond question, however, that crops can and will be produced upon that land."

Even Corn May Be Produced. C. P. Bull, of the University of Minnesota, declared that he saw no reason why the north country should not produce in abundance any of the crops, with the possible exception of corn, that are the staple products of our eastern farms.

"I believe, too," said Mr. Bull, "that in time corn will be grown there. We saw some varieties of corn at Fort Vermillion, and I think that if you had a field agriculturist who could go among the farmers of the Grande Prairie and instruct the farmers how to raise their crops you would be fifty years in advance of the position you would otherwise occupy."

HOW ONE WOMAN REGAINED HEALTH

Utterly Helpless and Friends Did Not Expect Her to Get Better

The great fame of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is due to the fact that they have restored to active health and strength hundreds of people when all other treatment had failed to cure, and who had come to believe themselves hopeless, chronic invalids.

Yester day Hon. A. E. Forget, lieutenant governor of Saskatchewan, who has had to do with the making of history in that province, arrived in Vancouver on his first trip west of the Rocky Mountains.

"I am glad that I have been able to witness the marvelous transformation being made by the north country. It is a much greater empire than I had conceived. Certainly this western province presents unlimited opportunities to investors and to the homeseeker. Its resources are amazing and cannot be properly understood except by a personal inspection."
