Mr. Edwin Morrow, of Strathroy, is in receipt of an interesting letter from his son, Private Fred Morrow, of the Canadian Field Hospital Corps, on service in South Africa. Private Morrow was a student of medicine at the Western University here, when he enlisted in the hospital corps. In his letter, which is dated Klerksdorp, Western Transvaal, March 23, he states that Lord Methuen had been compelled to submit to the amputation of one of his legs as a result of the wounds received in the battle with wounds received in the battle with Delarey. Saturday, May 31. The purposes of the ered at 16:45, and general business will self-denial week are now well known, and are recognized as worthy of support. In this country especially, under the leadership of Commissioner Evangeline Booth, the army has made very satisfactory progress, and is on a sound footing. Its social institutions number 35, and the latest annual report shows gratifying condition. To support these institutions and the work in poor districts, as well as to extend operations and contribute toward the missionary work of the army among the aborigines of all continents, it is desired to raise this year $25,000, $5,000 of which is to be appropriated toward the acquisition of a central training home at Toronto, as Miss Booth realizes with the advance of the times more thorough and up-to-date training of army officers becomes imperative. The public will doubtless cheerfully give to the army collectors, in due re cognition of the valuable work which that unique organization does among the poorest and most needy of the land.
