What a mistake! as if there was any disgrace in doing so; and how can they tell that their ill advised pride will not work incalgulable hardship to their girl who may one day be deprived of them and thrown upon the world helpless and alone? Many a time has it been recognized that that the servant maid with her fair wages has been far more independent than the family governess who has to keep up appearances upon a remuneration that will not warrant them. In older countries the effect of this desire for gentility is more plainly seen, though it is becoming sufficiently apparent here. At the present moment it is a matter of difficulty there to get good respectable girls for domestic service, while at the same time thousands can be found to work for less wages in factories and stores, or as tailoresses, milliners or dress-makers. rl shall never soil her hands if we can

In spite of the excessive disfavor with which the masses regard the employment of cremation as a means of disposing of the dead, instances of its employment are constantly recurring, while the process itself has passed beyond the experimental stage. Only a few days ago the corpse of a woman was resolved into ashes in the crematory furnace at Buffalo, N. Y. The body weighed 98 pounds before the process, and afterwards but 3 pounds 7 ounces consisting of nothing but pearly sshes and a few calcined remnants of bones. Not so much upon the process itself as upon the very completeness with which it performs its task is dependent the very strong and general prejudice which exists against cremation. Whatever habit may accustom us to, the idea at present is repugnant to infidel and Christian alike. Though the particular condition of their remains, when those near and dear to us are lost to us forever on earth, can matter but little, yet the knowledge that they are literally but as dust, that can be scattered by the first wind, is too shocking to the feelings for oremation to become popular. Although when buried we may never see them again, yet we know that the earthly tenement of our dead are beneath the green sod, restriction to be one propular. SIB,—I am desired to inform you that the memorial which was presented to his excellency the governor-general on the occasion of his recent visit to Port Meedy by certain inhabitants of that place, with regard to the terminus of the Canadian Pacific railway, was referred to the animister of railways for any observation which he might wish to make. His excellency learns from the minister that, so far as the government is concerned Port Moody is recognized as the Pacific terminus of the road. Wharf accommodation has been provided at the place and steps have now been taken, through the sinking of iron piles, to obtain for the wharf immunity from the attacks of the toredo to which it is at present subject. At the same time it is clearly understood that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company may, on assuming this section, see at for reasons which, in their judgment are sufficent, to make connections with Pacific waters at other points, and in fact the company have intimated their contemplation of such a scheme.
