My profession isn't a popular one There's considerable prejudice against it. I don't, myself, think its much worse than a good many others. However, that's nothing to do with my story. Some years ago, me and the gentleman who was at that time connected with me in business-he's met with reverses since, then, and at present is able to get out-was looking around for a job, being at that time rather hard up, as you might say. We struck a small country town—I ain't a goin' to give it away by telling where it was, or what there ; the president was a rich old duffer owned the mills, owned the bank, owned most of the town. There was one bank there git he president was a nich old duffer owned the mills, owned the bank, owned most of the town. There wasn't no other officer but the cashier, and they had a boy who used to sweep out and run of errands. The bank was on the main street, pretty well up one end of it—nice, snug place, on the corner of a cross street, with nothing very near it. We took our observations.

Probably a great many of your readers is not so well posted as me about bank locks, and, I may say for them, that a three wheel combination lock has three wheels in it and a slot in each wheel. In exder to unlock the door you have to get three slots opposite to each other at the top of the lock. Of course if you know the number the lock is set on you can do this, but if you don't you have to depend on your ingenity. There is, in each of these wheels, is small hole, through which you put a wire through the back of the lock wheen you change the combination. Now, if you can bore a hole through the door and pick up those wheels by running a wire through those holes, why you can open the door. I hope I make myself clear. I was boring that hole. The door was chilled iron—about the neatest stuff I Probably a great many of your readers

Wholesale and Retail Now, if you can bore a hole through the door and pick up those wheels by running a wire through those holes, why you can open the door. I hope I make myself clear. I was boring that hole. The door was chilled iron—about the neatest stuff I ever worked ou : I went on steady enough ionly stopped when Jim—which, as I said, wasn't his real name—whistled out-adde, and the watchman toddled by. By and by when I'd got pretty near through Jim, so to speak, whitled again. I stopped, and pretty soon I heard footsteps outside, and pretty soon I heard footsteps outside. Theard a key in the lock. I was so dumb-founded when I heard that that you could have slipped the bracelets right on me. I picked up my lantern, and I'll be hanged if I didn't let the slide slip down and throw the light right into the door, and there was the president. I instead of calling for help, as I suppose he would, he took a step inside the door, and shaded his eyes with his hand and looked at me. I knowed I ough to knock him down and eut out, but I'm bleet if I could. I was that surprised. enclose two (3ct.) stamps for book. 402 QUEEN ST.
