A good deal of it has been sold in Winnipeg, though the long haulage is rather against it. The magnitude of the coal deposit in the Lethbridge region is believed to be great, and the mines now in operation are easily and cheaply worked. I regret that I am without statistics concerning them. Next to these mines the Banff Mines are those of which we have heard the most from the North-West. The locality is near to the line of the C. P. R., presty well up the mountains, and about 919 miles west of Winnipeg. There is an agency for the sale of the Banff coal at Winnipeg; but how much of the coal has been sold there I have not heard. The product of these mines is anthracite or hard coal, and already there have been considerable shipments to American points on the Pacific slope. With regard to these mines I am also without statistics.

The Irish Protestant Benevolent Society is an organization whose meetings are generally full of business and always devoid of fun. There was a regular meeting Tuesday night and it produced some fun.

The real business consisted of this: the appointment of a committee of Messrs. Scott and Adair to make arrangements for debates, etc., in the future; the election of Messrs. James M. Faircloth and James Cowan, as members; the announcement that the annual thanksgiving service would take place on Sun-members; the announcement that the annual thanksgiving service would take place on Suntantest training. All thanksgiving service would take place on Suntantest training, All thanksgiving service would take place on Suntantest training, All day, Nov. 18, at 3 p.m., in the Carlton-street Methodist Church, the sermion to be delivered by the Rev. W. J. Hunter; and the annual concert to take place in the Pavilion some time in the early part of November.

These metings have become rather dry, and with a view to making them more attractive in the place in the place in the Pavilion some time in the early part of November.

These metings have become rather dry, and with a view to making them more attractive in the part of November.

These meetings have become rather dry, and with a view to making them more attractive it has been decided that there shall be at least one racy Irish story recited every meeting night. President James L. Hughes undertook to start the fun-a-rolling, and Tuesday nights be related this Irish yarn:

"Two Irishmen met at a country in and were assigned to the same room, each occupying a separate bed. Becoming acquainted they took a quart bottle of whiskey to their room as Irishmen would do, and they proceeded to drink it. But they went to bed, not, however, till they had drunk three quarters of the bottle.

"They went to bed and after a bit Pat woke up and in his thirst decided to make game on Mike, his other friend, and so he quietly arose and finished the bottle, which had been left in a corner.'

"After a bit there arose Mike, whose stumbling gais aroused Pat, ""Mike, for the sake o' Heaven, what are ye looking for?' asked Pat, as he saw Mike crawling aeross the floor.

"For nothin!' say Mike, who was gropjected that it was not real anthracite, but a kind of soft coal, and therefore liable to duty. But when experts were put to work, and a thorough examination was made, it was proved to be genuine anthracite or hard coal; and since then it has passed without objection.

Such was the yarn of President Hughes and the other members are expected to follow up in due course.

We may safely enough assume that, in the whole of Canada west of the Red River, the quantity of coal, having commercial value and lying within commercial reach, is practically inexhaustible. The country, remember, is a very extensive one, and we are more likely to underestimate than to overestimate the quantity of coal which it contains. The testimony of our scientific autonized the Army & Navy out out always go there for any clothing you want. We have readers who take the paper just to read the news about the Army & Navy. Just now a great sale of overcoats is going on, and unless you go at once you may not get a chance at their best goods, King and Yonge-streets. thorities is entirely in favor of the belief that the Northwest will yet have a production of coal amounting to millions of tons per annum. And if soft coal were passing duty free between Canada and the States, as hard coal now is, the export of Canadian coal from the western country across the border would be something very large.

If coal were made entirely free, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, it would be a great would," I think I hear someone saying : but then is not that queer doctrine to be dvanced by a protectionist?"

I reply-Not so queer as you think, but quite in harmony with the very bottom principles of protection after all. For what is the aim and purpose of enlightened protection in any country? I answer: To promote the development of all such industries as are not hindered in that country by natural disability; or by such commercial disabilities as there could be only a very remote hope of removing. As I have before argued, protection was never intended to rectify the equator, as is done in the course of teaching geography in schools, when the terrestrial globe is rectified for the latitude of a particular place. It does not contemplate shifting degrees of latitude, or attempts to change permanent differences of climate. Without long debate it puts raw cotton, tea and coffee on the free list in Canada, because these are articles which we can never hope to produce in this country, by any encouragement of the home production. When, however, we come to the manufacture of cotton, the sase is different. For spinning and weaving machinery will run here as well as in achusetts, or in Lancashire, for that matter. And if we have not the necessary skill and machinery, these can be transferred. Then observe, by the way, that, in these days of railways, telegraphs, ocean steamers, cheap postage, and other "modern improvements the transfer of capital, skill and machinery from one country to another is becoming easier every year. If bur Free Traders could but see it, but apparently they can't! Every year the material means are increasing which render easier than before the transformation of a new, rude, unfore the transformation of a new, rude, undeveloped country, into one alive and stirring with the larger ambitions and more advanced capabilities of older ones. All this may be conceded, I suppose.

But Protection cannot change the loca-on of a coal deposit, any more than it can make the growing of cotton a feasible industry for Canada. Against the manufacture of cotton here nature has no law, but such attempts as those just above mentioned she forbids. Now, the coal situation appears to be about as follows: Canada has abundance of coal on her Atlantic coast, also on her Pacific coast, and in the Northwest at more points than we yet know of.

On the other hand our neighbours, while having in the aggregate far more coal than we have, are nevertheless in some locality.
