angelic expression that appeals strongly to female owners and causes them to rave over it.

A little later it gets stringy and long legged, with pale green freckles and warts, and generally uncouth and unprepossessing appearance. Fortunately, however, by this time its owners have become attached to it; otherwise it would be cast out to perish.

The habits of the Boy afford a most instructive study. It eats steadily from the time it gets up until it goes to bed, and devours the most indigestible substances with perfect impunity. Green apples, liquorice, hunks of bread and meat, coughnuts and whole pots of jam disappear down its throat without raising the slightest commotion in its stomach. When it is not opening its mouth to poke food down, it is opening it to temit a series of hideous sounds, so practically a Boy's mouth is never shut. These sounds are unintelligible to human beings, but are apparently understood by its mates.

Naturalists also call attention to the fact that a Boy is the only animal that Naturalists also call attention to the fact that a Boy is the only animal that spends its time in play, and it has been further observed that it soon wearies of any sport that does not hurt someone else. Another curious thing is that although a Boy can play all day, he becomes ill and weary the minute work is suggested to him or he starts to school. This is probably constitutional.

Occasionally a boy has been broken in to do a few household tasks, but it requires so much energy and trouble to make it do any useful work that few people have the physical strength to attempt it.

Boys are also femiphobes, and frequently bite and kick when a pretty girl desires to kiss them and stroke their hair. In time, however, they can be broken of this bad habit, and taught to endure female caresses with much equanimity. Naturalists also call attention to the broken of this bad habit, and taught to endure female caresses with much equanimity.

The chief characteristic of a Boy is his aversion to soap and water. In this it is like the cat, and it is with difficulty driven near the bath tub. It also balks at being dressed up and shown off before company. Now and then, it is true, you find one who will consent to be adorned in Fauntleroy collars, and who will get out on the floor and do its little tricks without the whip, but these are never pure-blooded Boys. They are mongrels with a strong strain of Sissy in them.

A curlous thing in this connection is that everyone who owns a Boy believes that he is a wonder and will be a future winner in the show. He also bitterly resents the insintation that his Boy possesses the same characteristics of other boys, or would be guilty of such a thing as breaking windows or ringing old maids' door bells.

Most people, as has been said, like to keep a Boy themselves, but all, without exception, object to their neighbor's, and those who have none ret even by pro-et to their neigh who have none get even by pro-ing evil things of the Boy across street. Sometimes, however, the ure turns out well, and then we all nearly worn out already. Please let me alone!

I am not a prodigy, except to the extent that, not having anything to say, I don't talk. Two big persons claim to be my parents—why can't they let it go at that? I have never denied the charge. I haven't much data to go by, but I don't think I am either a magician, a learned pig, or a virtuoso. I don't hanker for applause; so, it will be an appreciated favor if you won't put me through any parlor tricks.

If I have my wealthy old Uncle Exra's nose, congratulate Uncle Exra, but don't blame me. I may be a kleptomaniac, for all I know, but I can't help it.

Don't rattle rattles at me—they rattle me. Don't goo'goo and ootsie-kootsie, at ne. I jean't understand it any better than the English language.

The pain I have is not in my stomach, but in my neck. I don't want to be entertained or mystified or medicated or applauded. And, if you don't want me to grow up to be a hypochondriac, a stamp-collector, an awful example, a ping-pong enthusiast, a misanthrope, you just lemme me!—"Smart Set."

Dedude.—That man called me a liar, s cad, a scoundrel, and a puppy. Would you advise me to fight for that? Old Cent.—By all means. There's nothing nobler in this world, young man, than fighting for the truth.

desire to throttle a boy at sight, and on general principles, that they have to kill a smake. Unfortunately, the law prevents this; and as it has been found inexpedient to keep it confined fike a lion or a jackal in a steel cage, out of harm's way, human beings have been unable to protect themselves against a creature so bloodthirsty that it finds its chief delight in torturing its victims.

This causes everyone to view the advent of a Boy in a community with alarm, while the presence of two or three depreciates the value of property and makes nervous people fiee from the vicinity.

Although naturalists have devoted much time to the study of this vicinity.

Although naturalists have devoted much time to the study of this subject, they have never been able to definitely classify the Boy, owing to his partaking of the obnoxious traits of all the other animals. Physically, it is all Stomach and Yell, with a rudimentary heart and Notwithstanding all this property at Higheaute and a gold ring. Before leaving the village his many friends gave him another address and a gold headed cane.

Notwithstanding all this

A little later it gets stringy and long.

Motwithstanding all this, however, the Boy is greatly esteemed as a household pet, and is quite generally kept in that capacity. Indeed, few families are satisfied and happy without one, although after having received one they never know another minute's peace and quiet as long as they have it about the house. This is the most startling fact in all natural history, as, having observed their friends' boys, one would think that no money could induce a person to undertake to raise a creature that was so much trouble.

In looks the Boy presents a curious anomaly, as it changes at different ages. When it is quite young, and at the time it may be observed, that most people select it, it is soft and beautiful, with an angelic expression that appeals strongly to female owners and causes them to rave over it.

A little later it gets stringy and long.

The Process

The Process through which this new famous cloth is put, is not patented, but is a secret, known only to the company who proofs the cloth. Scores of imitators have tried various chemical treatments for making fabrics waterproof, most of which have been dismal failures. Every year has brought new improvements in the process, and today Priestley's "Cravanette" is undeniably the best cloth for rain coats.

381 Bloor street west, Toronto, Dec. 9th, 1908.

Bell Piano & Organ Co., Yonge street, Toronio. Dear Sirs,—I take this opportunity of congratulating you upon the excellence of the pianos being manufactured by your firm. A critical examination of the many details which enter into the manufacture of a first class instrument has convinced me of the superior character of the Bell piano. The touch, tone and general finish of the pianos of your firm, combine to make the Bell piano an instrument of which the manufacturers may well feel proud

Very truly yours, Conductor Mendelssohn Choir of Toronto Organist and Choirmaster Jarvis St. Baptist Church Teacher of piano playing at the Conservatory of Music Moulton Ladies' College, St. Margaret's College, etc.
