YANKEE MORALITY. - The Crescent was the first paper in the South to suggest and demonstrate the tremendous, in fact, irreparable damage the Confe-derate States could inflict upon Northern ocean, and other commerce, by issuing letters of marge and reprisal, in case the black Republicans, under lead of Lincoln should venture to add to their long, dark list of misdeeds, all tending to the injury and op-pression of the Southern people, the frightful crime of war. In the happening of the latter event we showed pretty conclusively that it was quite problematical whether the sails of a Northern merchantman would whiten the seas ninety days after the commencement of hostilities. The lapse of time has not weakened the belief then expressed. On the contrary, the impression then cutertained has grown and strengthened. What was barely doubtful at one time is now as positive a certainty as anything in the future can be Some of our friends have appeared dubious in regard to the likelihood of obtaining proper vessels to embark on these entirely legal, comparatively safe, and immensely profitable priva-icer excursions. We can tell all those who desire to see the South protected from wanton invasion to entertain no doubts in the premises. All the government of the Confederate States of Montgomery has to do is to issue appropriate sailing documents. This can be done without involving an expense exceed-ing five hundred dollars. The vessels, the armaments, the crows and all else necessary for the utter extermination of the ocean trade of the North, will be extermination of the occan trade of the North, will de furnished promptly, free gratis for nothing. All the getters up of these expeditions will ask is to be sup-plied with suitable papers. That is all-absolutely all They are not only willing, but extremely anxi-ous, to incur all the expense and run all the risks, all obside with the consistence of the the constitution only asking to be furnished with the requisite papers as aforesuid. But some one may again ask: Where are these vessels to come from? Why, from New York, Boston, Portland-from every port in Chris-tendom. The Yankee shipowners would as soon prey upon the property of their immediate neighbors, if they could make money by so doing, as they would steal our negroes, and as they do steal our negroes whenever an opportunity presents itself. The money god is the only deity they worship. Propositions having privateering on an extensive scale in view, have been received from them several weeks since, and in a recent number of the Richmond Despatch the statement is editorially made that many "South-ern gentlemen have lately received from Boston ship owners, inquiries as to the prospect of privateering being put in commission, and intimating that any nnmber of ships could be engaged by the Southern Confederacy if hostilities should occur" What a Christian people ! What a fraternal feeling they exhibit! What a rare spirit of honesty they manifest ! Raving against slavery at home-disciples of Wilson and devotees of Summer-yet, seeing a prospect of accumulating money by robbing their home neigh-bors and friends, they tender their ships to Southern slaveholders for that purpose, and are anxiously so-liciting permission to enter the Southern service on terms hinted at during the progress of this article. The Yankees had better look out. They may yet be torn into pieces by their own hounds .- New Orleans Crescent, March 4.

A few days ago, the operatives in a Western foun-dry, not being able to obtain an increase of compen-sation, knocked their employer down. That was an unequivocal "strike for higher wages."
