

CONCLUSION

The management of External Affairs considers its employees to be its greatest asset. They are also its greatest investment. Through early identification of problems and appropriate assistance human and financial loss can be kept to a minimum. If these same problems are ignored they almost inevitably get worse. With the cooperation of all parties concerned the management is confident that employees and their families can be helped to effectively deal with such problems.