

---

Constitutional Liberty, &c.

---

WERE all the members of a society on an equality, and were its laws and regulations such that no one could become more wealthy than his neighbour, but by excelling him in approved personal exertions, they would recognize in each other equal rights, their political system would, in the full latitude of the word, be a free government ; legislators would be only the

B