ENFORCED ECONOMY.

Government Caused Girl to Be Economical in Spite of Herself.

The girl who was born under the star of extravagance, whatever that is, was praised for her unattractive economy.

"Just think," her people said, "of having all that money over there in Paris, and not spending it."

"Don't blame me," the girl protested with unblinking candor. "It was not my fault. I wanted to spend it, but I could not. I couldn't get it. In spite of myself, I was forced into the path of economy by the French government."

"At the beginning of the war I solved all the business problems by making my trunk my banker. What money I had was drawn out of the bank and deposited in my trunk. That seemed a pretty safe place, so most of my money was left there when I went to London on a visit."

"I had made my home in Paris with an old school friend. While I was in London her husband died."

"When I came back it was as much as I could do to get into the house. The government had been in and had clapped red seals, fastened to the ends of a piece of tape, across everything about the place."

"My own trunk had not escaped. Right across the lock was a band of tape with these words: 'Liberty, Equality, Fraternity' above and below. They did not represent much liberty for me; they came nearer to representing captivity, for I had run up debts, and the only money I had to pay them with was in that trunk."

"Then came such a bargain sale. It consisted of lace and feathers and jewelry that had belonged to a very fine lady and were going cheap. They were sold at private sale and I was offered first pick of anything I wanted."

"For three months, while all the terrifying entanglements of French law were being unraveled, my money was imprisoned. When my friend's affairs were finally settled and the seals removed, the bargains I coveted had been sold elsewhere, so I had saved my money."—New York Times.

LADY OF GRACE OF THE ORDER OF ST. JOHN OF JERUSALEM

Madame Thibaudan, honored for her work on behalf of the wounded and for other charitable endeavors. For many years, Madame Thibaudan was president of the Notre Dame Hospital, and was always identified with philanthropic movements in Montreal. Since the beginning of the war, she has been president of the patriotic fund, "Aide à la France." Madame Thibaudan and Madame Delaunay, wife of Senator Delaunay, are the only two French-Canadian women who have thus been honored by the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

AN OPEN LETTER TO WOMEN OF CANADA

The following open letter to the women of Canada concerning the need for fighting men has been issued by the National Committee of Women for Patriotic Service. The officers of the Committee include H. R. H. the Duchess of Connaught, H. R. H. the Princess Patricia, Lady Laurier and Lady Borden.

A year ago the thunderbolt of war fell upon us out of a clear sky! After the first moment of surprise and confusion had passed, we asked, "How can we help?"

During the year that has passed, that question has found many answers. The trained nurse quickly proved her value. Other women were called upon to organize and direct Red Cross and St. John Ambulance work or Patriotic Societies, while all gave time or money or personal service in preparing supplies.

To comparatively few came the need for the supreme sacrifice—the sending forth of husband, son or brother to the fight. The first appeal for volunteers was limited and did not appear very urgent. All honor to those who heard and obeyed the earliest call of Empire and whose women sent them forth with pride to fight in the front ranks of the Canadian forces.

Today the situation has changed. We have learnt, after a year of war, that our task is harder, our danger more real, than we thought a year ago. We have "given" gladly; now we are called to "give-up," and service must fill itself in sacrifice. Most urgent of all today is the call to give up ungrudgingly our husbands, sons and brothers. We are called to create in our homes such an atmosphere of self-devotion that our men and boys may feel their resolution to offer themselves in their country's service is simply what we expect of them.

This does not mean that women should be constantly urging their men to enlist, for it is doubtful if the patriotic persistence of a wife or mother would produce anything but a reluctant and resentful recruit. The men of Canada have not shown themselves less patriotic than their women; but it is for us, the women of Canada, to ask ourselves whether our self-sacrifice is falling short of the supreme test.

ARE WE MAKING IT HARD OR EASY FOR OUR MEN TO OBEY THEIR COUNTRY'S CALL TO SERVICE?

Why is the call so urgent now?

The answer is simple: it is because our existence as an Empire is at stake. WE WENT INTO THE WAR TO KEEP OUR SOLEMN PLEDGES TO OUR ALLIES; AND THIS REASON STILL HOLDS GOOD.

But there are new other reasons which did not exist a year ago. Belgium with her ravaged land and exiled people cries aloud for justice. What do Canadian women say to the appeals of her outraged women and mutilated children? They have suffered for us; what are we willing to suffer for them?

The women of France and Russia and the United Kingdom have long heard the appeal to give up their men, and have responded nobly. What will Canadian women do?

Beyond the keeping of our pledged word, the woes of Belgium, and the example of our Allies, there comes to us today the knowledge that we are called on to fight our own battles; not to send help to Belgium or France or even England, but to fight for our own national existence.

We are told by the men who know that we cannot win in this war without more men.

If we hold back our men we are courting defeat; and defeat means, not a vague misfortune to the Empire at large, but the very practical result of a Canada governed by Germans.

Do we want to know what that would mean? Then let us look at Belgium, and learn how the yoke of the conqueror galls the neck of a freedom-loving people. Defeat would mean for us a period of bitterest shame and discontent, and then—another war. Can we risk it? We are risking it if we do not make the path of service easy for our men.

But the most compelling call for sacrifice rings out from the graves of those who on the fields of Flanders, at Langemark, and Ypres, and Festubert, have blazed the trail to glory with their life blood.

CAN WE MAKE THEIR SELF-SURRENDER OF NO AVAIL BY HOLDING BACK THE MEN WHO WOULD TAKE UP AND COMPLETE THEIR SPLENDID TASK?

There is a saving which is losing; it is worth "saving" our men from death if we lose their respect! There is a loss which is gain: even though we learn to face "Desperate tides of the whole great world's anguish, forced through the channels of a single heart."

We are called to scale the gleaming peaks of self-sacrifice, in the company of our brave sisters of the Allied nations.

BRITISH TRAWLER GROUNDS

AT CAPE TORMENTINE

Floated After Cargo of Fish and Fuel Had Been Removed—Large Catches of Fish Made

(Sackville Tribune)

Few of our readers are perhaps aware that there are British fishermen dragging the waters of the Northumberland Straits and adjoining waters for fish. Nevertheless such is the case and the fishermen from the old land are making some excellent hauls. Recently two trawlers from the other side were seen near Cape Tormentine and those residing at that point of Westmorland county have on different occasions visited the men on board.

An occasional Tribune correspondent paid a visit to the fishing vessel and had an interesting interview with the captain of the craft. The captain said that he left Grimsby, England, the nearest point in that country to Germany, the day the Lusitania was sunk. He took his course round the north of Scotland and sailed for these parts. While off the north coast of Scotland he saw a British steamer torpedoed about three or four miles away.

The trip was made in sixteen days. He was asked how long his crew had been fishing and he said about two weeks, during which time more than 285,000 pounds of fish had been caught and 155,000 pounds of the total had been taken from the water in five days. The daily catch of the five days averaged 31,000 pounds or 15½ tons.

This trawler came to grief on Thursday morning when she came too close to the land and tried to cross a very dangerous reef off Cape Germain light. Another trawler passed safely over the reef and put out to sea, but the stranded vessel had to discharge her fuel as well as her fish and other ballast before she could be floated. The vessel was not damaged and proceeded on her way on Friday morning when the tide was at its height.

The captain said that it was a most hazardous occupation fishing in the North Sea and for that reason he chose the waters of the Canadian seacoast in preference to the troubled waters on their own fishing grounds.

Outmeal or wheatmeal porridge is quite sufficient for breakfast, with milk, bread and butter to follow, and a lettuce or stewed rhubarb.
