Drayton Wired a "Mistake" in Press Account by Algoma East Man.

TORONTO, Aug. 9—The Canadian Press has received a number of inquiries from its members as to the correctness of its report covering Mr. Meighen's meeting at North Bay on August 4 last, in particular in regard to a statement then made by G. B. Nicholson, late member for Algoma East, as follows:

"Do you want to endorse a condition," asked Mr. Nicholson, "in which one of the chief public buildings of the country in Ottawa is practically turned into, a bawdy house and the keeper of that bawdy house is in the payroll of this country at $8,500 a year?"

of that bawdy house is in the payroll of this country at $3,500 a year?"

REPORTED BY HAMBLETON.

This meeting was reported by George Hambleton, Ottawa, superintendent of the Canadian Press, who, as is the cestom, is accompanying the prime minister on his speaking tour. In sending over the wire this statement of Mr. Nicholson, just before midnight of Avg. 4, Mr. Hambleton added the following note for our night editor in Toronto:

"Please call Mr. Livesay's attention to Nicholson's statement re public building bawdy house. Nichelson says my report of his statement is correct, but Mr. Livesay might think it unlessfrable to run it."

STATEMBERS.

Without Accidents

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 — The Brooklyn City Railroad. Company has established a bonus plan for conductors and motormen to reduce accidents on its lines. Under the plan each employee $5 for each 80 days in which he operates cars without accident. The plan is part of an agreement made with the employes concerning working conditions for the year. Awards will be distributed on Dec. 15 of each yéar, so that employes entitled to bonuses may collect the funds in time for, Christmas shopping. The company since Thursday and had already sold his first life insurance policy.

Mr. Lavin said that he had been to the offices of the Intable to the offices of the Intab bo Nicholson's statement re public building bawdy house. Nicholson says and ready and the statement is correct, but Mr. Livesay might think it undestrable to run it."

STATEMENT PUBLISHED.

This message was immediately communicated to the writer who as no reason for, withholding publication of a statement made on a public platform by a member of the late House of a statement made on a public platform by a member of the late House of a statement made on a public platform by a member of the late House of Canadian Press carried the following news despatch from Ottawas OTTAWA, Ang. 64. B. Nicholson, member in the last House for East Algoma, wired to Sir Henry Drayton, acting premier, tonight a protest against the interpretation place and should subject the saying that "one of the chief public buildings of the country in Ottawa is practically turned into a bawdy house." Mr. Nicholson tonight states that the referred to the "chief city of Canada," and by that he meant the city of Montreal.

HAMBLETON'S REPLY.

Thereupon the writer wired Mr. Hambleton, then with Meighen in Manitoba referring to the above statement by Mr. Nicholson, and asking whether he was quite certain Mr. Nicholson said Ottawa and not Montreal. Yesterday Mr. Hambleton wired in reply from Winnipeg as follows:

"Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 8, '26.

"Re Nicholson: Before filing despatch I sent this note to Nicholson in meeting, as follows:

"Dear Mr. Nicholson: I did not quite catch your reference to the public building. Is this correct, please?"

"Do you want to endorse a condition in which one of the chief public buildings in the country in Ottawa, is partially turned into a bawdy house and the keeper of that bawdy house is on the payroll of the country at $3,500 a year.'

"This note was returned to me without any changes, and marked 'Yes.' I still have it. I notice my despatch as published quotes him as saying 'practically turned;' actually words were 'partially turned.' Copy is at North Bay but my recollection is I wrote 'partially.' In my note to Nicholson I underlined words 'in Ottawa' to draw his attention to them, but the made no change.

"(Signed)
"GEORGE HAMBLETON."

The above is furnished for the information of the membership as showing the textual correctness of Mr. Hambleton's report.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 10—Although Montreal is wet, the city just now is in the stage of a fierce quest in which a mythical bottle of extra old Scotch whisky is the hidden treasure. Down in the heart of the financial district, the Royal Bank of Canada is to build a sixteen-story building covering a whole block. That section is the haunt of history, myth and tradition. History shows the sale of the plot was the first officially recorded land transfer in the island of Montreal, that being about 1650. Myth has it that the wreckers will uncover remains of soldiers buried there when one corner was used as an arsenal, about 1700. Tradi-MONTREAL, Que. Aug. 10-Al-

Therein lies the quest. The workmen, untouched by the anxiety of historians that they should find the cornerstone of another old institution on part of the gas stove to prevent rusting.
