"Hello! Hello!! Oh! Yes!!!"
"I should say so! Everyone who tries it says there's nothing like St. George's."
"I know—but wouldn't you rather get a Baking-Powder you are sure is good?"
"St. George's is really less expensive—it goes farther and does better work—and never wastes flour in failures."
"No, indeed! There's not an atom of adulteration in St. George's Baking Powder—and the Cream of Tartar is 100% pure."
"Never! It makes the biscuits deliciously light."
"Yes, yes! Just try St. George's on my recommendation—if they're not good, I'll eat them all myself—at one sitting."
"Yes—the manufacturers guarantee it—and I guarantee it too."
"Certainly! Money back, if it's not just as I say it is."
"Thank you. I'll send it right away."

RAINBOW-HUED HOSE DISORGANIZE SCHOOL

Boys' Suspended for Pedal Adornment—
Girls Baffle Inquiry.

ST. LOUIS, May 27.—An epidemic of gorgeous hose, which has broken out among the students of the Kirkwood High School and the teachers are near distraction.

Walter Mulholland and Clark Vickers went to school each wearing one flaming scarlet and one bright orange sock. Principal Kirkhead called the two "dilettantes of fashion" to his office and lectured them severely. Yesterday morning the horrified faculty beheld a throng of boys sauntering toward the school wearing hose of all colors of the rainbow with no single pair a match. Kirkhead sent home thirteen boys whose socks did not match.

One of the women teachers whispered in the principal's ears that forty of the girl students in sympathy with the boys' movement were wearing startling stockings. Unable to discover the culprits, as in the case of boys, he had to content himself with sending home one unwary girl.

Crowds See Nickel Pictures.

The Nickel did "capacity" business yesterday when the new pictures were put on. All throughout the day, and until 10.30 in the evening, the crowds came and went. A thousand children must have seen the first two rounds of the show in the early afternoon, and they were delighted with the programme. The long film, pictorial of children's pets was easily the most acceptable to the little ones, but even the tiniest tot laughed and giggled at the adventures of St. John in quest of John Smith and the misadventures of the well known society man tormented with a flea, at the afternoon tea. Raffles, the dog, proved to be of absorbing interest, showing as it did, how cleverly canines can be trained, even in the line of stealing and highway robbery. The New York city scenes in connection with this film were in themselves capable of holding the attention of the spectators. These pictures and the song "Down in the Willow Where the Bluebells Grow" will continue to the programme until Wednesday night. Thursday the outfit will be completely changed.

FINDS SKIRT WHERE HE LOOKED FOR OVERALLS

Bachelor Billposter, Changing Salt Cases
by Mistake, is Shocked.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., May 27.—Wouldn't it embarrass you, saying you were an unmarried billposter, if, when you opened your dress-suit case in the railroad depot, preparatory to donning a pair of overalls and putting up a "stand," you found that it contained a princess skirt, three light shirtwaists, a corset cover, two pairs of silk stockings, a pair of No. 2 slippers, a box of talcum powder, a box of hairpins and sundry other articles for which you could not possibly guess the name? Wouldn't it make you turn red?

That is what happened at Mount Union station this morning to William Moore, ex-cathedra billposter. Moore left the depot at the same time that the delegates of the Women's Missionary Society, of the United Brethren Church left town, and somehow the biller got a suit case belonging to Mrs. Edward Brown, of Altoona, instead of his own.

The suit case was identified by one of the Mount Union delegates, who recognized the sundry articles when appealed to by the billposter.

City Cornet Band Fair

The City Cornet Band again had a successful day at their fair yesterday. The drawing for the door prizes resulted as follows: Barrel of flour, Miss A. B. Parsons; glove and handkerchief, Miss A. B. Parsons; fancy vase, Miss Sweeney; manure set, 50¢; fancy ornament, 43¢.

An excellent programme was played by St. Mary's Band. Vocal solos were sung by H. Campbell and Frank O'Hara. For this evening another good programme, including band selections has been arranged.

Last night the prize for gentlemen's bean-board was won by Chris. Nielsen. On Saturday the first prize prize, a barrel of flour, went to Mrs. Cronin.

CATS FOR INDIA.

LONDON, May 25.—A firm of ship-pers in the city received an order yesterday for a shipment of 100 cats to India. They are wanted to destroy the rats in one of the plague districts.

PATRONYMS OF EUROPE'S KINGS

Little Known Family Names of Sovereigns.

Use of Inognito Names is a Privilege Reserved for Royalty.

Royalty, in addition to the titles by which its members are commonly known, possesses both inognito names and patronyms. The inognitos are extensively used by the Anointed of the Lord when travelling, and are therefore tolerably familiar to the public. But the patronyms, on account of ignorance and misconception prevail with regard to the patronyms of the reigning houses of Europe. Not one person in a thousand could reply offhand to an inquiry for the family names of the Kings of England, Greece and of Norway, while in the case of other rulers, their real patronyms differ considerably from those popularly ascribed to them. By the word patronymy, which is of Greek origin, and the etymological derivation of which is from pater (father) and enma (name), is meant the name of the father which has descended in a direct male line, and not that which has been assumed by reason of marriage with heiresses, or for other causes.

Thus, although words of reference describe King Alfonso XIII. as a Bourbon, his patronymy is in reality Capet. The family of Bourbon became extinct as far back as the twelfth century, in the reign of the Capet King, Louis of France, when his sixth son, Robert Capet, Count of Clermont, married Beatrice of Bourbon, last and sole surviving member of her house, whose name, title and arms he thereupon assumed. It is from this union that descended in direct male line King Alfonso of Spain, the Duke of Orleans, the ex-Sovereign Duke of Parma, Don Carlos, and the Count of Savoy. Pretender to the throne of Naples. The Terrorists of 1793 were well aware that there were no longer any real Bourbons in existence; for throughout the trial of the ill-fated Louis XVI, they invariably addressed him as Louis Capet, the name under which he was ultimately sent to the scaffold.

Nor is Romanoff the patronymy of the reigning House of Russia, but Oldenburg or Altonburg. The House of Romanoff passed out of existence with the death of its last survivor, Peter the Great, who was succeeded as ruler of Russia by her nephew, Peter of Oldenburg, Duke of Holstein-Gottorp, son of her younger sister, Grand Duchess Anna. It is from this pair, who reigned as Peter III, that Emperor Nicholas II, and the whole of the reigning House of Russia are descended, and they are therefore not Romanoffs, but Oldenburgs. The founder of their family in Count Eilmar of Oldenburg, grandson of Wittekind, the celebrated antagonist of Charlemagne, and it is in the direct male line the present rulers of Denmark, Greece, Norway and Oldenburg, all of whose patronyms are the same as those of Emperor Nicholas, namely, Oldenburg.

Witte is the patronymy of King Edward, of Leopold of Belgium, of the King of Saxony, of the Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar, of the Duke of Coburg-Gotha, of Saxe-Altenburg, and of Saxe-Meiningen, of the Prince of Bulgaria, as well as of King Carlos of Portugal. The latter claims to be a Braganca. But the only princes entitled to that patronymy are the sons of the late, ex-King, Miguel of Portugal, now exiles in Austria. The original Wittekin, from whom all these nine names are descended in the male line, took his name from the Castle of Wittekin, near Magdeburg, and, like the one person in a thousand, he was a Witte-kind as the founder of his race.

Emperor Francis Joseph is styled a Hapsburg. But his patronymy is either Alsace or Parraine. For he is descended in a direct line from Eilichon, Duke of Alsace in the eighth century, one of whose great-grandsons, Gerard d'Alsace, was created first hereditary Duke of Lorraine by Emperor Henry III. Duke Francis III of Lorraine in 1738 married Arch Duchess Maria Theresa, only child and heiress of Emperor Charles VI, and through her marriage, a Mecklenburg, and a member, therefore, of the most ancient dynasty of Europe, which is able to trace its descent in the male line direct from Genseric, King of the Vandals, in the fifth century.

In the fifth century, the King of Italy, the founder of whose house was Humbert of the White Hands, Count of Savoy, who died about the time of the first crusade. The patronymy of the Grand Duke of Baden is Zähringen. That of the reigning family of Bavaria has for nearly a thousand years been Wittelsbach, a name taken from a village in Upper Bavaria; while the King of Sweden is of course a Bernadotte, being the great-grandson of a Fyrenian peasant of that name.

With regard to inognito names, it is not generally known that in Europe their use is restricted to royalty, and if adopted by persons of less exalted rank is likely to get them into trouble with the police. Thus ex-Crown Princess Stephanie, being held to have forfeited her royal and imperial rank by her marriage to the Hungarian Count Louis, was called to account by the Austrian authorities for having endeavored to conceal her identity by means of an inognito name during a sojourn at Vienna, and it was pointed out to her that, being no longer a Princess of the Blood, she had become debarred from the exclusively royal prerogative of using an inognito. It is a prerogative which is for it enables them to travel about freely, almost as ordinary citizens, and as such are freed from all ceremonial obligations of their rank.

Thus, when King Leopold visits Paris as ruler of Belgium, he is received with much pomp and state, with which he remains until his departure. He is accompanied to the railway station, and to allow his time to be disposed of as the French authorities, his hosts, see fit. But if he comes to Paris under his inognito name of

Remorse Prompts Poison—Police May Decide Not to Prosecute.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 27.—Graphic details of a domestic tragedy that started in the village of Kittanning, Pa., were given to the local police tonight, when Lewis J. Mason, believing that he was dying from a suicidal dose of poison, confessed to a detective that remorse for a double wrong he had inflicted on his wife and family, and on another woman with whom he had been living since he fled from his former home, led him to try and kill himself. The man was rushed to the hospital today after he had confessed to the woman who was supposed to be his wife that he had swallowed four ounces of iodine. The confession was made at the bedside of the woman to whom four days ago a child was born.

It was while in the throes of what he supposed to be approaching death, however, that the man who told his story to Detective Appel of the local force. It is to the effect that he was a prosperous baker in Kittanning, with a wife and family. He refused to tell the name of the woman with whom he had been living, but declared that she was young and unmarried when he became enamored with her and began to neglect his family.

Later he says, that he decided to go off with her. Before leaving he declares that he made over his money and property to his rightful spouse, and there has been no attempt to cause him trouble here.

Mason secured a job as driver of a brewery wagon, and took up residence with the woman at 16 North Illinois avenue. Here the child was born, and a realization of the disgrace he had brought upon her and upon himself prompted him to suicide.

Sympathy for the woman and baby who are left without support, may decide the police not to arrest Mason for the attempt on his life, unless his family shall ask that it be done. The man is prostrated from the shock, and her physicians refuse to allow her to talk.

30 MAD COWS SHOT IN IOWA; DOG BIT THEM

Serious Epidemic of Hydrophobia Prompts
Governor to Order Cattle
Slaughter.

INDIANOLA, Iowa, May 27.—One mad dog succeeded in running thirty head of valuable cattle, threatening entire community and causing the governor of the state to call upon the police authorities to shoot all dogs found on the street at sight.

When J. P. Robinson, a farmer, arose this morning he found his herd of cattle raging and bellowing about his premises, having escaped the fenced inclosure during the night. He saw at once that most of them were mad. Neighbors who came to his assistance shot three of the cattle, and when the state veterinary reached the farm this afternoon he shot the balance of the herd.

The dog which did the damage was killed some days ago. The worst epidemic of hydrophobia ever known is now raging in central Iowa, and Governor Cummins has issued orders to shoot all dogs found at large.

FREDERICTON, N. B., May 27.—A large number of gentlemen met this evening at the Queen Hotel, when it was decided to form an association to be known as The New Brunswick Fish and Game Protection Association. John Palmer, mayor of the city, and J. P. Vinnal, secretary, presided.

The meeting was called for the purpose of organization, and it was agreed to hold a gathering of all those interested in sporting for June 12th at the Queen, when the final organization will be completed, a constitution agreed upon and steps taken to put the object of the association into force. The association is to be an entirely provincial one and not local. Its aim is to protect the fishing and game interests of New Brunswick. One of the objects is to establish in the appointment of two wardens to assist the Dominion wardens in protecting the St. John river, the belief being that this river is properly protected can be made equal to any in Canada as a salmon river.

The secretary was instructed to write other provincial organizations for drafts to aid in forming a constitution. Similar associations prevail in other provinces and in the states, and the result has been most satisfactory. At the meeting tonight T. F. Allan, president of the Tobique Salmon Club, was present and greatly assisted the undertaking in its formation. Mr. Allan having had considerable experience along this line. Mr. Allan believes that the St. John river, if properly protected will be a great benefit to the province and to the people living along its course.

Col. Chipman met the officers of the first regiment here this evening and talked over plans for the coming season.

WILL EXTEND LINE TO 10 MILE CREEK

The annual meeting of the St. Martin Telephone Company was held in this city yesterday. The principal business done was the election of officers for the ensuing year. The appointed officers were as follows: President, C. M. Bowditch; vice president, W. E. Skilken; secretary and manager, A. D. Mackin; directors, W. M. Jarvis, H. O. Stockton and C. E. Trueman.

The extension of the company's lines to Ten Mile Creek was decided upon. A proposition was also made to have the present telephones used by the company removed and replaced by those of a more modern type. The matter has not been definitely decided yet. If the change is made it is likely that the "Kellogg" phones will be installed.
