U-BOATS TAKEN IN TRAP MINES

Une Month.

London, Jan. 7.—Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, describes the men of the 20th British mine-layer flotilia as some of the bravest and pitckiest of the British may.

Sir Eric said that night after night British mine-laying submarines had to proceed through the great German mine fields off Heligoland to discover cnannels through which German boats left and returned to their bases. The British seamen then blocked these channels with mines. During the first six months of 1918, Sir Eric added more than 100 German boats were caught in these trap mines.

"On one occasion," said Sir Eric, "four of our flotilia going into Heligoland Bight were observed by six German outpost boats which were leaving. Our boats by subterfuge got insule and laid their mines and on the return journey mopped up all six of the Creman boats and took their crews prisoners. Our mine barrier across the Channel below Ostend trapped 17 German submarines in one month.

United States Steel yielded a parto, its one point advance and kindred industrials and equipments were sluggish, and not materially changed, while coppers eased under further pressure.
