THE CANADA FOOD BOARD SAYS:

Never perhaps since the opening of the war have the Allies had more sound reason for optimism than at the beginning of this last quarter of the year 1918. The enemy has been defeated in a succession of battles on the Western front. His successes of the spring have been neutralized and his campaign upset. A million and a half men have been added to the Allied military resources from the United States. The submarine menace has greatly declined. The number of ships for carrying supplies has been greatly augmented. The efforts of this continent to keep the soldiers fed and stave off threatened starvation in Allied Europe until the new harvest became available has been gloriously successful. And further, the harvests of Great Britain, of France and of Italy have, in some measure, overcome the disadvantages reported earlier in the year by reason of weather conditions and are being safely garnered by the help of women, boys, civilians from the cities, prisoners of war, and soldiers released from active duty at the front for short periods. Greater than all these factors of success in "food fighting" will be the magnificent harvest being reaped by farmers of the United States. This year's harvest promises to be the greatest on record.

It cannot be too emphatically urged, however, that the necessity for conservation of food and increased production of food will continue in this country while the war lasts and for some time afterwards. The encouraging news as to the release of the strain which was viewed so seriously earlier in the war should not lead us to relax our efforts now, except in so far as the Canada Food Board may revise the food regulations as circumstances warrant from time to time. The results which have been obtained on this continent by the use of substitute foods for those required overseas are the basis of the optimistic outlook of the Allied food situation in Europe today. The situation of the immediate future is based on the continuation of those efforts. The food reserves of the world at war have been exhausted. The 1918 crops in Allied countries must be conserved for the future and our efforts to produce foodstuffs in greater abundance must not be relaxed.

There is grave danger always when a crisis is passed of falling back into the condition from which we have escaped, through the relaxation of our vigilance and our energy. The Food Controllers of the Allies have warned us of this danger. We should be warned also of persons who, well meaning, but nevertheless in the interests of the enemy, urge that all such efforts to conserve and produce are now superfluous and that the danger is past. The danger is not past. But we have found a way of overcoming it and we must follow that safe path until the war is over.

TWELVE SAFETY RULES TO AVOID INFLUENZA

1. To avoid needless crowding—influenza is a crowd disease.
2. Smother your coughs and sneezes—others do not want the germs which you would throw away.
3. Your nose, not your mouth, was made to breathe through—get the habit.
4. Remember the three C's—a clean mouth, a clean skin and clean clothes.
5. Try to keep cool when you walk and when you ride and sleep.
6. Open the windows—always at home at night; at the office when practicable.
7. Food will win the war if you give it a chance—help by choosing and chewing your food well.
8. Your fate may be in your own hands—wash your hands before eating.
9. Don't let the waste products of digestion accumulate—drink a glass or two of water on getting up.
10. Don't use a napkin, towel, fork, spoon, glass or cup which has been used by another person and not washed.
11. Avoid tight clothes, tight shoes, tight gloves—seek to make nature your ally, not your prisoner.
12. When the air is pure, breathe all of it you can—breathe deeply.

FURTHER PARTICULARS OF PTE. ISAAC KUNES' DEATH

The sisters of Private Isaac Kunes, who fell in France, have received the following letter, addressed to his mother, now deceased:

France, Sept. 9.
My dear madam,—It is with the deepest regret that I write you today to give you further information as to the death of your noble son who was killed on the afternoon of the 3rd by a shell. A small portion hit him in the head and he died instantly.

He was the stretcher-bearer in my platoon and was without a doubt the best liked man in our whole company. Every man called him the Doc, as he was at all times looking after them. In fact, he treated every man in my platoon as if they were his boys, and they never had a cut or sore foot that he didn't fix it up for them.

On Sept. 2nd, when we had our heaviest fighting, I never saw a man work so hard and as well as your son. He seemed to be every place at once dressing wounds. He never thought of himself. His only thoughts were to save the lives of others by dressing their wounds, and many men were saved that day by his wonderful work. Had he lived he would be wearing a decoration today for his fine work.

His personal effects will be sent to you in a few days by our padre, who will also give you information re his burial. Yours very truly,
G. D. TELFER, Lieut.

Canada's Democratic Army.

"Canada's Democratic Army," is the title of a column special article in The London Chronicle, intended to show that insistence on staff college standards of leadership in the field is a mistake. The writer points out that the commanding officer of the C. E. F. Army Corps, Gen. Currie, though always a keen military student and citizen soldier, is a real estate agent; Gen. Turner, commanding the Canadian Division in England, is a miller in business; Brigadier-Generals Maclaren and Griesbach, and the late Gen. Mercer were all solicitors, and Brigadier-Gen. Watson, commanding the 4th Canadian Division, who had been a grocer before the war, was formerly a reporter.

One might, says the writer, go through the whole list of Canadian generals and find not more than four or five "professional soldiers. The bearing of all this is that the British armies are full of extremely able and highly trained civilians who are not getting a chance. Staff college training has proved again and again a disadvantage. The Canadian civilian showed common sense and no cobwebs, and has frequently done better than has staff college men.

Our War Figures.

Canada's war expenditure for the nine months of the fiscal year ending December 31 amounted to $171,748,839. During the same period in the previous fiscal year the expenditure was $170,229,748. For the months of December alone, the war cost $19,779,563. In December, 1916, it cost $23,702,217.

The revenue of the Dominion for the nine months was $190,658,370, as against $166,856,340 for the similar period in 1916. For December alone the revenue was $20,617,363. In December, 1916, it was $21,943,775. Expenditure chargeable to revenue, $96,952,537, as compared with $81,596,505 in the previous year.

The total national debt of the Dominion on December 31st stood at $976,428,504. On the same date in 1916 it was $722,111,449. During December the debt increased by $13,427,803, which was approximately a million less than the war expenditure for that month.

The grain dealers of Western Canada estimate that the acreage sown to wheat in 1917 is 12,750,000 acres as compared with 13,800,000 acres in 1916.

Are you saving for Victory Bonds?

With Acknowledgments to Luke Fildes, R.A.

To every home there comes a time when every thought, every hope, every prayer for the future centres on the recovery of one loved one. In that hour of anguish, every means to recovery is sought—the highest medical skill, trained nurses, costly treatment. Does the price matter?

It may be so great as to stagger the imagination—a sum beyond the possible.

But does anyone ask, "Can we do it?" Money or no money, they do it. And somehow they pay.

It may mean doing without things they think they need. It may mean privations, sacrifices, hardships. They make unbelievable savings, they achieve the impossible, but they get the money to pay.

To-day in this critical period of our nationhood, there is imperative need for MONEY—vast sums of money. Only one way now remains to obtain it.

The nation must save, every community, every family, every individual Canadian must save.

If anyone says "I cannot save" let him consider to what extent he would pinch himself to relieve the sufferings of a loved one at home; and surely he would not pinch less for our fighting brothers in France.

Without suffering actual privations, nearly every family in Canada can reduce its standard of living, can practice reasonable thrift, can make cheerful sacrifice to enrich the life-blood of the nation.

You who read this, get out pencil and paper NOW. Set down the items of your living expense. Surely you will find some items there you can do without.

Determine to do without them.

Start TO-DAY. Save your money so that you may be in a position to lend it to your country in its time of need.

A REAL MODERN SAMARITAN

Miss Elva Sutton has received the following interesting letter from Signaller Earle Humphrey, a former member of the 135th Middlesex Battalion, who is now serving in France:

I have not been able to post a letter lately or else I would have written to you before. I like to write often to you because I love to get your letters and hear all the news.

I guess this is an anxious time for all those who have friends over here because as you know by the papers we are giving old Fritz a busy time and are not going to stop until we drive him right out of France. I have been through it all and have been lucky enough to escape without a scratch, although I was nearly buried by one shell while a piece of shrapnel from another struck me on the thumb but did not injure it. We caught the Germans asleep and we captured all kinds of souvenirs that they did not have time to take away. I have the fighting spirit now and nothing I see bothers my nerves. I was exploring a very big and deep German dugout not long ago when suddenly I came upon two Germans lying asleep as I thought. I had found a pistol so with that in my hand I made up my mind I would take them prisoners. It was very dark but I had a lighted candle in my hand, so I touched one with my foot to wake him up. He turned over but all he did was groan, so I examined him and found that he was badly wounded. The other one was badly wounded, too, so I didn't fear them but took off my water bottle and gave them a drink. They were so thankful that they gave me three rings, a watch and a razor. They had German money, too, but I did not have the heart to take it off them. I told a Red Cross man about them and I guess they were taken to a hospital.

I haven't heard anything about any of the boys I know; no doubt some are missing. My brother came through the scrap in the south O. K. but I haven't heard from him since. He is in it now. I am having a short rest so am not bothered by bullets or guns. I got quite a dose of sneezing gas; it lasted nearly four hours, but I don't feel any effects of it now. I would like to have time to tell you some of my experiences, but can't this time.
