Ottawa, July 8, 1907.

My dear Mr. Williams:

I feel that I would like to thank you again for your many kindnesses to me on Thursday last. It was no small inspiration to go through your factory, and see on every hand the evidences of the co-operation between employer and employee. I know of nothing finer in this world than this kind of example of applied Christianity.

If I can in any way assist in the extension of the principle which you have adopted, I hope you will not fail to let me have the opportunity, should such lie within your power. Upon the first possible occasion, I intend to avail myself of your invitation to spend a day at the factory when all hands are present. However much there may be to see I doubt if any combination of circumstances can bring with it a more impressive lesson than each silent wheel in your factory the day that Mr. Lemieux and I went through. I can only join with you in the hope and the prayer that employers generally may some day come to realise the greatness of their opportunity.

With every good wish and much gratitude, I am,

S. J. Williams Esq.,
Berlin, Ont.

Sincerely yours,
