Nowhere was St. Patrick's Day celebrated with more pomp and grandeur than at St. Laurent Col-lege, under the auspices of St. Pat-rick's Literary and Dramatic So-ciety. Festivities began with a solemn High Mass sung by Rev. Wil-Ham' H. Condon, C.S.C., the Moder-ator of the Society, assisted by Rev. Henry Hamen as deacon, and Mr. James Toner as sub-deacon. An elo-quent panegyric on the life and works of St. Patrick was delivered by the assistant Moderator of the Society, Rev. J. Kellett. A select choir of fifty voices, ac ompanied by a string orchestra, led by Rev. Thomas J. Kellett, C.S.C., the director, assisted by Mr. George J. Massey, the organist, rendered a most magnificent musical programma which deserves endless praise. Messrs. Doherty, McKeon, Coyle and Murphy excellently rendered the solos of the "Kyrie." Messrs. L'He reux and McKeon and Mr. Cornelius Maher, who ably assisted the Soc clety, carried the solo work in the "Gloria" beyond criticism with per Maher, who ably assisted the So-ciety, carried the solo work in the "Gloria" beyond criticism with per-fect ease. The soloists in the "Sanc-tus," Messrs. Sullivan and Doherty, deserve unlimited merit. Messrs. O'Donnell and Coyle, and Mr. Wil-Ham O'Byrne, C.S.C., admirably ren-dered the solos in the "Benedictus," and Mr. George Rich beautifully handled the solo work in the "Agnus Die." During the Offertory Mr. Bourassa gave a masterly execution on the violin. A sumptuous banquet was held in

Bourassa gave a masterly execution on the violin. A sumptuous banquet was held in the spacious and tastefully decorat-ed dining-hall shortly after noon. Mr. William P. Lunny acted as to ast-master. The following to asts were given, and in a way which reflects inestimable credit upon the to asters: "The Day We Celebrate," by Mr. William A. Whalen. Rhetoric '08; "Trish Herces," by Mr. James M. Adolf Clemont, C.S. C., with the college band. Festivities were brought to a close with Solemn Benediction given by Rev. Edward Mechan, C.S.C., dur-ing which Mr. Telesphore Bourassa beautifully sand an "O Salutaris" and Mr. William O'Byrne, C.S.C., admirably rendered the "Ave Re-grina."

The officers of the Society, upon whom so much credit reflects for their uniting efforts in its behalf is and likewise for the great success (which the present celebration reach-ed, are as follows: Rev. William H. C Condon, S.C.C., Moderator; Rev. & Thomas J. Kellett, C.S.C., Assist-art-Moderator; Thomas P. Doherty, t President; William A. Whelan, Vice-J President; William P. Lunny, Re-i cording Secretary; John Mulcair, h Corresponding Secretary; Telesphore cording Secretary; John Mulcair, Corresponding Secretary; Telesphore Bourassa, Treasurer, and Francis McKeon, Librarian.

As is usual at mount St. House everything was carried out with pre-cision, and the inimense audience were certainly most enthusiastic in their appreciation. ANTICIPATED FEAST OF ST. PATRICK The officers of the Society, up O'Con-nor as Mr. McLean, a Scotch Middle-man, ran him close for the honors. Of the ladies, Miss Tina White as Bridget Maguire; Mrs. George Arless as Eileen Moriarity, and Miss Alice Rowan as Norah O'Donnell gave a display of histrionic ability that would have done credit to profes-sionals.

Altogether the work of the actors was such as the Association may feel proud of, and speaks well for the training they have received. During the evening bouquets were presented to the ladies, and a box of cigars to Mr. Love. Among the vaudeville turns, the singing of Miss Mary Durcan, Miss Kathleen Fitzgerald, Miss E. Tigh, Mr. L. Benoit, and Master R. Lawallee was greatly appreciated, while the dancing of Miss Josie Harring-ton took the house by storm.

ST. PATRICK'S CELEBRATION IN MOUNT ST. LOUIS. Last Thursday evening was the oc-casion of a patriotic entertainment at Mount St. Louis Institute. Every year, on St. Patrick's festival, the students of the above named institu-

On Sunday evening last St. Aloy-sius Church, Hochelaga, was crowd-ed to do honor to St. Patrick, whose feast was being celebrated by anti-cipation. The preacher of the occa-sion was Rev. Father Kiernan, who eloquently reviewed the life work of the great saint, and urged the peo-ple to be true to the faith that was in them, the faith planted in soil bedewed with the blood of martyrs. At the close of the sermon Canon O'Meara blessed the statue of St. Patrick, a gift to the church, fol-Patrick, a gift to the church, fol-lowing which was Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. E. J. entertainment. An extensive and very interesting programme was ex-cellently rendered, and there was not cellently rendered, and there was not a duil moment as the frequent and hearty applause of the audience suf-ficiently proved. The principal fea-ture of the evening's entertainment was Father O'Meara's account of his recent trip to Europe. The pastor of St. Gabriel's gave a bright and snappy account of the strange places he had seen and the strange paces he had seen, and the strange he had seen, and the strange people he had met in the course of his jour-ney, and he enlivened his description by many good stories well told. Let Everybody Sing

The best of the old hymns are touching. Father Faber-the emin-ent oratorian-did a great deal to make a hymnology for the Church that was modern as well as simple. that was modern as well as simple. There is nothing more inspiring than a ringing hymn sung by a whole congregation. It was my good fortune to hear a vast corps of the United States army stand silently as the Stars and Stripes same rattling down the pole at sunset. The silence had the effect of song -of something akin to battle and not very far removed from preser

-of something akin to battle and not very far removed from prayer. The majesty of it impressed me. Yet I cannot see why there is not a deeper thrill to be found in a con-gregation of Catholic souls pouring out their battle fervor in "Holy God We Prause Thy Name."

Blessing a Mixed Marriage.

Why place a wrong construction on the blessing which Pope Pius X. sent to the Hungarlan gentleman (we always forget his name), and the rich American lady on the occa-sion of their mixed marriage at New York recently?

Sion of their mixed marriage at New York recently? The Pope is a benevolent pontiff. His good will is broad, and human-itarian. He will bless a Protestant as well as a Catholic. He has often out their battle fervor in "Holy God We Praise Thy Name." And again it seems to me that the time is ripe for the restoration of the Plain Chant. We often hear of the glorious ri-tual, the imposing ceremonies of the Church, in which music plays such an important part. What are the Solemn Mass, the Office of the Dead, the Tenebrae, without the music? And whet music is there for the greater part of these offices but Plain Chank.—Boston Republic.
