The Church in Wales has lost a distinguished leader by the death of the Venerable David Evans, Archdeacon of St. Asaph, who died lately at Llanudno. He was ordained in St. Asaph Cathedral in 1856.

A few weeks ago a new Parliament assembled at Westminster, and old Westminster Hall resumed its minor office as one of the members' entrances to the House of Commons. Built by William Rufus, son of the Conqueror, in 1097, Westminster Hall is the only remaining representative of the original royal palace, which afterwards became the house of British legislature. After serving as a banqueting hall for a great number of years, it fell into decay, and a complete restoration was carried out in 1398 by Richard II. The courts of Law, which were established here by King John removed in 1883, when further renovations were made to the building; and in the meantime, in 1802, the fine timbered roof, said to be the largest in the world unsupported by pillars, was restored with old oak taken from dismantled men-
